MAJOR MAGONE MOVING.

Major Magone, the pioneer of Grant county, who is now walking back to the World's Fair, is rapidly moving along, having completed more than half the trip, and in excellent condition to complete his journey. The following is what the Rawlins Republican has to say of him:

"Major Joseph Magone, an old gentleman over eighty years of age, traveling on foot from John Day, Oregon, to Chicago, arrived in Rawlins Saturday evening and remained over Sunday. The old man's hair and beard are as white as icy snow, and with the exception of his strength, he appears to be fully an old man. He left home July 4th and since that time he has averaged about twenty-seven miles per day. He expects to make the entire trip in ninety days."

"The one wish of the old man's life seems to be to build a school building in his own county in Oregon, where the young may be educated at home."

"At the head of a small company he emigrated to Oregon forty-five years ago, and after this trip and a visit to the World's Fair, he will probably write a book. He is bright, intelligent and would talk an arm off a man in a surprisingly short time. The major left for the East early Monday morning."

LUTHER BENSON NOT DEAD.

Our esteemed Western exchange, the Heppner (Oregon) Gazette, has an editorial on the death of Luther Benson. The publishers have been unfaithful. Luther is still alive and has taken the Kelley treatment—but nevertheless he gets a "j" on, occasionally.—Brownsville (Ind.) Record.

Well, such is life. This is another one of the junior editor's errors, yet possibly if Luther should happen to read our editorial it might be the means of his reform, and should such be the case we would certainly never regret having written it.

ALTHOUGH it is said congress did very little during the last session, yet it disposed one bill that reflects credit upon it, and one that should secure the praise of every job printing establishment in the land. The bill mentioned, is the one introduced by Owen Scott, congressman from Illinois, making it unlawful for the government to furnish printed envelopes and practically no additional cost over the plain stamped ones. So now when you want envelopes with the return card on the corner you will have to go to the printing press for them. Notwithstanding the fact that the government has completed with the job presses of the country in this particular for a long time, yet do you see any more justice in it than should they manufacture and sell a full dress suit, or a silk plug hat at cost?

The tenth annual catalogue of the Oregon Normal School has just been issued, from which we note the fact that the professional department of the school has been greatly strengthened; also that three new names have been added to the faculty this year: that of Professor Getz a graduate of the Millersville, Penn., State Normal School; of Miss Alice S. Priest, a graduate of Cornell University; and of Miss Ayers, a graduate of the Northwestern Conservatory of Music The Mouth Normal has from time to time been strengthened and builded up until today it is one of the leading schools in the state.

WASHINGTON was formerly known as clam-diggers, but now since they have gotten out of their slow, easy-going ways, there was at once a demand for a new sobriquet for the state, and in answer to this demand Washington has been christened by the unanimous vote of the state officials, the press and the people, "The Evergreen State." This name is very applicable and in time will become as popular and closely allied as is "The Empire State" with New York. Success to "The Evergreen State."

The democrats of Oregon have been talking combination with the people's party ever since the campaign opened, as they thought fusion feasible. But here comes the people's party with the adoption of resolutions opposing fusion with any person or party. So now the democrats will be compelled to make the fight alone, regarding everyone outside the fold as their common enemy, with the motto, "no fuses, no friends."

The first carload of this year's grain received in Tacoma was shipped from Eastern Oregon, from which the Tacoma News is led to remark that "notwithstanding the great damage that has been done to the wheat crop in the grain belt in Eastern Oregon and Washington, the yield will be about as large as it was last year." Now while we think this a little over-rated, yet such a surprise in store for the farmers would be a welcome one.

The Tacoma News, which affects to know all about the labor problem, says that "organized labor is a comparatively new social force." Labor was comparatively and aggressively in and a powerful social and political factor in England for many centuries. The News is one of these democratic papers which indulge in a great deal of guessing about politics and government.—Review.

MANY persons in Heppner assert that the artesian well will never supply sufficient amount of water for the water works, or even stand the test soon to be given it, because the water does not rise to the surface and overflow, thus giving an artesian water. While these assertions may possibly be correct, yet the cause upon which they are based is a very poor one, for this well might be supplied with a vein that would supply the greatest amount of water ever desired here, and still it would be impossible for it to overflow unless its reservoir was located higher than the surface level of the well. Thus you see you can tell nothing of the strength of the vein by the height the water rises in the well.

ANY man of business principles must certainly entertain supreme contempt for the man who has his paper marked "fused," which he could with three minutes exertion, reach the office where the paper is printed, and order the paper stopped in person. It is often used as a ruse to avoid the payment of accrued subscription. In any event, it is an insubstantial procedure, not creditable to the subscriber, no more than it is fair to the publisher.

JAMES L. CORBETT states to a newspaper reporter that he will retire from the prize ring after he has won, and John L. Sullivan. However, the Gazette is prompted to suggest to Jim that he may have a strong incentive to do so in a very few rounds.

It is said with the beautiful climate and clear atmosphere of the region east of the Cascades little fear need be experienced from a visitation of cholera so much for Eastern Oregon.

THERE is very little betting in Heppner, on next week's proposed "scrap," so far, as very few persons are admirers of Corbett to that extent. Odds so far are about 4 to 3 in favor of John L.

THE Metropolitan opera house of New York city, the largest in the United States, if not the world, was almost totally destroyed by fire last Saturday morning, a loss of $500,000.

A HARRISON campaign badge is coming out with the following clever motto: "Proclaim the greatest and noblest page of our English and people's history."

CHOLERA is coming at a very rapid rate, and no one knows where it will stop. But with the proper quarantine and sanitary regulations it may be confined to a small limit.

NANCY HANES has lowered her record to 2364. This achievement was accomplished on the famous Independence site track.

HEPPNER merchants should not lose sight of the fact that judicious advertising in the pole that reaches the trade.

THE Sullivan-Corbett mill grinds next Wednesday. Heppner will doubtless receive a report of the same by rounds.

AN EXCHANGE says, "There is no poetry in Nancy Hanes' name." May be not, but her feet are full of it, just the same.

HON. W. R. ELLIS INTERVIEWED. What he has to say regarding his home county to an Oregonian Reporter.

From the Oregonian.
Hon. W. R. Ellis, of Heppner, enroute from the second congressional district, is at the Prokios. Mr. Ellis is still walking with crutches, as the result of the stage runaway five days before our state election. He has hopes, however, of being able to walk without crutches in a short time, as the fracture has almost healed and gives him but little pain.

Speaking of affairs in Eastern Oregon, Mr. Ellis said that the crop outlook, owing to the continued dry weather, was not very favorable. The wheat yield will be below the average.

"The hay crop, however," said he "will be good, and cattle, horses and sheep are doing fine. Stock is looking better than it has for years. Farmers are paying more attention to stock-raising, and instead of trusting too much to Providence or good luck, they have about come to the conclusion that it is the safest policy to assist Providence a little. To this end they are making preparations for the winter—building sheep sheds, etc., and laying in a sufficient supply of feed to meet any exigency. More attention is also being paid to the growing of alfalfa, as it is always a sure crop and gives a heavy yield. Alfalfa along the river and creek bottoms on a watershed is in fact a practice in use three times a year."

"Indications point to quite a boom in the opal crop in Grant county. Some magnificent specimens of this valuable stone are being found, and the value of these discoveries is just beginning to be appreciated. Too many mines are lost, however, until the industry is reduced to a few simple and improved implements are used, it cannot be a very profitable one."

We do not hesitate to guarantee them every time, and we stand ready to refund the purchase price, if satisfactory results do not follow their use. These medicines have won their great popularity purely on their merits. Nisquam-Johnson Drug Co.

A Pretty Purpse.
A beautifully illustrated and charmingly bound edition of Longfellow's "Evangeline," the most popular long poem ever published by an American author, and one of the most famous poems in the language, just published in a pretty purpse for book-lovers. It is in large type, numerous and excellent illustrations, very fine and heavy paper, gilt edges, remarkably handsome cloth binding, with gilt title and ornaments. No illustrated edition has ever before been published at less than $1.50, and that is about what you might "guess" the price of this to be, but it isn't—it sells for only 25 cents plus 6 cents for postage, if by mail. This covers only the actual cost of manufacture by the BOSTON publisher's object being, not profit but to show the book-loving millions what he can do. His publications are not sold by dealers, but only direct, and advantage over 50 pages, a literary curiosity in its way, is sent for a 2-cent stamp. Every home in the land ought to have a copy of this Evangeline, so charmingly beautiful, as a poem, as a collection of artistic illustrations, and as a proof of the author's skill and art. Address, John B. Alden, Publisher, 27 Rose St., New York.

Quantity of Sheep Dips—important Evidence.
FINESS BROS. & CHILDS. Wool Commission Merchants, 117 Federal St., Boston, Mass., write date Feb. 1892: "We are very much opposed to any dip which will injure or stain the staple, and we know there are many such in present use. We have frequently had manufacturers complain that they could not secure wools on account of the dip which they used upon the sheep. Of course we are very familiar with the Cooper Sheep Dip, and know its good qualities by practical tests a many times over. We have for many years seen it used with good results in different parts of California."
