

A Fashion Chat on Clothes for the Younger Generation

Furnished by Pictorial Review
853 Broadway, New York City.

A pretty dress for a child with the front in panel style would be effective if made of pongee. A handsome collar of lace is the only trimming necessary as is shown in PICTORIAL REVIEW MODEL No. 3455. This dress can have full length one-seamed leg or mutton sleeves or short puff sleeves as is desired. The skirt is side plaited and attached to the waist by means of the belt which can be embroidered. The dress closes to the left of the center front and may be worn with or without the detachable skirt. The sizes are 2, 4, 6, 8 and 10 years, and size 6 requires 2 1/2 yards of 44-inch material.

Simple braiding and embroidered designs are much used on children's dresses. Hand-work takes the lead and in almost every dress seen in the shops there is embroidery in some form. Some dresses have embroidery and lace combined, but it is wiser to have either one or the other. Laces should be confined to the daintier dresses developed of diaphanous materials while hand-work should embellish such materials as will stand frequent tubbing.

PICTORIAL REVIEW MODEL No. 3455 has a detachable yoke and an attached six-gored skirt. It closes at the left of the center-back under the plait. The braiding design No. 1144 enhances the entire costume and gives an air of distinction to the garment. Its price is 15 cents. The sizes of this pattern are 6, 8, 10 and 12 years and size 8 requires 2 yards of 36-inch material.

Every little girl will need a new coat for spring, that is, if she hasn't one already included in her wardrobe. A smart coat of navy blue serge or cheviot made on loose fitting lines is just the thing to wear over light dresses on cool days. PICTORIAL REVIEW PATTERN No. 3468 is a double-breasted coat having a notched collar and two-seamed sleeves with turn-back cuffs. Its size are 8, 10 and 12 years and a medium size requires 1 1/2 yards of 44-inch material.

The prettiest style of hat for spring or summer is a large mushroom with a tan or shantung crown and trimmed with a garland of small rosebuds. The hat that shade the face are exceedingly becoming and keep the glare of the sun's rays out of the little one's eyes.

A Frank Statement

BY THE
DALLAS OIL COMPANY

We have secured 2-year leases on over 1000 acres of land, on all of which we have experts' opinion that oil can probably be found.

We have bought and paid for a first-class drilling outfit; that with the exception of some minor articles, such as extra drills, etc., is all ready to go to work.

We have purchased the lumber, erected the derrick, and other buildings, and with a few more days of preparation will be ready to drill.

The original projectors have about run out of ready cash in bringing the work up to date, and all bills are paid so far. The accounts are open to everyone and this statement can be verified by application to the secretary at the Itemizer office.

Several thousand dollars is now needed to buy casing, etc., and pay the force of drillers who will sink the well, for their future work.

We are offering a block of 5000 shares for sale, and it is our desire that this stock be taken in as large lots as possible, making book keeping less burdensome and the profits greater to all concerned.

The output, as soon as found, has been contracted for, and all we have to do is to get it. The work is in the hands of an experienced driller, who has drilled for Standard Oil for 14 years and is expected to proceed without any hitches, and if work could at once be started, we may yet be the first well in Polk county to strike oil.

It is the desire of the projectors to make this a home institution and not be compelled to go outside of the county to secure the necessary capital.

Are there men in Polk who wish to invest their money in this way. This is written for the purpose of finding out, before we try other means of raising the money. We sell at $1 a share, and the more you take, probably the better off you will be.

Patronize One Another for the Unbuilding of Town and County.

Never forget that Polk county is the best county in the state, and that Oregon is the best state in the union, everything considered. While not forgetting this, you will do not be too bashful to continually impress the fact on every one you meet or write to. The constant loyalty of the inhabitants of a state or county or town, does much to make it known over the world and to give it the proper advertising necessary to continually make it bigger and better.

Livestock shipments to the Port land markets for the month of May are far ahead of the same statistics for May of last year, showing the growing importance of this market. Particularly is a big gain shown in hogs, which is gratifying to the trade. A total of 515 cars of livestock of all kinds came to the stock yards during May of this year. The increase of hogs received was over 7000 head. The O. R. & N. has decided to place in commission a regular stock train service, operating twice a week from Huntington to Portland and way points. This will begin June 21st and will be a great convenience to the stock raiser.

From the way the city papers are continually advertising shares of stock in California oil fields for sale, it must be that it is proving a paying investment to the promoters. It has always seemed strange to us that people who generally seek far away investments for their idle money, and let the chances right under their noses pass by, the home chance being in general the best proposition of the two, and close at hand where they can be certain that they are not swindled out of their money. This state needs much money for development work, and all citizens should have it so much at heart as to do their speculating at home instead of sending it away. We do not assert that any Polk countyite is guilty of doing this unloyal thing, but it is a fact that a steady stream of money is going out of the state to enable corporations and companies to prospect and promote fields in other states. There is great wealth to be uncovered yet right here in Polk county, and if the home people do not uncover it, it will not be long until outside capital does so, and then we will have no one to blame but ourselves because they make the money and we hold the bag.

The printer's trade is no exception to general rule in all other vocations that work performed by hand and closest to the brain of the operator has never been equaled, and never will be by machine labor. A machine cannot take the place of a trained brain, hand and eye, although in some instances it is fairly capable of copying. When a particularly nice piece of work is desired in any line it is left to the skillful workman, with no tools to use except those which he can use with his hands. So it is with type setting. The best printing is yet obtained from the old hand press that has the right movement to give a clean and true impression of the type, but cannot do so only by a slow process. The newer presses strive to do this clean work, but cannot do so, and in the best print shops of the world the old armstrongs are kept in use for the very best printing, when time and cost does not enter into the calculation. It is also thus with the art of etching. Machines have come into use because of their ability to rush things through at a fast rate, but when a fine job is desired to be turned out, the type is set by hand, in order to be perfect in every detail. This is an age of rush, but clean work is yet performed in the old way.

The Western Forestry and Conservation association for the states of Montana, Idaho, Washington, Oregon and California, request the aid of the Itemizer in requesting people to be careful about the extinguishing of any fires that they may light in the mountains. They state that the annual loss to the coast states in timber from the carelessness of campers amounts to the great total of $40,000,000. They say that "The people of our Pacific slope states face not only the working of irredeemable injury to their future prosperity in a few short months through the destruction of taxable property, stream flow and young growth on which the future forest depends but also the certain and direct loss of millions of dollars through the waste of timber which should be manufactured and shipped to the markets of the world. The returns from no other resource are so widely shared by every citizen and industry as the price of labor and supplies. It is the people at large, not timber owners, who bear 80 per cent of the fire loss. And yet forest fires are practically unnecessary. With the same care in the woods that is observed in towns, they would be almost unknown. They result from failure to realize that the community's interest is the same in either case, and from carelessness in consequence. Thoughtlessly tossing away burning matches or tobacco, leaving camp fires smoldering, careless clearing of land, passing heedlessly by a spark set by a locomotive; these are the causes of most large fires. A trifling effort would remove all danger.

Monmouth High Closes.

The first year's work of the Monmouth high school closed on Friday evening with the graduation programme, when the sole member of the class, Miss Lydia Verbera Powell, received her diploma, with a neat presentation speech from Rev. Mr. Weller, representing the board. Miss Powell has made a very high record through the whole course. A. A. Winter, of Dallas college, delivered an address. The high school is now firmly established, receiving the popular support of the citizens, who have always maintained high ideals of education. It is anticipated that next year's class will number 12 or more.

A daughter of George Horschman, of Amity, and her husband have been visiting the family here.

We had quite a windstorm Friday evening for this valley, it sending the dust flying for some minutes.

J. D. Smith spent a couple of days in the metropolis last week, and says he does not care to mix up with any such crowd again, that little old Dallas is good enough for him.

L. B. Fraker, father-in-law of W. J. Furnish, who has been visiting old friends here for some days, left for Philomath Sunday for a visit with relative and will then go back to his Pendleton home.
