The Original Webster's Unabridged DICTIONARY.

By Special arrangement with the publishers, we are able to obtain a number of the above book, and propose to furnish a copy to each of our subscribers.

The dictionary is a necessity in every home, school and business house. It fills a vacancy, and furnishes knowledge which no one hundred other volumes of the choicest books could supply. Young and oil, educated and ignorant, rich and poor, should have it within reach, and refer to its contenis every day in the year.

As some have asked if this is really the Original Webster's Unabridged Dictionary, we are able to state we have learned direct from the publishers the fact, that this is the very work complete on which about forty of the best years of the author's life were so well employed in writing. It contains the entire vocabulary of about 180,000 words, including the correct spelling, derivation and definition of same, and is the require attacks.

Until further notice we will furnish this valuable Dictionary— First—To any new subscriber. Second—To any renewal subscriber.

Third—To any subscriber now in arrears who pays up and one year in advance, at the following prices, viz:
Full Cloth bound, gilt side and back stamps, marbled edges, $1.00. Half Morocco, bound, gilt side and back stamps, marbled edges, $1.50. Full Sheep bound, leather label, marbled

An Ancient British Village.

An interesting discovery was recently made at Glastonbury, Somersetshire, of the remains of an ancient lake village. From sixty to seventy low mounds, ris ing from one to two feet above the surrounding soil, and from twenty to thirty feet across were found on the level moor which stretches to the British channel. A section of the mounds revealed morticed oak beams, resembling those of the well-known palisades of the crannogs of Scotland, and well-defined strata of clay, charcoal and ashes. total thickness of these beds was three feet six inches, and within them were detected three separate hearths, superimposed one above the other. A STRANGE MOCK TRIAL.

Conducted by Six Murderers, All of Whom Were Under Sentence of Death. The most singular trial on record was that held in the Tombs a few years ago, says the New York Press. It was a trial by jury in which the court and the counsel were composed of men under sentence of death and literally liv-ing in the shadow of the gallows. After the attempted escape of Danny Lyons and Danny Driscoll had been frustrated Warden Osborne conceived and carried into execution a scheme which made like attempts out of the question. Murderers' row in the old building was vacated and the ground floor of the left corridor in the new "ten-day" house fitted up for the reception and safe keeping of those doomed to death according to law. The war-den's idea was a novel one. He had a screen of strong wire built from between each cell's door to the windows on the opposite side of the corridor. This gave each convict a separate space to walk in for exercise death-watch occupied chairs between each screen and the men were constantly in their sight. It also allowed them to see each other and their visiting friends and to converse when they felt in that mood. The first to occupy the cells were six men convicted of murder in the first degree and sentenced to be hanged in the Tombs. They were Giblin, Packenham, Carolin, Lewis, Nolan and Carleton. They were all executed except Giblin, who killed a baker named Getz. His sentence was commuted to imprisonment for life. Carleton, who was known by the sobriquet of "Handsome Harry," who shot and killed Officer Brennan was the last to be kanged and was the last one executed in the Tombs.
