ANOTHER BRICK.

Dallas City Bank Will Build One of Two Stories on Klinger Corner.

President R. E. Williams was up from Portland Monday and while here perfected arrangements by which the Dallas City bank became the owner of the property at the corner of Main and Mill, known as the Klinger building, and also the building adjoining, owned by Colonel Mathews and Dick Madison. The purchase price of the corner building was $7000. The owners of the meat market have been notified to seek other quarters, and as soon as they are out the building will be torn down. The other building has been recently fitted up for a saloon by J. V. Chitty, and the bank will probably take charge of his interests by moving him to the Jacobson lot next to the Methodist church on Mill street. The estimated cost of the structure is in the neighborhood of $20,000, and it is proposed to begin operations on it at once, and have it ready for occupancy by November 1st. The building will be of two stories, and be built of pressed brick of the same style of architecture as the other bank building. The first story will have on the corner the palatial new home of the Dallas City bank, and in its rear fronting on Mill street will be the present meat market now on the corner. There will be one good sized store room on Main street beside the bank and one 12 feet in width. Mr. Chitty will use the larger room, and the other will probably be occupied by a barber shop. Stairs will lead from Main street to the second story, which will be fitted up for offices. The building will be modern in every respect, with all conveniences, and be heated by steam. This marks the beginning of our building operation of large character for 1913, and in conjunction with J. W. Cridler's large addition to the New Scott hotel, and the third story of the Masonic building, which is now commenced, Dallas may view with pride her improvements for the year.

DECORATION DAY.

Full Program for the Observance of that Sacred Veteran Remembrance.

Should the weather clerk be pleased to allot us fair weather tomorrow, Decoration day will be observed as never before in Dallas. The various committees are working hard to make the day one long to be remembered as an affair of that kind, and it is hoped that Old Sol will shine forth in all his glory, and give all a chance to give an out door memorial that will do credit to our city.

John E. Miller has been chosen as marshal of the day, and will form the parade at the armory at 10 o'clock. The band will take the lead followed by Company G, acting as guard of honor for the old veterans, and the ladies of the relief corps.

The school children of the city will act as rear guard. March will be made to the city park, if the weather is permissible, and if not at the armory.

The program is as follows: Selection—Dallas band.

Invocation—Rev. Cornwall.

Song, "America,"—audience.

Selection—Male quartet.

Lincoln's Gettysburg address—Rev. C. P. Gates.

Selection—High school quartet.

Address—Walter L. Tooez, Jr. Strengthening flowers for the unknown dead.

Selection—Male quartet.

Selection—Band.

Flags have been placed on all the known graves in our cemeteries, and they will be strewn with flowers in the morning. If you can spare flowers leave them at Stafrin's drugstore, and if you know of any other veteran not mentioned in the following list, notify Mr. B. Lovelace:

John Wiseman, Joseph Lowe, B. F. Reasoner, J. E. Smith, J. M. Connaway, Wm. Grant, H. C. Dimick, Samuel Coad, Wm. Gilliam, Cornelius Gilliam, Milton Thompson, D. S. Martin, Samuel Sloan, Wm. Sebring, A. Seifarth, Simon Tattle, Martin Heise, G. W. Reed.

Miss Belle Kearney.

The best reason for having a Chautauqua here is the uplift and education it gives. The entertainment while varied and attractive must be only incidental. There will come to our chautauqua a speaker who will do more good in her great lecture in her one hour and a half, than is often gained by months of ordinary reading. Her personality is attractive being very much like that of Francis Willard, who by the way, inspired Miss Kearney to become a lecturer. She has traveled in nearly all parts of the world and her fund of information is unlimited. Miss Kearney's language is beautiful, her voice very strong for that of a woman, and nature has endowed her richly as a speaker. She will make her day at Chautauqua one of the days we shall all long remember.

BALL TEAM ORGANIZED.

Dallas Will Have Fast Nine Able To Cope With All Comers.

Dallas base ball team has organized for the coming season and among the players who will receive a tryout are the following:

For catchers—Shaw, Serr, Herzog; pitchers—Barham, Meyer, Clark; 1st base—W. Tooez, R. Boydston; 2nd base—F. Boydston; shortstop—Cooper; 3rd base—Baker; outfield—W. Barham, E. Barham, Rice.

All other local players who are not on this list may receive a fair tryout against these players by reporting to the public school ground Sunday morning at 9 o'clock. For catcher, we know Shaw and his good head work and playing. Herzog has been playing with the high school team and his playing is well liked by all. Serr has been playing with the best teams in Portland and the valley and has a good record in California, Barham, Clark and Meyer we all know of capable of pitching with the best. W. Tooez and R. Boydston rank with the best semi pro 1st base men in the valley. F. Boydston's work on second is hard to improve. With Cooper on short makes that position one of the strongest on the team. Home Run Baker as he is known by all has a fine record. This man has broken up more games by his slugging than any other player in the valley. W. Barham, E. Barham and L. Rice are hard to beat in the outfield. They are fast and hard hitters. Ted Serr, who has managed some of the best teams in and around Portland, will take charge of this team.

Just That—Nothing More.

The esteemed Itemizer is just now devoting considerable space to the Observer and "that man Foster." We always have been of the opinion that if the "best printer" would quit snoring in the day time and actually do some work himself he might introduce some live topics into his newspaper and make it worth while.

We give the paper that suits the people—all we are after, and something the Observer has failed to do with all its boasting. We do not have to violate the postal laws by carrying several hundred delinquent subscribers in order to have a half way decent subscription list.

Marriage Licenses.

Do not forget the dance at the Woodman hall Saturday evening. Music by the Downey orchestra. Tickets 75 cents.

Colonel J. L. Clem, Civil War Veteran, In Active Service

MEMORIAL DAY, 1913, sees but one Union officer who fought during the rebellion now on the active list of the United States army. That one is Colonel John L. Clem, famous during the civil war as the "Drummer Boy of Chickamauga." Colonel Clem obtained the unique position he now holds among veterans with the retirement of Major Daniel W. Arnold nearly a year ago.

Colonel Clem served as musician of Company C, Twenty-second Michigan infantry, from May 1, 1862, to Sept. 10, 1864. He entered the regular army as a second lieutenant of the Twenty-fourth infantry in December, 1871. He is a native of Ohio, born on Aug. 13, 1851. He still has more than two years to serve on the active list.

The colonel was seized by the war fever before he had finished his tenth year. He begged to go to the front as a drummer boy with a regiment passing through his native town of Newark, O., on account of his youth he was rejected, but he was determined and followed the troops to Cincinnati, where he offered himself to the Twenty-second Michigan regiment, only to be declined again. But he persevered and was allowed to accompany the regiment in its subsequent movements till he found himself at Shiloh with Grant.

On this field his drum was smashed by a piece of shell. But it was at Chickamauga that he won the sobriquet of the "Drummer Boy of Chickamauga." In the summer of 1863 he had been allowed to exchange his drum for a musket, shortened especially for his use, for in his own words he did not like to stand and be shot at without being able to shoot back.

He blazed away like a veteran. At the close of the day, when the army was falling back on Chattanooga, his brigade was surrounded, and a demand was made for its surrender. Johnny did not fall back as quickly as the rest, and a Confederate colonel, having summoned him to surrender, came forward with drawn sword and used language that the little soldier resented.

The boy raised his musket, shot the colonel and then fell as though shot himself. Here he lay till dark, when he was managed to reach his comrades. His exploit, being recorded in the papers, gave his family the first knowledge of his whereabouts.

For his gallantry General Rosecrans made Clem a sergeant and attached him to the Army of the Cumberland. After being captured and exchanged he was attached to the staff of General Thomas, whose firm friend he remained until Thomas' death. He fought at Shiloh, Perryville, Resaca, Kenesaw, Peach Tree Creek, Atlanta and Nashville. Since the war he has had various posts and was in the Philippines for some time.

There is an interesting story told of the way Colonel Clem got into the regular army. In the early days of General Grant's first term as president Clem, without aid, gained an audience.

"What can I do for you?" asked the president.

"Mr. President," said Clem, "I wish to ask you for an order admitting me to West Point."

"But why," said the president, "do you not take the examinations?"

"I did Mr. President, but I failed to pass."

"That was unfortunate," said the president. "How was that?"

"Why, Mr. President, you see I was in the war, and while I was there those other boys of my age were in school."

"You were in the war?"

"Yes, Mr. President," said Clem, who was now scarcely eighteen. "I was in the war four years."

Then he related his experiences, after which the president wrote a note and told him to take it to the secretary of war. Clem thought it was an order to admit him to West Point, but instead it directed the secretary of war to make him a second lieutenant in the regular army.

Meet me at the New Scott.

M. Hayter, dentist, Bank Bldg.

Quite a remarkable coincidence was noted the other evening at the Salem excursion, when it was found that the engine that pulled up to take us over was the same number of the recently instituted lodge here, 1361. It had been in the car shops here for repair, and is the one Bat Casey ran so long.

"The wagon that stands up like the reputation of its makers"

When you buy a Studebaker wagon you buy a wagon that will last until you turn the farm over to your son and he turns it over to his son.

One of the first Studebaker wagons ever made saw constant service for thirty years, and we will gladly send you the names of farmers who have in their possession wagons that have been in constant use anywhere from 17 to 48 years—and there are thousands of them. We are building the same kind of wagons today.

A Studebaker wagon is an investment that will give you full return for your outlay. It is built on honor. Iron, steel, wood, paint and varnish used in its construction are tested and retested to make sure each is the best.

For work, business or pleasure—for town or country use—there is a Studebaker vehicle to fit your requirements.

Farm wagons, dump carts, trucks, buggies, surreys, runabouts, pony carriages, business vehicles of every description—with harness of the same high standard.
