

FALSE ENGLISH REPORTS.

THE FIRST EDITION.

An Attempt Being Made to Cause Trouble With Chile.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 11.—Much indignation is expressed at the state and navy departments at the conduct of certain English newspapers in ascribing foolish sentiments and remarks to Minister Egan and Captain Schley in connection with the pending questions between the Chilean and United States governments.

The closest inquiry has failed to elicit any further information respecting the details of the agreement reached by the United States and Great Britain to submit the Behring sea case to arbitration.

Much Destruction in the Neighborhood of Calcutta.

CALCUTTA, Nov. 10.—Further details regarding the cyclone which passed over this part of India Monday of last week show the damage done to be very extensive.

Advices from various parts of Orissa, a province in Bengal, state that a cyclone passed over that section of country and did great damage.

The wind also did much damage below Calcutta, on the well known river, being the natural outlet for the trade of the Ganges and the Brahmapootra.

Canadian All in a Lather.

MONTREAL, Nov. 11.—The stevedores and wharf laborers, who have been in the habit of going to the United States for work every winter, are wondering how the enforcement of the alien labor law is going to affect them this winter.

A Naval Safeguard.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 10.—The secretary of the navy has issued an order requiring spirits of turpentine, alcohol, varnishes and liquid dyes to be kept in metallic tanks on the spar decks of naval vessels and forbidding inflammable liquids or explosives, except those permitted by the allowance books, to be brought aboard.

Man Missing, Suicide Feared.

SAN BERNARDINO, Cal., Nov. 10.—A. Ray, agent for the Southern Pacific Railroad Company at this place, disappeared Wednesday and has not since been seen or heard from.

Lottery Officers Indicted.

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., Nov. 10.—The federal grand jury here has returned four indictments against President Conrad, Vice President Morris and 13 other members of the Louisiana Lottery Company.

Fire in Philadelphia.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Nov. 10.—A fire early this morning completely gutted the wholesale cloth and woolen goods house of Lippincott, Johnson & Co., causing a loss estimated at $200,000, fully insured.

"DEAR SIR: We take pleasure in announcing to you that the first edition of your work, 'The Swallows,' being sold, a second edition should be printed.

When I received this letter, said the celebrated dramatic author, Henry Bidler, I was overcome with joy and astonishment, but I was even more astonished that he should be so pleased.

The first edition of "The Swallows," my first work, a volume of poetry, exhausted! And I was barely twenty-two years old, I know no one in Paris, nothing is appreciated by my countrymen except some advertisements!

What a future was before me! After this volume I would write a second one, at which I had already worked—in fancy! Then I would produce something for the theatre, the spring board which launches you all at once into renown, glory and prosperity.

My grandfather's face appeared at the door. A kindly face, closely shaven, with a large nose, bright eyes shining behind spectacles, a well combed wig encircling a smiling countenance.

When he had perused he said: "Well, what of it? It seems to me that your poems are charming."

"But just think, grandfather, it is an unexpected success. Nobody reads poetry nowadays."

"People read yours, it seems. You ought to be satisfied."

"Then you are happy?"

"Can you doubt it?"

"No more could be desired."

He opened his snuff-box and took a pinch, looking at me with his smiling eyes.

A quarter of an hour later I was at Massol's store. I sprang up the stairs to the office of the elder brother, who was accustomed to deal with authors.

The office-door opened, and X—, a member of the academy, came out, accompanied by the smiling and obsequious publisher.

"You received our letter?"

"Yes, Mr. Massol."

"A book of poetry sold in a month. Between ourselves, I don't understand it at all."

"I was not very flattering, but I myself had been so much astonished that I readily excused his astonishment."

Encouraged by this first success, I went to Massol's office. I wrote my first play, "The Grandmother," which, as you recollect, was successful at the Odéon; then I wrote "The Victims of Marriage," for the Gymnase; "The Two Brothers," for the Comédie Française, and many other pieces.

bought the whole edition; he was the unknown author—Eugene translation from the French of Jacques Normand by Richard H. Buel.

Goldwin Smith Reads a Paper on the Subject to a Reform Club.

TORONTO, Nov. 10.—Goldwin Smith read a paper on "Jingism" before the Young Men's Reform Club here last evening. It attracted considerable attention for two reasons; first, because he came out unreservedly for the annexation of Canada to the United States, which, he said, was Canada's inevitable destiny; and second, because it was the first political lecture he had delivered, as he intended in the future to confine his attention to finishing some literary work he now has on hand.

In the course of his lecture he asked if "Jingism" in the dominion really wished to provoke a war with the United States, so had the measure the chances of such a war? In challenging the United States the Canadian Jingoes always assumed that they have Great Britain behind them, but they forget that the great mass of English people were not in temper to war with America on the Canadian question. He had no doubt that by Americans generally Canada would be welcomed if she came to the Union of her own accord.

Two Men and a Boy Killed and Three Men Badly Injured.

HAYWARD, Wis., Nov. 10.—Two men and a boy are dying, three men are severely injured and many others are suffering from painful wounds, as a result of a terrific explosion of dynamite, which occurred early this morning.

The injured are: Fred Nelson, John Lavett, Kean Davis, D. McWilliams, Cal Seal, J. H. Wade. Davis was struck by a huge timber and frightfully injured. Lavett had both legs broken and his chest crushed in. A freight train standing on the side track was blown off the rails and the caboose was completely demolished.

Railroad Struck at St. Louis.

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 10.—Engineers and firemen of the Belt Line have just declared a strike. This will probably spread to other lines, as Mr. Arthur stated no freight will be handled by Brotherhood men going to the Belt Line or the Wiggins' Ferry Company.

State of a Lord Drowned.

DUBLIN, Nov. 10.—Today while some keepers were walking along the shores of Lake Nass they saw something in the water and procuring implement dragged a body ashore. Upon landing it was found to be that of Rose Lawler, the youngest sister of Lord Cloncurry. The family was immediately notified. It is a matter of conjecture as to how the unfortunate lady met her death.

State the Favorite.

TOKYO, Nov. 10.—Two hundred representative Republicans held a love feast here last night, to celebrate the Republican gains last election and to outline the plan of campaign for 1892. Presidential possibilities were discussed and the prevailing idea seemed to be that Blaine will be the most popular candidate the Republicans could put at the head of their ticket.

Repairs on Naval Ships Being Pushed With All Possible Speed.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 10.—Beyond the statement that orders for hurrying up work on the Atlanta were prompted by the recent troubles in Brazil, and that she will probably be assigned to that station, Secretary Taft will say nothing regarding the movements of the new navy, which has been transferred to change the belief that the Newark, Atlanta, Concord and Bennington will start for foreign waters just as soon as they are ready and that the Philadelphia will accompany them.

Rep-Admiral Gherardi reported his arrival yesterday at St. Thomas. How long he will remain there cannot be learned. The presumption is that if he has not already had instructions to rendezvous to the Pacific he will continue to rendezvous in the vicinity of St. Thomas until he has received further orders.

Word has also been received of the arrival of the San Francisco at Acapulco, en route from Callao to the Mare Island navy yard for repairs. It is the purpose of the department to have her continue north without delay, and upon arrival of the Yorktown at Valparaiso, to order the Baltimore north that she, too, may be put in a serviceable condition at the earliest possible moment.

The Atlanta, Bennington and Concord will be ready for sea Friday or Saturday next, but their destination or their time of sailing is not known at the navy yard at Brooklyn. The Atlanta will leave the dry dock on Thursday.

A well-informed official at the navy yard said today that he did not see how the work needed on the Miantonah could be finished in two weeks' time. As it is they are working on her from 6 a. m. until 9 p. m. The secretary of the navy is determined this battle ship shall be got in readiness for sea with all possible dispatch.

THE WAITING JULIET.

Extract From the Memoirs of Gabriel Foote, Highwayman.

The house in question was what Peter the Scholar (who corrects my proof-sheets) calls one of the ruderly sort—front facing a street and the back looking over over a turfed garden, with a line tree or two, a laburnum and a lawn tennis court, marked out, its white lines plain to see in the starlight. At the end of the garden a door, painted a dark green, led into a narrow lane between high walls, where, if two persons met, one had to turn sideways to let the other pass. The entrance to the garden was cut in two by a wooden post about the height of your hip, and just beyond this, in the high road, George was waiting for us with the dog-cart.

We had picked the usual time—the dinner hour. It had just turned dark and the church clock, two streets away, was chiming the quarter after 8, when Peter and I let ourselves in by the green door I spoke of, and felt along the wall for the gardener's ladder that we knew was hanging there.

It was a roomy place, with a great half-terrace bed, hung with curtains, standing out from the wall on my right. The curtains were of chintz, a dark background, with flaming red poppies sprawling over it; and the further curtain hid the dressing-table, and the candles upon it and the jewel-case that I confidently owned. I went up softly, pushed my head over the level of the sill and looked in.

ALBANY, N. Y., Nov. 7.—General Palmer, commander-in-chief of the Grand Army of the Republic, has just made public an order, which he said his attention has been called to, and that comrades wearing the badge and uniform of the Grand Army of the Republic participated in a recent demonstration where the confederate flag was carried and displayed.

He continues: "One of the greatest principles of our organization is to teach the rising generation loyalty to country and fidelity to duty. United soldiers have repeatedly said to soldiers of the South, 'We have no desire to arouse sectional animosities or passions engendered by the war; give us loyalty and in return we will give you fraternity.'"

"While the commander in chief has neither the right nor disposition to interfere with individual rights or privileges of the members of the order he assumed the obligation to protect it against any and all acts that will bring reproach upon its good name. With these words of admonition I have sufficient confidence in your honor and fidelity to the principles of the order to feel that there will be no further participation in any demonstration or parade where the emblem of treason is carried or displayed."

This Government's Present to Samoa Not a Gold Mine.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 7.—After the navy department secured the paymaster's safe and other valuables from the wrecks of the American men of war lost in the hurricane at Apia, Samoa, the wrecked treasures were given to the Samoan government. The gift proves to be a white elephant to King Malietoa, for, according to information received here, there are no appliances to raise the wreckage, but articles of value in a San Francisco firm was found who undertook to recover parts of the values, on condition that they were to be sold in San Francisco and the proceeds divided equally between the wreckers and the Samoans. When the wreckage was ready to ship to the United States, the collector of customs at San Francisco held it must pay duty and the treasury department sustained that opinion.

A close computation shows the duty involved would exceed the sum which can be realized from the sale of the wreckage. King Malietoa is not particularly grateful for the present made to his people by the United States government.

Anarchists Delay Mail Wagons.

CHICAGO, Nov. 9.—Anarchists yesterday defied the authority of the United States, and District Attorney Gilchrist is today preparing to proceed against the ring-leaders. During the anarchist parade yesterday the drivers of two United States mail wagons were delayed by the anarchists and riots were narrowly averted in each case by the prompt action of citizens.

them under the seat we can climb in and drive off—"

"To the end of the world—to the very rim of it, my hero."

"She pulled the gems from her ears, hair and bosom and handed them to Peter, who received them with a low bow. Next she searched in her pocket and drew out a tiny key. Peter unlocked the case, and, having carefully tested the diamonds inside, locked it again, handed the key, touched his hat, and walked off toward the door-cart.

"My dearest lady," I began, as soon as we were alone between the high walls, "if the devotion of a life—"

"Her bare arm crept into mine. "There is a little time left for us in which to be happy. Year after year I have marked off the annals; day by day I have watched the dial. I saw my sisters married, and my sisters' daughters; and still I waited. Had a man to love her and tend her, but none had such a man as I would have chosen for you. They were none like you, my prince."

"No, I dare say not."

"Oh, but my heart is not so cold. Take my hand—it is firm and strong; touch my lips—they are burning—"

"A low whistle sounded at the top of the lane. As I took her hands I pushed her back, and, turning, ran for my life. I suppose that as I ran I counted 40, and then the sound of her feet patterning at my heels. She must have run like a demon, for I was less than 10 yards ahead when Peter caught my wrist and pulled me up on to the back seat of the dog cart. And before George could set the horse going her hand clutched at the fly on which my feet rested. It missed its mark, and she never got near enough again. But for half a minute I looked into that horrible face following us and working with silent rage; and for half a mile at least I heard the patter of her feet in the darkness behind. Indeed, I can hear it now.—Q., in S. F. Argonaut.

G. A. R. Members Must Not Parade in Uniform With the Confederate Flag.
