WHAT SUSTAINS OUR PROSPERITY?

Not Captains of Industry, but the Masses of the People.

DECLARES WOODROW WILSON.

Business, Politics and Wealth of the Country Come Up, Not Down. He Says—All the People Do Not Believe in Democratic Government.

By WOODROW WILSON.

What fills us with confidence in the future is that the world is not waiting upon the stupidity of politics. The world has an awkward way of taking things into its own hands. The life of the people must, in the long run, express itself in its politics, and it does not now express itself in this country in the politics we have been accustomed to in the last decade.

There are two or three theories of government in this country. Don't deceive yourself by supposing all the people believe in democratic government, because they do not. You have only to listen to the utterances of very distinguished Republican speakers to see that they do not believe and do not pretend to believe in representative government. They will tell you they do not believe in the judgment of the people, can be trusted, and are you going to take counsel from these gentlemen as to the preservation of our representative institutions when they don't want them to represent the good body of the people?

Prefers Judgment of Rank and File.

I don't know whether I was born so or learned so or what happened to me, but I know this, that the deepest conviction I have, arising out of observation and experience is this, that I would rather take the judgment of the rank and file than the judgment of the men who have become absorbed and successful leaders in great undertakings.

And I want to ask these gentlemen this query: What sustains business in the United States? What is it that makes the United States prosperous? Is it that we have great captains of industry? What would they do without the cunning and skill, the muscle and the indomitable aspiring hopes of the American people? If these people were to find hope dying out of their hearts they would become dumb driven beasts, and your enterprises would fall for lack of the very breath that sustains them.

If you want to find whether a nation is prosperous ask the men who are on the make what they hope and what they fear. Go to the country districts and ask anxious fathers who are looking for openings for their sons where they expect to get them in, where they find doors open and where they find doors shut. Go through the places where men are making earnings and see whether they dread or confidently look forward to the future, and then you will find whether America is waxing or waning, for if these men are confident, full of hope; if they know the right way to get their treatment wherever they go, then America can conquer the world of enterprise in their hope.

But if you find what you do find men everywhere asking themselves, whether the doors of opportunity have not been locked in their faces, then you will have to take a new reckoning as to the future of America.

If only those who are chosen at the top have the right way to get their going to happen to America? Did you ever hear of a nation that was renewed from the top? Did you ever hear of a nation that was not made virile that did not account for its youth by renewal from the bottom? Did you ever hear of a tree that drew its sap from its flowers? Does it not draw it from the dark and silent places of the soil? Does not a nation draw its power of advancement and progress and its future from the rank of the great body of unnamed men?

Friend of American Business.

If you are going to discourage these men, if you are going to put the chill of fear in their hearts, then American captains of industry can whistle for their fortune, and they will whistle in a wilderness.

I am a friend of American business because I know where its foundations are laid and where they are supported. These foundations are laid only where there is the confidence of the common people.

A Democrat? Why, a man does not understand history who isn't a Democrat. A man does not understand enterprise who isn't a Democrat. And let me say this, Democracy is not merely a matter of programs; it is a matter of sympathy and insight. It depends upon whether your heart is in connection with the great heart of the people. It does not depend upon whether you can ruminantly devise a platform that looks just and good. You can build a flimsy platform and stand on it successfully, provided its basis is in the right kind of spirit.

It is a matter of seeing, not from your eyes out, but from the eyes of other men in getting the vision that is in the back of the other man's head is the thing; getting the hope that is the universal hope, getting that impulse that is the common human impulse, forward. This world has been swept by wave after wave of Democratic impulse.

E. M. SMITH.

Candidate for County Clerk.

Through the influence of many men and taxpayers of the county, I have become a candidate for re-election.

It has generally been understood that the fees of the County Clerk's office, for years past, barely paid the expenses, and in view of this fact, I respectfully submit the following figures, showing the immense profit to the county that this office has become:

From January 1, 1912, the fees were $5,624.12
Hunting and Fishing licenses 1,368.00
Total fees $6,992.12
Salary of Clerk 1,600.00
Salary of Deputy Clerk 900.00
Extra help $2.50 a day 475.00
(Average $39.50 per month)
Extra help on Tax Roll 113.75

Total expense $3,088.75
Clear profit to county 2,535.38
Hunting and Fishing license (Profit to State) 1,368.00

Total profit $3,903.75
The past two years the law requires many additional records to be kept, some of which are as follows: Record of Motor Vehicles; Bills of Sales; Lien upon Chattel Mortgages; Record of Nurses; Minister's Record and Register of Farm names; the registration of voters and issuing of hunting and fishing licenses and the work connected with the county and circuit court has greatly increased.

It is only by the experience that I have, constant attention to duties and hard work, that I am able to give you the results of a business office.

If my record appeals to you, I respectfully ask your support at the Primary election April 19th.

E. M. SMITH.
