READ CUR PLAN.

For several years past competitions of an instructive order have been offered by reputable Royal society exhibition of 1891. The research houses and manufacturers in England with the object of increasing their sales and Shropshire finds muck favor in the westeresting their customers in their respective goods. These contests, on account of inquestioned fairness displayed in conducting them, have interested the test people of Great Britain. Believing that competitions offered by a manufacturing concern such as ours, and conducted in the and honorable manner, would excite universal interest among the intelligent people of the nifed states and Canada, our Company has decided to offer a prize competition in which our reconstruction is to make it strictly fair and impartial. The intention is to satisfy every one entering this competition that they have been duly credited with the pesition which their efforts have earned for them. We are sure that this class of a price contest will receive the approval of parents and all those who have the instruction of the young at heart. The prices to be awarded in this competition will conside ratirely of articles of sufficient value to be appreciated by every person receiving one as a hir reward for the efforts put forth by them. Our intention is to divide the amount to be given away in prizes, varying in value from eight to one hundred dollars each. and we enter into an honorable agreement with those entering this competition to distribute fairly Two Thousand Durlans in prizes.

The Shropshire's best point is probably that it yields a large quantity of good mutton. But its woolly merits are worth counting on as well. The average weight of a fleece of the improved Shropshire is seven pounds of long, not overfine wool, which pays very well. In the second picture is a unique ani-are the leardiest domestic breed in the world, also the most intelligent and canning. The phrase, "as silly as a sheep," does not apply to them. Their mutton is of choice flavor, and they can take care of themselves almost equal to a Texas steer. The fleece, while very long, is light in weight and rather coarse in texture.

A. CLEAVER,

Breeding from Crippled Marcs. In answer to a question from The Rural New Yorker on this subject J. S. Crosby writes from Greenfield, Mich .: In my lumbering operations in this state I find it quite difficult to get such draft horses as I need. We imported from Canada and sent directly to the woods about forty head of grade mares, Shires and Clydes. They had been bred in Canada and were half, three-quarter and seven-eighth bloods, etc. All purand cost from $175 to $240 per head there. We put them in the woods at work at the heavy business of lumber-

When we have used them two or three years, if they become injured or debili-tated, we send them to our farm and put them on grass until they are in perfect health, although not sufficiently strong for the heavy work in the woods. They are then bred to the stallion and used about the farm for light work until when they are again turned loose and allowed to run until they drop their foals. They require no treatment except a run at the grass and a little condition powder as a touic.

We have found that it is almost impossible to get a mare with the heaves or if she has flesh wounds or other injuries that prevent her from doing hard work, she may be in just as good a shape to breed as though she did not have these wounds or injuries. It is our experience that one seldom sees on the colts from perfectly sound and strongly bred stallions from the Shire or Clyde breeds any blemishes like sidebones, spavins or other troubles that cause lameness. We have never had any unsatisfactory colts from the shove mentioned treatment of the breeding question. One is perfectly safe in breeding mares to perfectly sound stallions with properly shaped feet and leg bones. Of course the mares must not have blemishes from such causes as ringbone, sidebone, spavins or other like blemishes and we would never advise breeding a mare that has the heaves.

She Can Farm. Connecticut farmers, who continually emoan that the old state is used up for farming, may learn something to their advantage by consulting pretty Miss Bertha E. Weed, who makes money tilling a tough little farm in the town of North Canton. Miss Weed superintends all the operations on her place, is up with the sun every day, raises stock, sells milk and butter and has a big yard full of some of the best fowls in the state. What is still more wonderful, she has learned how to make money in the risky business of raising spring chickens for market. She makes a small fortune yearly selling eggs. Some of them are extraordinarily large. She presented a couple of them to the editor of the Hartford Courant this week. They weighed half a pound apiece, and are the biggest hens' eggs reported in a the state this season.—New York Sun.

It there were more small sized but well fattened capons sent to the market people would buy them. Not every one cares to buy a bird of ten or pounds weight. And it is said that the few capous that are raised in New England are usually smaller than the Philadelphia capons, being more frequently made from the smaller breeds. After they are caponized, it costs no more to fatten than any other fowl, but they sell at higher prices, because the market is not well supplied with them --American Cultivator.
