S. C. Brown Leghorn.

I have been a breeder of this class of chickens for thirteen years, principally for laying, and in the last few years have been exhibiting at the shows, and have them bred upon that line until now I am winning many prize prizes. I am following the double line breeding. Keeping in my own stock most all the time, I always mark and select my earliest matured pullets for my breeding pens for the next year, and keep a few special good hens to put with them. Selling most all of the yearling hens off.
By this way of breeding and with this class of chickens, if I have my chicks hatched off by the first of April, they will begin laying by the time the yearling hens begin their moult. In this way I never allow them to moult and rest on me. By this method I can keep up a continuous flow of eggs the year round. In October and November, which are considered two of the poorest months for egg laying in the year, from 155 hens in the month of November, I got $60.25, the price of eggs were from 40 to 45 cents per dozen, which were sold all for cash. The cost of feed for that month was $13.35.
My experience of feeding for egg production, bran, shorts, gray, oats, meatcraps, grit and green feed continually before them, wheat and corn toward evening. My hen house is eighteen by fifty-two feet, front enclosed with wire netting with canvas curtains to let in during cold weather, this side is walled up three feet from the floor.
The roosting room, laying room, feed, scratching and dusting room are all on the same floor and level. The roosts are two feet from the floor and the floor is three feet from the ground, this gives them the same space on the ground under cover, they can pass from the floor underneath. There is plenty of light all over the house, there is a ditch one foot deep all around the house underneath. The main object in having it so high from the ground is to keep the rats from entering there.
This plan and size of house will easily accommodate 250 hens during the winter months. They have two and one half acres of orchard to run in when turned out. I find that the largest profits in egg production come from pullets. I find on this well balanced ration when they get matured and get about so fat they commence laying and keep it up until they begin to moult. For two years I have kept an exact account of the feed up to the time the pullets are matured and begin to lay. I find by weighing the young cockerels when they weigh from a pound and a half to two pounds, at this weight, they bring 16 to 18 cents a pound and as a rule they are half cockerels and the other half pullets.
I find they pay for the raising of themselves and the pullets up to maturity. We always start our young chicks off on chick food and very seldom lose any. If chickens are kept free from lice and never over heated, they will seldom have any disease among them. Most every chicken fancier has a certain breed of chickens that suits him best, and he will probably have the best success with that breed. I have tried several different breeds of chickens and have found that S. C. Brown Leghorns suit me best. I find that it is just as essential to breed for good laying hens as it is to breed for good milk cows. In thirteen years I have improved my stock wonderfully. They mature earlier and lay more steady. I raise all kinds of stock and farm produce and find there is nothing so profitable for the amount invested as raising chickens. Therefore I am willing to devote a part of my spare time freely to the development of the chicken industry. I know of no better way to do this than to boost the shows. We invite everyone to attend our show in Dallas. No admittance will be charged for visitors. We want all poultry breeders to begin raising poultry with the intention of exhibiting at our show next fall. We will meet there with the intention of learning all we can of the industry.
J. M. Card, president of the Polk County Poultry Association, Dallas, Oregon.

A Carelessly Treated Cold

is the source of most sickness because drugged pills, syrups and alcoholic mixtures are uncertain and unsafe.

Scott's Emulsion has been relied upon by physicians for forty years as the safe and sensible remedy to suppress the cold and build up the enfeebled forces to avert throat and lung troubles. Don't tolerate alcoholic substitutes, but insist on the Genuine Scott's Emulsion. One bottle usually lasts longer than a cold. Every druggist has it.

Sixteen Widows Get Pensions.

Polk county court expended $1503 in widows' pensions during the last five months of 1913. This amount was divided between sixteen widows and the average pension was $25. Eight applications are now pending. The court in making its levy for this year, anticipates an increase in the number of pensions, apportioned $6225 to the widows' fund.

Bean Magic Spray Pumps

Effective spraying means High Pressure Spraying and the advent of the Bean Magic high pressure could not be maintained with a hand pump for any length of time on account of the body-racking effort needed to operate it. The Bean Magic patent spring drives the work between the two strokes of the handle and works against only one-half the pressure shown on the gauge and saves exactly one-third the labor.
We have these pumps in stock and will be pleased to show them. We cannot recommend them too strongly.
