Conductor French and family returned from their outing at Hood River last evening. In reply to an interrogation, the veteran railroadman informed our reporter that it was true that he was at present taking life rather easy, though he desired to inform the editor of the Record that, as yet, he had not tendered any resignation or dissolved all relations with the U. P. company. The outing four he reports a complete success.

Harry Warren and Ike Ennis who left here Tuesday last, on bicycles for Portland, were registered at the St. Charles Thursday, so they evidently got through to Portland, however, it is reported that the novelty of the ride had worn off when they reached that point. Don't forget to ask them about it when they return.

Joe Woolery was in from Lone Friday. He says as much grain will be shipped from Lone this week as during the good season of two years ago. The acreage, however, is much larger this year than ever before. The grain is not first grade, being slightly shriveled. The Jordan Fork country will ship more grain than any other section near Lone.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. D. Fell returned from Hood River Saturday after an eight-day outing. They report a grand time up around old Mount Hood. The snow capped Mount Adams with her ice caves and scenery. They say that the trip is over less expensive than an outing in our far-famed Blues.

To DAKOTA WITH HORSES.—C. S. Dustin, formerly a legislator from Harney and Grant counties, came in from Long Creek Wednesday, accompanied by C. E. Dustin, with twenty-head of horses. On the Tutuwillow road, about one and one-half miles southwest of Pendleton, barbed wire fences were encountered, and ten of the horses suffered more or less damage. Three were so badly mangled that they had to be left behind. The others were doctored up when they reached this city, and this morning the shipment started over the Northern Pacific. It goes to Dakota. C. E. Dustin is an old-time devotee of the art preservative, and made a pleasant call at this office. He says that in the Long Creek country crops might be called a total failure, and the people might have to rely on Utah county for bread. There will not be any drought to winter the stock.—East Oregonian.

DEATH OF A PIONEER.—Jas. W. Depuy, an old settler, died this morning at 3:30 aged 83 years and 18 days. Mr. Depuy has been suffering much for some time past with stomach trouble which was the cause of his death. For some days he has been confined to his bed, but not till yesterday was it considered that his case was a hopeless one and that death was near. Mr. Depuy was born in Auburn, New York, July 20, 1830. In 1851 he came to the coast and has resided here ever since. The old gentleman was good-hearted and loyal to his friends. He formerly kept hotel in Heppner, and no one was ever turned away hungry whether they had money or not. He was a member of the Baptist church of this city, where his funeral will occur today at 3 o'clock, p. m.

HUNTING FOR A HOME.—Some strangers stopped over in Senator Blackman's yard a few days ago, evidently seeking a new location. It was a big swarm of bees, and they were provided with a home but apparently were not satisfied and soon left, coming over in Johnny Hager's yard in a tree. They were again "hived" and at last accounts seemed contented. Where the visitors came from, is a mystery, as there are no stands of bees in the neighborhood that the Gazette knows anything about. Perhaps they are from a "wild" swarm up in the timber.

HARDMAN JUSTICE COURT.—The mill of justice is grinding pretty rapidly out at Hardman just at present. J. F. Spray brings suit against Joe Bannister for the recovery of money given the latter for the use of purchasing cattle for Mr. Spray, which he claims was neither used nor returned to him. Joe Bannister in return brought suit against J. F. Spray for forgery, claiming that the contract between Mr. Spray and himself was altered by Mr. Spray. This case will be given a hearing in the justice court at Hardman today with J. W. Dawson as attorney for the plaintiff and J. N. Brown for the defendant. The former case will be tried later on.

BULLET REMOVED.—Last Sunday Drs. Seaburne and Gagen performed an operation on a member of Heppner's demi-monde, called "Daisy." About a year ago she was shot by her husband, a .32 cal. pistol ball striking her just below the left nipple, glancing around the rib, lodging about six inches from point of entrance in the latissimus dorsi muscle about two inches below the skin. It has been giving her much trouble since. The bullet was badly bruised from striking a corset steel and presented a rather ugly appearance. It is probable that the steel saved her life.

THE OLD STORY.—Clyde Cameron, of Canyon City, who, will be remembered, was run over by a log wagon last fall at A. C. Dore's sawmill, was shot and instantly killed last Sunday evening by accidental discharge of a gun, the load passed through the body just below the heart. The facts surrounding the sad affair, as near as could be ascertained, are as follows: He and another boy were loading a gun to shoot a bird and in their excitement and hurry the gun was discharged with the result as before mentioned. This is but a repetition of an old story: Two boys, a gun and a funeral—Long Creek Eagle.

Mr. Thomas Batte, editor of the Graphic, Texarkana, Arkansas, has found what he believes to be the best remedy in existence for the flux. His experience is well worth remembering. He says: "Last summer I had a very severe attack of flux. I tried almost every known remedy, none giving relief. Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy was recommended to me. I purchased a bottle and received almost immediate relief. I continued to use the medicine and was entirely cured. I take pleasure in recommending this remedy to any person suffering with such a disease, as in my opinion it is the best medicine in existence." 25 and 50 cent bottles for sale by Sloan & Johnson Drug Co.

"High" Game.

Dr. Wynter Blyth, the medical officer of health for Marseilles, is the sworn enemy of high game, on the perfectly consistent ground that no valid distinction can be drawn between decomposition in the rabbit and the same process in the hare. If one be injurious, he observed, so must be the other, and though he does not venture to suggest the prosecution of venders of game under the sanitary laws, he does not hesitate to describe this culinary eccentricity as a "filthy and disgusting habit." His arguments, however, are double edged. Admitting that decomposing rabbit is fully as injurious as highly flavored pheasant, we are at liberty to argue that, as the consumption of high game is seldom followed by toxic symptoms, the prohibition in respect of decomposing meat generally is unnecessary.

Common experience seems to show that the products of ordinary decomposition, at any rate in its earlier stages, are destroyed or rendered inert by cooking; otherwise the mortality among the disciples of Lucullus in the upper classes would be phenomenal. The danger lies presumably in the fact that decomposing animal tissues afford a suitable medium for the auto-cultivation of bacteria other than those which resist the toxic products whereof may resist the influence of a high temperature. We are loath to believe ill of a practice which, if aesthetically objectionable, is hallowed by centuries of apparent impunity.—London Medical Press.

On the Track of the Microbe.

Science is pressing relentlessly on the heels of the microbe. The latest method of coping with this minute but potent source of disease is to literally cast it out of the abiding place in which it has installed itself. Micro-organisms contain substances for the most part heavier than water, and this fact has led to the introduction of a method of separating them from water, milk and other liquids by centrifugal force. A speed of about 4,000 revolutions a minute serves to clear a large number of microbes from the liquid and render it limpid.—Exchange.
