A STARTLING TRUTH.

A large part of the interior trade is going to Pendleton. This may startle you; in fact the truth may hurt, but it is nevertheless one of those business realities which sooner or later will come plump upon us, when, perhaps, it is too late to repair the damage done.

We have taken the pains to investigate as to the cause, or causes, of this unnatural trend of business in that direction. If Pendleton had distance or good roads in her favor it would be easily explained. On the contrary, it is much further from any part of Grant county than Heppner. The road is a rough one and not completed beyond the Grant county line.

The Gazette finds that there are two or three reasons why much of this trade is going to Pendleton. In the first place, the citizens of that little city are actively interested in the mines of Grant county. In other words, it is more or less a mining center, and therefore more and more people are attracted there. Agais, Pendleton can and does accommodate the reliable trade which asks credit. This Heppner does not do, even when it is absolutely safe, though of course our merchants extend courtesies as far as they are financially able.

To hold and increase our trade from the interior, we must be alive to their interests. We cannot hope to do so otherwise. Heppner should accommodate the interior trade at all hazards, and must become more of a mining center to hold her own against her active neighbor, Pendleton.

WAYNE MACVAUGH is doing yeoman service for Cleveland and Stevenson. He is now speaking in New York, and vast audiences are turning out to listen to this man who was recently so prominent in republican ranks. His shots at the G. O. P. are very hot, and the way he broiled Pat Egan and the Tribune in his last speech must have made the minister and the editor somewhat nervous.—Telegram. Yes, he is making republican votes every day.

WE ARE informed that Col. R. A. Miller has withdrawn as a presidential elector, and that Nathan Pierce, one of the people's party candidates for elector, has been endorsed. This is another evidence that the only hope of carrying the country for Cleveland is to vote for Weaver in the republican states.

MORROW county's assessment roll is in the hands of the secretary of state, ready for the annual turning over by the board of equalization. Our total taxable property foots up $1,916,737; exemptions and debts amount to $799,385, leaving for taxation $1,117,352.

Mrs. LEASE, the active lady populist, has come out square for Harrison, now that she considers every Weaver vote one for Cleveland. Her Southern tour converted her.

POLITICS is warming up now, and most of the big guns in both parties are on the stump.

ADVANCE IN PAPER. We publish herewith Messrs. Blake McCall & Co.'s circular, announcing an advance in paper.

TO THE TRADE. Owing to the threatened visitation of cholera to our country, state and government authorities are enforcing very stringent regulations in regard to the landing of foreign cargo; in fact, some steamship lines are refusing to carry them as freight, so that the supply is limited and the price rapidly advancing. We have received letters from many manufacturers announcing a great advance in all the raw materials entering into the manufacture of paper; they generally withdraw all former quotations, and are unsettled as to what future prices may be. Chloride of lime, which is used in bleaching all grades of paper, has advanced from two and a quarter to six and ten cents a pound. Until the dread of cholera in this country is over, rags allowed to be freely imported, and there is a moderate demand for chemicals, indicators are that paper prices will be higher and subject to many fluctuations.

We are under the necessity, therefore, of withdrawing all prices heretofore quoted on all classes of paper until further notice. We assure our customers, however that our prices will not be higher than necessary under the conditions of the market existing at the time quotations are made.

Yours respectfully,
BLAKE, McCALL & CO.
PORTLAND, Or., Oct. 1, 1892.

THE DAILY

THE CREAMERY MAN TO THE FARMER

The Creamery Man Tells the Farmer Why He Should Sell the Cream.
Remember, the time to make money on packed butter is past now, since nearly all the creameries operate during the entire year.

Some farmers do not sell cream, simply because the druggery connected with butter making on the farm falls to the lot of the ever patient woman, whose health and wishes are often not consulted or considered.

Every time and place we get cream we expect the cream gatherer to measure our cream correctly, in inches, in his cream bucket, and fill it thoroughly and then fill a test tube to the mark in the glass. The cream gatherer is the middle man between the farmer and the creamery, and we must place as much confidence in him as the farmer does, and we invite the farmers to interest themselves and assure themselves that the work is rightly done. Remember that the test taken must exactly represent all the cream you send at one time. It will not do to give two or three more buckets of cream and only have a test taken from one bucket, but a test must be taken from each bucket, or the cream all poured in one vessel and a test taken from there after thoroughly mixing.

Many farmers think they should sour their cream before sending it to the creamery, thinking that because sour cream tests higher than sweet they will lose by sending it while sweet. This is a serious mistake. You have no idea what you are losing by not selling your cream sweet at all times, summer and winter. We can count more pounds of butter at the end of a month for you if you sell sweet cream during the month than we can if you sell the cream sour from the same amount of milk.

Now, in order to get that desirable sweet cream you can make an effort to quickly place the new, warm milk in cans when the air is very cold, or, better still, in cans surrounded or submerged by water, no matter how cold, so long as the milk does not freeze, and you will notice that your cream will rise very rapidly to the top, and will all be up in twelve hours, and often less, and you will have twice as many inches of cream on the same amount of milk as you did in the "good old way." Of course it is not so solid a cream, but you have it all out of the milk, and since it is not so solid as the other it will not test so much per inch, but you can well accept a lower test since you have the increased number of inches from the same amount of milk.

We can assure you that it will pay you well to follow this plan entirely; besides we can then temper and acidify the cream to the churning point and be able to make a superior quality of butter which will command top prices, and which, if we can accomplish, we can assure you will benefit you accordingly. But remember we cannot make "gilt edge" from poor cream.

I wish every farmer understood about the testing of cream. Many think that it is not easily understood, but on the contrary it is very simple, and, as I said before, the test taken must be an exact representation of all the cream sent at one time.

At the end of each month we pay for all cream received during the month.—Open Letter to Hoard's Dairyman.

Aerating Milk in Mississippi. We feed no turkeys, etc. Milk should be cool as soon as drawn. At this latitude aerated milk keeps from six to ten hours longer than that not so treated. If the water be of proper temperature (55 degs.), and the machine reduces the temperature to within 2 or 4 degs. of that of the water, as our aerator does. We have successfully delivered morning's milk in the afternoon, and the reverse without the use of ice. If a full supply of water at 55 or 60 degs. can be had, no ice is needed for butter production in this climate when an aerator is used.—Professor Connel in Rural New Yorker.

Dairy and Creamery. All milk should be aerated, but particularly when the cows are fed on roots and ensilage.

The Rural New Yorker pays its respects to one department of its home city government thus: "There is probably no greater official fancy than the milk inspection of New York city under the direction of the board of health." This designates particularly New York, but we may include in the statement nearly all the other large cities of the Union.

A man in South Dakota advertises to furnish rennet, with instructions how to use it, so that farm people will be able to make cheese for their own use at home and also for sale.

At every place where cows are milked and where cheese and butter are made the Babcock tester should be part of the equipment. There are improved models now offered for sale among dairy and creamery furnishings that render the testing easy and simple.

On an average a little more than ten pounds of good milk will make one pound of good cheese.

In England the best Jersey butter costs more than the best Danish butter, the Jersey product bringing fifty cents a pound throughout the year. But more people in America than in England can afford to eat the best Jersey butter.

The poor dairymen of Canada! At a dairymen's convention in Ontario not long since the members unanimously adopted resolutions asking the government to "give an export bonus" of two cents a pound on all butter sent to Great Britain. This is the paternal government idea with a vengeance. What would be thought of dairymen in the United States who should make such a request?

FALSE ALARM.—Yesterday morning a small boy came riding into lower Heppner at a break-neck speed and informed the first citizen he could find that a man had been thrown from his horse, down below the Clark farm, and was supposed to have been killed by the fall. Several Heppnerites at once hastened to the scene where they found an unknown man lying face downward on the ground, and his horse grazing on the hill near. On awakening him he informed them that he had not been thrown from his horse, but had turned him out to graze, while he, himself, had lain down for a rest. Several empty whisky bottles on the ground near by told the remainder of the story, and the parties returned to Heppner, though it is safe to say if they ever again hear of a man of this description dead by the roadside, they will have to be thoroughly convinced of the fact before they will go to the rescue.
