There is an interesting instance of water flowing inward from the sea. It is found on the island of Cephalonia, in trom time to time for years back, Ail side of the island, near the small town and port of Argostoli, says Goldthwaite's Geographical Magazine. Two streams flow at a short distance from one another straight into the sea for a few yards and then follow different courses. CAST-IRON BRICKS. An Ingenious Invention in the Line on Building Material. Most of the building materials now in use have been employed with greater or less skill for thousands of years. Since primitive man discovered the adaptability of stone, wood and burned bricks composed of clay and sand for house-building, no equally useful build-ing material has been added to the list. According to the American Furniture Gazette, a German mechanic has recent ly patented an invention which has certainly many advantages over the oldfashioned brick of clay, though use may When I had finished the operation he not prove it to be in all respects supe-

Its practical design and ingenuity are characteristic of the modern tendency of inventions. It is in the form and of about the size of an ordinary brick, but is composed of east-iron and is hollow. The shell is so thin that the brick weighs less than one made of clay. A wall is built of such bricks without the use of mortar, and no skilled labor is perfectly and form a wall of great strength. There are also two large circular openings in the upper side of each brick, arranged so as to receive projections on the lower side of the brick that is to be placed above it. One of these projec-tions is hook-shaped, which insures solid hold. A wall of the bricks is very quickly put together. After the wall is built it is covered with paint. This closes all the cracks, renders the wall nir-tight, and prevents the bricks from rusting. By the good paint the wall can be made highly ornamental. The briefs are very durable, and a building made of them is per-haps as rearly inserved as possible. A wall thus the territod can be taken down or rebuilt ; - readily as it can be put up. There is no mortar to be re-
