National Republican Ticket.

FOR PRESIDENT,
BENJAMIN HARRISON, of Indiana.

FOR VICE-PRESIDENT, WHITELAW REID,
of New York.

FOR PRESIDENTIAL ELECTORS,
J. F. CAPLES, of Portland.
H. B. MILLER, of Grant's Pass.
G. M. IRWIN, of Union.
D. M. DUNNE, of Portland.

A CLOSE CONTEST.

Reports from the Eastern states show that the contest in New York, Indiana, New Jersey and Connecticut is very close. Both democrats and republicans claim the states mentioned.

From the tone of the press dispatches, it would indicate that the republicans would carry New York without a doubt. There seems to be little said about the "Hoosier" state, and it would seem to be exceedingly doubtful, though the republicans have, with but few exceptions, carried that state when it was essential to their success. On this more than anything else, the republicans of Oregon are looking for the electoral vote of Indiana to fall their way, though if they carry New York it will not be needed. And too, they can do without New York if they can carry Connecticut and Indiana.

There appears too, a disposition on the part of the citizens of New Jersey to place it in the list of republican states. New Jersey is getting to be more and more a manufacturing state, and is materially benefited by the McKinley bill, hence the tendency on the part of New Jersey to change her political complexion.

The people's party will, perhaps, get an occasional elector here and there, but will not make the showing that even the most conservative of both old parties were willing to concede them three weeks ago. Neither the republicans nor people's party will carry an electoral vote in the Southern states. The conditions down there remain about the same, the spectre of possible negro supremacy steadily confronting them, and the democrats will roll up the usual majority. And too, the negro vote of the south is divided, as many, perhaps, voting the democratic ticket as any other. From the point of gratitude, the negro owes everything to the republican party, but no one can blame him for voting with the "powers that are," at this present day and age. The obligation that he can never repay is neglected in looking after present needs and comforts. Again, who can blame him?

The democrats are making a mess of matters in Oregon. First they withdrew Bob Miller and endorsed the populist, Nathan Pierce. And this week the national democratic committee have ordered Chairman Murphy, of the state democratic committee, to withdraw the remaining democratic electors in favor of the Weaverites. This matter was made public before it was positively known that it would be agreeable to the candidates for electors, hence their positive refusal to leave the field has thrown everything from the field of disorder into the slough of chaos. Butcher, Colvig and Noland are democrats from principle, and they will not swallow the medicine. The Lord only knows how the matter will be settled. It was a bad stroke of policy, to say the least, to undertake this change at so late a date, which, in Oregon, would be a doubtful expedient under any circumstances. The lack of uniformity in the printing of tickets will bring about a contest anyhow, which should have been avoided, at all hazards. The outlook for the democracy in Oregon is anything but cheerful, and it looks now as though they would lose the nation.

NOT EASILY SCARED.

Hon. Tom Watson, of Georgia, don't scare worth a cent. He is a great champion of the people. At Thomas, Georgia, where the democrats prepared and expected to mob him as they did General Weaver in Macon, a selected bully was sent forward to insult him, and did so. Then Thomas smote him between the eyes with such vehement smiteness, though he is not a man of powerful physical proportions, that the bully went piggle-end-up and scraped the ground in his vicinity with his broken nose and blackened eyes that the contemplated circus failed to fructuate. Had Tom Watson's wife been there, and been hit by an egg thrown by some brute in the crowd, we are certain he would have gone down in that crowd and left one or many persons ready for the coroner. In this respect lies the difference between Watson and Weaver.—Pomeroy's Advance Thought.

WILL VOTE FOR HARRISON.

Mark M. Pomeroy, better known as "Brick," is a people's party man, formerly a democrat, but will vote for Harrison. This is what he says:

"In the state of New York the people's party will this year out no figure what ever. It has no effective organization; no best in its ranks; no leader who is an organizer; no intelligently defined plan of state political campaigns. It has no chance to carry even one township for the people's party, when under organization and work it could carry hundreds. Thus it comes to this, which of the two leading candidates, Harrison or Cleveland, does the independent voter prefer? He can stay at home and thus begin to stagnate, or he can go to the polls and, as a live citizen, help to continue Harrison as president, or help the friends of Cleveland to elect and thus, perchance, install a one-man power. Between Harrison and Cleveland, as one or the other must be elected, we prefer Harrison, the Christian man and gentleman, whose life has been one continual good example from boyhood, to Cleveland the graduate of Buffalo beer saloons and brothels. Every voter has a right to his choice and every man will, or should, vote to please himself first of all."

THE ones who forced General Weaver to the front as candidate of the people's party now realize the mistake they made in heading their ticket with a man who was both a republican and a promoted invader of the South. He would do for the republican states of the northwest, and there run well, but in the south must be forced against a strong undercurrent, older and stronger than himself. He will get a good vote in the South, but a man who had never been in the northern army, or never a presidential candidate, as the candidate of the people's party, have carried West Virginia, North and South Carolina, Georgia, Florida, Alabama, Mississippi and Texas, and would have run equally as well in the west and silver states of the northwest. Such a candidate would never have been assaulted in the South as Weaver and his wife were in Macon and other places in Georgia, and thus forced out of that state and into an ambulance to be carried, instead of opening his way into the very deepest Africa of Southern politics. The nomination of Butler by the national party in 1884 should have served as an eye opener, but it appears to have been a lost lesson. In the game of politics, as in a chessboard, it is wise to see what the support of the piece that is moved. Menwille, congress is the foothold which the people's party must make before they can ever clean up the Augean stable so long occupied by the cattle of the Jewish money destroyers and bond creators and their heartless allies.—Brick Pomeroy's Advance Thought.

WHEN he lived in Kalamazoo, Michigan, five years ago his name was Henry Wilson. He left his wife and children there, and with a Miss Williams, of Buffalo, went gallivanting over the country as a penitentiary to her little swing. When he struck Brooklyn his name had slid around sideways and fell off behind, and he was known as Francis Drake Cornell. He took this cognomen with him to Middletown, Connecticut, and set it to work as organizer in the Holy Trinity church and getter up of the whoopiest singing school and musical pandemonium ever set to wiggling in that state, and flew his bandanna from the puzzen mast of his career till lately, the varnish soaked off and he is wanted to answer for forgery, stealing, bigamy, conversion and nine other offences against the law in Chicago. He will take all his titles with him, and if he can make them all stick to him he will not need many underclothes for some time to come.—Brick Pomeroy's Advance Thought.

THE Gazette does not charge Clerk Morrow with anything disreputable in regard to the printing of tickets, as the Record would have its readers believe. The Gazette does think, however, that lawfully a candidate's name cannot appear but once on the ticket. Mr. Morrow thinks differently, and is backed up by Chairman Murphy, of the state democratic committee, as well as by the attorney general, Geo. Chamberlain, and numerous county clerks. With all this array of talent, it does not make the matter right, yet the Gazette believes that Mr. Morrow is honest in his decision in the matter, and we do not care to be misrepresented. Anyone can see, however, that the democrats have a decided advantage where their elector appears twice on the ballot, and which is decidedly in opposition to Sec. 49, Australian ballot law.

THE prices of tinplate are lower in Great Britain than ever before in the history of the trade. This is due to American competition and to the necessity the foreign manufacturer finds himself of paying the tariff upon shipment to this country. The weekly tinplate report of Liverpool says that 180 mills are idle in Wales and will continue idle until the workmen assent to a reduction of wages.—Chronicle.

CHAIRMAN MURPHY, upon the refusal of the democratic electors to withdraw said: "I shall send a circular to ever democratic organization in the state, notifying them of the national committee's desire and telling them that it meets with the state committee's unqualified indorsement. Individually I want to see the democratic vote of Oregon cast to beat Harrison, and it can only be made effective in that direction by going for Weaver. The national committee recently sent an agent to this state to investigate the situation. It was his report that prompted the committee to issue this request for withdrawal of our ticket."

THE last visit to Pendleton, made by a member of the Gazette force, revealed business houses after business houses unoccupied. If Pendleton is on the high road to become a dazzling city of 15,000, it ought to make a better showing. But Pendleton's merchants are alive. The columns of the interior papers show that they want business, and they are getting considerable trade, which they ought not to have. Let us speak to our best interests. With miles and good roads in our favor, and the best wool market on our coast, we are entitled to all the outside trade of Grant county.

DR. L. P. MULLINX, of Astoria, in speaking of the move to withdraw the democratic electors, gives his idea on the subject as follows: "The situation, gentlemen, is just this," was the doctor's usual introduction to his oft-repeated review. "We cannot help Grover by voting for him, but we can hurt Harrison by voting for someone else. Now to beat the republican party I would vote for the blackest nigger ever born—aye, I would even vote for Mrs. Lease. I am a democrat and have no use whatever for the populists, but if we can use them to beat Harrison, let us use them." Comments are unnecessary.

THE E. O. says that the Gazette admits that Pendleton is getting the trade, and furthermore adds that it ought to have it. The E. O. misconstrues our remarks. Pendleton is getting trade that we ought to have, but Heppner's trade has increased considerably this year over the past and previous years. This is not enough; we deserve it all. There is no better point in the North West for a jobbing house. We have not a vacant house of any kind in Heppner. Can an emileton say as much?

INDIANAPOLIS performed a sad duty yesterday. A woman, whom the people of that city loved and admired, who had left them in health and happiness, had returned wrapped in the embrace of death. They mourned not because she was the wife of the president, but because she was a pure and noble soul. Indianapolis attended the funeral of a woman whose influence was always for the good.—Telegram.

LIEUTENANT FREDERICK SCHWATKA, the Arctic explorer, was picked up on the streets of Portland Wednesday morning, in an unconscious condition. An empty medicine bottle by his side suggests an attempt at suicide. At last accounts he had not recovered consciousness. (His death is mentioned in yesterday's Oregonian.)

IN other late issue, what purported to be a fac simile of the Morrow county ballot for use next Tuesday, proved to be lacking somewhat. The slugs which separated the four groups of electors had been removed, which was not intended. We republish it in this issue verbatim, et literatim, etc.

WE MUST confess that we were not more pleased at the withdrawal of Col. Miller and denied the privilege of voting and if we can make them all stick to him he will not need many underclothes for some time to come.—Brick Pomeroy's Advance Thought.

THE Union Pacific people claim that there are 50,000 bogus tickets in existence, most of them in the hands of scoundrels. It is likely that the Union Pacific has picked these tickets in the hands of brokers at cut rates, and now to get out of it are charging it all to the scoundrels.

BY WITHDRAWING their electors, the democratic party have weakened their organization in this state. But as it's no shingles off anyone's roof but theirs, there should be no kicking on the part of the republicans.
