Delightful Shopping

Where can you shop delightfully—this hot weather?
I've had to keep perfectly quiet in order to live, yet you say you've had a day of delightful shopping.

Yes, I've been shopping in up-to-date stores—stores kept cool, dustless and well ventilated by

G-E Electric Fans

No wonder those stores are popular—they are so comfortable. They do as much business in summer as at any other season.

Money spent in electric fans is a paying investment.
The 12-inch and 16-inch G-E Oscillating Fans are the most appropriate for stores. Their swinging breezes keep the air in good circulation throughout the store.
The customers, being comfortable, buy with better judgment, and are satisfied.

The grand old party is certainly having its inside financial affairs thoroughly exposed in this presidential campaign, and it appears to the onlooker as if neither side can fairly accuse the other of being just a little the worst in receiving contributions from the trusts.
Electioneering seems to have been easy with the protected trusts always ready and willing to furnish the necessary sinews of war—if the candidate was their tool.

The fruit crop in Oregon in 1911 was worth over $4,000,000 in cash. The greater part of this sum was received for apples, this staple commanding the highest prices both at home and abroad. Next to apples, peaches are the most important fruit in the state, last year's crop selling for $523,000. Pears were sold to the value of $300,000, being an average of nearly $1.50 per box. Cherries, prunes, loganberries, grapes, strawberries, etc., helped to swell the sum paid to farmers and orchardists during the year. About 300,000 pounds of English walnuts were produced, valued at $45,000.

OIL ON RAILROADS.

Railroad consumption of fuel oil is especially popular because it gives added comforts in travel owing to the freedom from coal cinders, because it avoids the danger of forest fires, and particularly because it makes a saving in labor. In fact, until coal can be replaced by oil the weight of trains on mountain divisions is limited by the endurance of the fireman. In recommending the adoption of fuel oil on the mountain divisions of the Canadian Pacific Railway, William White, second vice-president, states that one of the reasons for this change is the removal of danger from conflagrations in the great forests of British Columbia. He also alludes to the failure of the immense locomotives now in use, saying: "It is not the failure of locomotives; it is the failure of the fireman." A fireman shoveling coal on one of these locomotives for a distance of 130 miles is physically exhausted before getting to the end of the run. The Southern Pacific Co. uses over 1,200 oil-burning locomotives, the Santa Fe over 800, the Northern Pacific 20, and the Great Northern 115.

In a recent letter to the McMinnville T-R Judge Ramsey says the first paper in Yamhill county was the La-Fayette Courier, put out by J. H. Upton in 1865 or 1855. As J. H. Upton started what is now known as the Itemizer in 1862, Polk would seem to have had a publication prior to Yamhill, although we have always believed it the other way. Upton has probably started more papers than any other man in Oregon, having been affiliated at one time or another with almost all of the early ones, and it is only in the last few years that he has given up the job, his last venture being at Coos bay, where he is yet living; but too feeble in mind and body to superintend or write for one now. He was a freighter of the Horace Greeley type, and his editorials were read by friend and foe. He and "Dad" Craig, of Salem, are all that are now left of the pioneer journalists, save and except Ashael Bush, of Salem, who has long ago discarded the pen for other and better means of making money. Judge Ramsey is also an old time writer, but of a later period. In the early 80ties he was one of our writers on the Capital Democrat.

The brutal crime of last week at Eugene causes shudders to run over the most stoical of us. To think that a fiend of that nature is loose in Oregon, and is at any time and anywhere again liable to perform a like deed is a thing to get on the nerves of any of us. If the same person is guilty of the crimes of a like nature that have been perpetrated within the last year, it is high time some unusual efforts were being made to apprehend him. By the almost insane ingenuity with which in every instance all tracks have been covered up, causes many persons to believe all the acts of one person. In every instance detectives seemed entirely unable to find a clue of sufficient importance to really make a definite charge, although in each case suspects were arrested and fully examined. Neither deduction or elimination seems to fit any of the cases, and if we have any Sherlock Holmes in Oregon, they must have been asleep on their job. The main thing is are we to develop one capable of successfully coping his brain with the fiend, are our people to live on in the constant terror of the women of the southern states, not knowing what day or hour they may be the victim of the lust of a brute who reeks not of the consequences so his worse than brute passions may be satisfied.

Governor West is being considerably criticized for the repealing of certain adjudged murderers until such time as the residents of Oregon can pass upon the question of capital punishment. Although the Itemizer believes that hanging is the just and only penalty that will set the proper example and keep in subjection those who would in cold blood take the life of a human being, yet we are not disposed to carp at West for the action he has taken in this matter. If the people of Oregon want hanging to continue as the penalty for such crimes, all they have to do is to say so at the polls in November, and the murderers will receive the sentence decreed to them, and in much fuller measure than they would have originally, as they will have had added the suspense to which they have been subjected during the lease of a few months more of life given to them.
Most any man, be he ever so illiterate or degenerate, if he knows that he has to die, would rather do so at once than be subjected to the gruelling wait that those now awaiting death have in store for them. True, these have the hope that the voters may abolish capital punishment, but they should be aware that their chance of life hangs by a very slender thread, and that the result will probably be as first decreed. The torture of such suspense is worse than death itself to an average man, and consequently we are not grilling West, as many papers are, for giving those now awaiting death this added punishment. As we remember it, there are no extenuating circumstances for any of these murderers.
They killed to kill, and could not even put up the plea of self defense. Therefore should their punishment be long drawn out—and it is.

BRINGS RECOLLECTIONS.
Marriage Brings Up Some Reollections to J. M. Campbell.

The marriage of Roland Holman last week recalled to mind an incident to Mr. J. M. Campbell of early times, when Dallas was in its infancy. In the year 1859 Mr. Campbell erected a residence for James Holman, who was the father of Rev. Preston Holman, the father of Frank Holman and he of Roland. The house built is what is known as the Delashmutt property, and is located on Levens street, adjoining the home of Mr. A. B. Muir.
The house was erected for Jas.
Holman soon after he was appointed sheriff in David Cospers' place, who resigned on account of ill health. Mr. Holman was afterward elected and served at other term. One of his official acts was the hanging in that year of Moss, who killed Harper on the Luckiamute. Moss became enamored of Harpers wife, and one evening when the couple were sitting at their fireside, he fired through the window and killed Harper. This killing was one among the first of early day crimes, and caused much excitement, both at the trial and subsequent hanging, gaining as much notoriety over the state as did the killing of Whitley at a later date by Glaze.

James Holman was the father of Rev. Preston Holman, a well known Baptist minister of this county, and has been dead for some years. His son, Frank, is the well known dairyman here, and Roland is one of our grocery-men, being 24 years of age.
Mr. Campbell is nearly 79 years of age, but remembers distinctly the happenings of early days, and as a carpenter and wood worker had much to do with all of our old time structures.
