LAMB CREEP.

LAMB CREEP. The frame can be made of light iron or 2 by 3 scantling. The two posts (P) each have a book top and bottom for hauging the wire netting on, making it convenient for moving. The netting should be thirty inches high. The posts are hoosed with iron at the top and cased at the bottom. The creeps (A) are twenty-four inches high and are shown in the engraving to be of disproportionate width hetween the rollers, which should be set from six to eight or ten inches agart according to the breed. The rollers (R) turn on iron splices, or inch gas pipe answers the purpose if propor inch gas pipe answers the purpose if prop-erly set so as to allow of revolution. The ends of the slide should be thin plate iron which can be easily moved up and down in the slits in the posts. When you want to bring out a lot of early ram or wether lambs for the fall or Christmas shows no time should be

Fattening Ford to Fill Up Cutil Corn Is ly?

The more hopeful outlook for the future production of pork in this country is occasioned by the recent removal of restrictions in Europe, which beretofore have prevented the exportation of Ameri-

In such high estimate as a crop to feed pigs is by reason of the fact that it is tween the uprights will be sufficient, and from eight to ten inches wide will meet earlier than corn. Again, the case and the demands of all other breeds. When simplicity of pea cultivation, its excelsufficiently large to fill the different lent fattening qualities and its natural spaces the youngsters will be fit to wean; adaptation to most conditions of soil all meanwhile the ewes cannot force them- make sufficent inducement to commend its cultivation to those interested in cheap pork production. In selecting a soil for pea culture a light loam and low muck should be avoided. Prepare the ground as early in the spring as it will work light and friable.

The ground best adapted for growing the pea is where corn, potatoes or other hoed crops were grown the previous year. The variety most largely grown for this purpose is the "Small White Canada." The pea weevil, so disastrous to this grain in former years, has mysteriously disappeared from this section. This adds much to the profit and certainty of its cultivation.

Sow with a drill at the rate of two bushels per acre. After sowing, the ground should be well rolled down, the small stones being pressed into the soil and the surface left smooth and uniform. These methods will greatly fa-cilitate the work of harvesting, which should be done with the old fashioned wooden revolving rake instead of the slow and tedious method of pulling the vines with the scythe. With a good stendy horse commence to rake on the side of the field where the harvester can proceed exactly opposite the direction in which the pea is always found to be leaning or lodged. Returning, rake over the same ground, removing each troughs and feed inside and creep in the gavel, or raking sufficient to pull the center of the fold should at once be undisturbed vines remaining under them. A person following with a fork is then able to roll the raking one side. ed cake, peas or oats, and when satisfied giving room for another "bout." In this manner six acres or more can easily be harvested in a day.

After two or three days of favorable weather the peas can be stacked in readiness for feeding. Of course they can be drawn under cover, afterward thrashed and the vines fed to horses and sheep the least offensive smell seems at once to disgust them. In the first place they disgust them.
