THE LONGFIELD APPLE

A Fine Semiacid Winter Variety That Is The Longfield apple attracted a great deal of attention at the meeting of the Western New York Horticultural so-

A SECTION OF THE LONGFIELD APPLE. ciety, where it was on exhibition. It is one of the most promising of Russian apples and was highly recommended by Vice President Willard. Pomologist Van Deman, however, thought that western New York growers could grow other sorts of more value, because a red apple sells better than one of the color of the Longfield, which is of a rich golden hue, with a faint blush on the stem end.

A member present did not think it true that a red apple always sells best. and stated that last season some nicely selected Greenings, carefully packed, brought just as much as other sorts having more color. The Longfield is a fine, semiacid winter variety, that is winning much favor among men desirous of growing something better than ordinary grades of fruit for the continually increasing fancy fruit trade of our cities, says Country Gentleman, from which this cut is reproduced.

Single Dahllas.

The growing of dahlias from seed is one of the pleasures of gardening, and the wonder is that the practice is not more universal, since it is attended with so little trouble in proportion to the success attained. A correspondent in The American Agriculturist explains that seed sown in a hotbed or in pans in the house will make good flowering plants by the middle of July: in fact, they come into flower nearly as soon as when the roots are planted out in May The plants should be set in rows three feet apart and a foot apart in the rows, so that if one-half of the plants produce flowers that are not desirable they may be thrown out, and the remainder will amply cover the ground. A great cause of failure in planting dahlias, as with most other flowers, comes from planting too closely. Plants must have room for their perfect development. This rule is generally disregarded, and as many as twenty plants are allowed to occupy the space that is but sufficient for one.

The black fungus or knot, as a rule attacks plum trees growing in grass and neglected. The best preventive for knot is good clean culture, and the best remedy, cutting away of the diseased parts as soon as discovered. As for the curculio there is only one safe plan. Just as soon as this pest begins its operations spread a large sheet prepared for the purpose around each tree and jar it be destroyed. This work must be per-formed daily to insure a full crop. Let those who desire to grow fine crops of plums try this jarring system; if follow. ed up rigidly they will be successful.

NEW WAY TO MAKE MONEY. Beggars Was Are Willing to Take Blows in the Line of Business.

There is a volume at police headquarters, in what may be called the census bureau, which is so rare and valuable that in comparison with it all other books, whether from the presses of Alden or Elzevir, fall into utter insignificance. Curious as it may seem, this book is not so highly prized on account of its age as for its freshness. It deals in a certain way with the census of New York, but its contents are not confined to this city alone. The peculiaritics of certain gentlemen living in Bos-ton, Philadelphin, Chicago and San Francisco, as well as persons resident in London, Paris and other cities in Europe, are set down with great care and at considerable length.

The facts were not gathered in a day, says the New York Mail and Express, but are the result of years of patient investigation. The volume is illustrated and is kept as securely locked up as many of the heroes who figure prominently in its pages. Many of the entries are in the fine Italian hand of Inspector Hyrnes, and are based upon his own experience.

One of the most recent of these refers to a man called John Gaunt. Mr. Gaunt is at present enjoying himself at a well known watering place in the vicinity of New York. Boats leave foot of Twenty-sixth street every day.

The entry rends thus: "New consumption trick. Beggar meets lady and gent out walking. Asks for money. Refused and grows persistent. Gent gives him slight shove and he falls in the gutter. Appeals to lady, who makes gent fork out money. Look out for them."

This entry is perfectly intelligible to those for whose benefit it was made. A detective said that this trick had been worked in this city recently by several individuals with a high degree of success. The perpetrators were artists at the business, and they were assisted by nature in the part they assumed.

The method of operating was to follow a lady and gentleman, especially if the couple seemed to be in a hurry. Alms were solicited, and if forthcoming well and good; if refused enough persistence was shown to exasperate the gentleman to such a pitch as to induce him to shove the fellow away, and it is surprising what a slight amount of force s required to knock one of them into the middle of the street. There the beggar lies, or if he moves at all it is to east an imploring look on the lady. The latter begs her escort to see if the poor man is killed, but a small sum of money quickly brings him to lifealmost as soon as a policeman's club would.

Both parties to the transaction are satisfied. The gentleman has demonstrated to the lady his prowess, and the beggar has a salve for his injuries. The amount of acting which the prostrate beggar indulges in is based entirely on circumstances. If his victim be obdurate he frequently finds it necessary to been spanking. After they had retired groun or mumble something about heart amid the muffled laughter of the chilvestigate the sanitary condition of those who are employed in the rag business The committee submitted its report, denouncing the rag business as highly injurious to the health of those engaged The rags are picked by children, over seventy-five per cent. of whom suf-fer from contagious diseases, and less than half attain a mature age.

An Enemy Baffled. There is an enemy with whom thouso as to shake down all fruits that have been stung, as well as all the curculios. Both insects and stung fruits can then stantly battling with ineff-ctual weapons. not by constipation alone, but also by sick headaches, yellowness of the skin and cychalls, nausea, furred tongue captured one of the boys and to judge from the outeries he made the spanking was thoroughly effective. But the mother was somewhat surprised at the conduct of the second sufferer. Instead of sobbing, he yelled protestations in a strong voice and at last swore roundly. The mother, astonished, jumped up and, letting him fall from her knee to the floor exclaimed, tenderly:

"Is that you, hubby?"

Overwhelmed with confusion, he ad mitted that it was her "hubby" sho had been spanking. After they had retired amid the muffled laughter of the childer, who were trying to restrain it by stuffing pillows into their mouths, explanations followed. He too had heard the noise and with the same object in view as his wife, had gone to the nursery, where he had been caught by his spouse.
