Following the custom of the last half dozen years, since basketball have become our local game, Multnomah was treated to a banquet after their defeat last Saturday evening. Previously these affairs have been made a sort of social gathering at the home of some of our enthusiastic fans, and the fair sex invited to give tone to the occasion. This time Captain Tooez decided to make it a stag affair, and pulled it off at the Gail hotel. At 11 o'clock the 25 guests took their seats in the spacious dining room at a long table, especially decorated and spread for the occasion. The guests were the members of the Multnomah team and their subs, the local players, officials, and Eugene Foster and V. P. Fiske representing the local papers. An hour was spent in discussing the menu, which was fully up to the well known character of the Gail's feeds, and when coffee and cigars came on Captain Tooez saw to it that everyone who wanted to make a speech got a chance to do so. These remarks are always a particular pleasing event, the Portland bunch being thorough gentlemen, well known and liked by all our people. Two of them yet comprise the team first playing here and first entertained at our home.

Revival Services. Sheridan is now experiencing the greatest revival of its history. There have been more than one hundred converted and seventy-five united with the Methodist church last Sunday.
