He arrived on the 4 p. m. train yesterday, and proceeded with the committee by steamer Regulator this morning to meet the delegations at the Cascades from Portland and beyond.

INJURED BUT NOT AVENGED.—A few days ago an old gentleman came down from a certain locality in the mountains and proceeded to bowl up to about one hundred and fifty degrees Fahrenheit. The organ to feel hilarious and began himself into a dive run by a son of Ham. Here he got into intimate relations with one of the inmates, who de- sired a pecuniary return for attentions that were a substitute for affections. In some way he objected to this purchasing friendship with all his worldly wealth, $25 in cash, and a disengagement result- ed. The female produced a knife, and proceeded to an ocular demonstration of the fact that she was about to cut an anatomy into a multitude of fragments. The mental shock produced by this piece of savagery caused him to depart in peace, and would being cut into and mangled. He left his usual fortune and received in its place a bit of experience.

The transaction is probably an equitable one, but the experience will not be taken at the bank, hence all is sorrow.—Pendleton Tribune.

A Good Cow Too.—The editor of the Fossil Journal is troubled with some of the ills to which flesh is heir, and of these is a cow which he desires to sell. Hear him: "Owing to ill health I will sell at my residence in town, range 21, according to government survey, one plus, raspberry-colored cow, age eight years. She is of undoubted courage, and gives milk frequently. To a man who does not fear death in any form, she would be a great boon. She is very much attached to her home at present by means of a stay chain, but she will be sold to anyone who will agree to use her right. She is one-fourth short horn and three-fourths byena. I will also throw in a double-barreled shotgun which goes with her. In May she generally goes away some where for a week or two with waddy legs. Her name is Rose, and I would prefer to sell her to a non-resident."

A TWO HUNDRED DOLLAR PRIZE OFFER.—Frank Leslie's Weekly, ever enterprising, offers $200 to the subscriber who guesses nearest to the plurality which receives. This means the plurality of the popular vote, and not the electoral vote. Frank Leslie's Weekly contains nearly every week great front-page cartoons, which are quite equal those of its rival contemporary, the Judge. In this issue the new events of the week in its highest possible artistic manner, and is giving also the latest pictures of foreign events. It is a want that no one who reads in the country does. Frank Leslie's weekly is sent for five weeks for 50 cents. This includes the privilege of guessing on the plurality.

WON THE SUIT.—Ed. C. Allen got 10 from Peasaud Tuesday evening and left yesterday morning for Portland and Eugene, remaining at the latter place all night the Grand Lodge, K. of P. Miss Allen conveys on the 11th inst. Mr. Allen reports that the famous Black Bute mining suit has been decided in his favor, and that he will proceed immediately to put in machinery on the claim. It is, without doubt, the richest mine in Grant county, and Ed. C. Allen is good for a cool million out of the Black Bute.

DIDN'T WANT TO APPEAR.—Edward Hahn the bus driver who attempted to cut Miss Sadie Quiner's throat, was unable to appear in the police court today, so the case did not come up. Miss Quiner does not want to prosecute Hahn, she is coming to the ears of Deputy Prosecuting Attorney Lafferty, he ceased her to be detained in the city jail as a witness. She claims that she does not know who cut her, but of course she does.—Telegram.

THE SPEAKING.

Hon. J. N. Dolph Addressed a Large Crowd of Heppner's

CITIZENS ON WEDNESDAY EVENING.

He Commends the Course of the Present Administration and Reviews the Past History of the Political Parties.

On Wednesday evening, a goodly portion of Heppner's citizens greeted Senator J. N. Dolph at the opera house. Previous to the speaking, the Heppner band discoursed sweet music, the anvils thundered and bonfires burned at convenient places on the main thoroughfare.

Mr. Dolph was introduced by Congressman-elect Ellis, and without much preamble plunged into an address which occupied full two hours. He reviewed the Lodge bill which he said he voted for and had no apologies to make for doing so. That it only gave to all law-abiding citizens, whether white or black, full and just franchise, and that it added to nor took away none of the privileges granted by the great constitution, and that it never was a "force bill" in any sense. The constitution in its preamble set forth certain fundamental principles, which were elaborately clothed in the great document itself, and that in the South the constitution was a dead letter. All the republican party wanted was a chance to vote unimpeded and to have their votes counted, and this right they were willing to accord every American citizen, regardless of political faith.

The last two administrations were discussed. Sparks, the land commissioner, who arranged every settler as dishonest, was sifted to a finish. He spoke of the blotching of business on June 30, 1888, $50,000,000 entries remained neglected. This vast amount of business, neglected as it was, called for action. A democratic house took the matter up, but the senate would not concur in it. It was claimed that this branch of business should be looked after without any instruction from congress. Then followed, in an effort to remedy the general mismanagement, the dismissal of Sparks.

"Of the millions and canal grants made in the history of our country, more than half of them were made before '61," said the senator. Those made previous to that time were in the rich land districts of the East, where one acre is worth more than twenty-five in the West. The country had gained more than it had lost by giving to corporations, lands to encourage the building of trans-continental lines. Mr. Dolph modestly claimed the honor of starting the foreign market between Walla Walla and Portland. He refused to refund to the settler the unjust ex-cess charge of $1.25 per acre, had been opposed by democratic senators, to his astonishment, and it was doubtful if they ever allowed it to come to the surface again.

He discussed free coinage of silver from a republican standpoint, but brief-ly saying that he had not the patience to talk about something so plainly out of reason—something that would be detrimental even to the mine owners themselves. In the matter of money, the South had surrendered to Cleveland, and there was a big difference between a land that would have silver coinage, so that it would be equal to gold, dollar for dollar, and one that contemplated that a settlement of this kind should be made by international agreement.

The senator's "sermon" was made by stopping the redemption of bonds, and when the money was used, it was to take up a lot of non-interest bearing indebtedness. This action was made further reprehensible by loaning, without cost, to banks, over $100,000,000. Congress finally interfered, for the business of the country was beginning to show the effects of so much money being hoarded up.

The senator said that Protection and Liberty were the principles of the government during the '60's, and that it had continued as a principle of the republic an party from those times to the present. The confederacy advocated free trade and slavery.

He spoke of the constitutionality of a protective tariff, and that any assertions to the contrary were not even given a passing notice by the thinking people of the country, much less the jurists.

Free wool and other free raw materials, with protected manufactures, he punctured without stint, and closed his speech with regrets that he could not talk longer.

Senator Dolph was frequently greeted with cheers during his remarks. He had heard of other political faiths than republican, who listened respectfully and attentively throughout the discourse.

Right or Wrong.

Which will ye have? It does seem as if some folks prefer to have the last condition of the liver rather than the first. They perpetually dose themselves with purgatives totally without virtue as a substitute of liver trouble. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is the successful candidate for the people's choice, and yet, popular and well known as it is, there are unfortunately who keep on trying the drastic remedies of former days. It is the intelligent opinion of the public that the well known and long tried properties of the Bitters appeal. Reason should be guided by experience in the matter of medication. "The best guide to our feet is the lamp of experience," said a great patriot of the early revolutionary period, and the exclamation is pregnant with truth. For over a third of a century the Bitters daily has met with the endorsement of people suffering from liver complaint, malaria, constipation, rheumatism, debility and troubles accompanied by dyspepsia. Later it has been declared itself and been thoroughly approved as a remedy for "la grippe."

The World Enriched.

The facilities of the present day for the production of everything that will conduce to the material welfare and comfort of mankind are almost unlimited, and when Syrup of Figs was first produced the world was enriched with the only perfect laxative known, as it is the only remedy which is truly pleasing and refreshing to the taste and prompt and effectual to cleanse the system gently in the spring time or, in fact, at any time and the better it is known the more popular it becomes. 530 543 1 v.
