Farmers and Laborers - The Al lance Runs Against an Unexpected Snag.

While, there ore, he market is likely to exhibit more spirit after the 4th of March, yet it is not unlikely that we may have to wait until the beginning of April for any really active and well sustained movement in stocks, after which we may expect three or four months of uninterrupted ease in money, with a fair chance for recovery in the prices of securities.

excessive duliness is a symptom that deserves attention. It implies the com-parative absence of weak spots in the market and the prevalence of a confidence which the "bears" find it prudent to respect. It evidences a sound state of affairs and the expectation of, sooner or later, a higher range of values. Undoubtedly, the fact that the January paranage allow an average gain of 6 per earnings show an average gain of 6 per cent over the largly increased receipts of January, 1803—especially as that was a much better result than had been expected—has largely contributed to this healthy tone of the market; but the principal cause exists in things hoped

It is true that the Rock Island and It is true that the Rock Island and Chicago, Burlingion & Quincy are suffering from the shortness of the cornerop and that Chicago is selling the Grangers from an expectation of reduced earnings from a like cause; but it is also true that the failure of that crop was draining the traffic in January, when the reads at large exhibited not such that the failure exhibited not withstanding a very fair husines; and it when the reads at large extinate how withstanding a very fair busines; and it is a reasonable question—if there were compensations against the loss on this source of treight in the first month of the year, why may we not expect such compensations in the later months? It neems not impossible that the effects of the loss of corn freight may have been over discounted, as such conspicuous items are upt to be.

San Fernando, Cal., Feb. 27 - We don't get our salary this week, and that's

Well, that was pleasant for a starter.
About 4 o'clock in the morning, whil we were all sleeping soundly, there was a sudden crash, and a very large crash it was. It could give our stage crash card was. It come give our stage crash cards and spades and then lose it in the shuffle. The train came to a very sudden stop, and we found that one of those playful little bowlders weighing about five tons had tripped down the mountain side and dislocated the platform of the sleeper just behind us. Three seconds cover and it would have roused lightly sleeper just behind us. Three seconds somer and it would have popped lightly in the window of the berth in which my wife and I lay sleeping, and we would, perhaps, ere this have been knocking at the golden gates. When it was all over, all breathed an inward prayer; all except me; I would have breathed one, but I didn't know any. Without further impediment on the part of the mountainmarbles we arrived at the beautiful, and I must say beautiful, eity of Mojave.

There the reports we had heard whis-pered previously about was-houts were verified, and so thoroughly that there was no possibility of doubt left in our minds. We were told we would have to lay up for repairs. Well, after a few games of poker, several drinks and a meal in Mojave we found ourselves all broke, and shortly after we all got hungry. Then you can well imagine that the one absorbing thought and topic of the hour among the 'Sea King' Company and all the other passengers, numbering out of the four trains about 250, was when do we eat and how do we get it?

We all went and they must have took us all for ladies for I did not see #1 put up by anybody. However, to square ourselves, our com pany after the dance gave selections from "The Sea King" choruses.

New YORK, March 6-Fanchon, the trick elephant who attempted to perorm a new and difficult feat last Tuesday and fell, is not doing so well today, and Herman Reiche, her owner is beming alarmed.

Fanction has always been more or less of pet, and is one of the brightest of trick elephants. Mr. Reiche, who is a dealer in wild animals, has been very fond of her, and always feeds her himself. On Monday, however, he was delayed beyond the usual hour, and Fanchon be ming restless tugged at her chain until she broke loose.

An elephant is well designed for going ap stairs, but for going down there is no much weight forward. She must be taken through a window and down an improvised scaffolding to the yard be-

On Tuesday, the arrangements being ompleted, the attempt was made. The completed, the attempt was made. The arrangements were, however, evidently faulty, and before Fanchon was led out of the second-story window the 5000 people who had congregated in Fifty-eventh street were predicting just such an accident as occurred.

From the parlor window on the second floor a platform, built like a gangway and about three feet wide, inclined down and rested on a brick fence 10 feet high just inside the sidewalk. Another gang

Another gang slank was laid from the wall, at the end, and joining the first one, and at the sack and down to the door of the stable, which occupies the ground floor of the building. So the elephant, to reach the stable, would have to walk down an in-cine from the window to the wall, then make a sharp turn around and walk lown another incline to the stable door It was at the turn that danger was feared, and the fear was well grounded, as even a man would have to be careful getting from one gang plank to the other gang plank, trying to pull Fan-chon around after him. But Fanchon would not budge. Mr. Reiche gave her a prod with an iron hook. Fanchon lifted one foot, raised her trunk, and then there was a roar of horror from the crowd. Her trunk in turning had struck Mr. Reiche and sent him backkilled as he alighted on his shoulders and the back of his head. The sod was a protection, however, and he quickly jumped to his feet looking dazed, but with no bones broken.

Just as he struck the ground Fanchon stepped toward the second gang plank, missed it and fell between the two lines of boards, two of her legs and her trunk clinging to the upper one and the other legs to the lower one. She at once set up a terrible bellowing and the crowd began to disperse in quick order.
