RUINED BY HUGE WAVES.

Monster Ocean Rollers Which Are Caused by Strong Downward Currents.

The sea has in store one danger that the landsman never sees. Like the voyager, he may receive a visit from a cyclone, but he knows nothing of the power and terror of great waves. Uniting in themselves the force of a flood and that of a termade, they are appalling and restless. The recent experience of the Normannia, which suffered severe dam age, is from the visit of one of those monsters of the deep, and recalls that of other vessels. But the Rochester Courier and Advertiser says this wave was slight compared with the waves that they have encountered. While it injured only several of the Normannin's erew, the wave that struck the Italian Rosina in October, 1888, swept every man aboard but one into the sea: he escaped only because he was an invalid below. A bundred persons lost their lives from the wave encountered by the steamer San Francisco in Decomber, 1853. The height of these waves can hardly be realized. The one encountered by the Umbria five years ago arose to the top of her masthead, lifty feet above the sea. Several waves communed by Capt. Kiddle, of the Celtic. in January, 1875, rose to the height of eventy feet and moved at the rate of wenty-five miles an hour. Equally ligh waves were observed by Admiral Fitzrey, of the English navy, off the ape of Good Hope. The appalling eight of one hundred feet was reached the waves that Dumont d'Urville saw n the Southern sea.

Of course nothing could withstand the weight and force of these masses of water. Under them the most powerful vessel ever built would scarcely be nore, than an egg shell. There is doubt that many of the ships that have rone down to sea never to return have fallen victims of their pitiless and reistless force. As to the origin of the great waves there has of late been some interesting speculation. It has been discovered that they are confined to the temperate latitudes. In these latitudes been illsecvered further that the surface of the ocean is often strack during storms by powerful downward currents. The conclusion is drawn from these two facts that the waves in question were the products of these vertical currents. Students of the subject claim in support of this conclusion that the most powerful wind blowing over the surface of the sea could not raise crest above twenty-five feet.

Now is the time to subscibe for the
