Did you ever read about the man who...

Light under a bush?

Yes! well, that is like...

Doing business without advertising?

All the while...

Is the country well prospered?

Half as much as a good ad.

Is a good, live legitimate newspaper?

One that is read by the people, and that owns its own soul; that does its work like merchandise, worth dollar for dollar.

In agreement to the book matter, the Portland Dispatch thinks that probably the Gazette took the opportunity of having its paper printed the first, an amount of its opposition to book, communications, etc. Far from it, however, we sympathize with the reform in every particular, and with those who are leading in the movement of the people. Such a reform in our news should be welcomed in our city. But whether a man is a republican, democrat, people's party or prohibitionist, he should be shown up for his policy, and the Gazette is the sort of a sheet that will do just that very thing without fear or favor. We will take pleasure in anything that is done to a shakedown, when we know we are right. Doesn't the Dispatch realize that a newspaper cannot "beat the system" in the manner that the Gazette went after Prof. Borg without getting into trouble? We have faith to back up all we have said and all that has been asserted by our legitimate contemporary, the Record.

It seems that Charles Mitchell is out at all corners to meet Pompadour Jim. By his show the white feather by trying to crawl out of the agreement. It is a safe bet that he will be shipped to a dump if he ever goes into the ring with Corbett.

In many of our locations, we are pretty sure that Heppner has the best of it for the system. Also from the standpoint of health and climate. Yet we may not succeed, though we know that the physician is favorable to this place.

Henry Blackman

NEWLY RECEIVED

NEWLY RECEIVED

Mr. Blackman was born in New York City in 1845, and accompanied his parents to California when but ten years old. Brought up a San Francisco boy he was sent to school at an early age, and at the San Francisco Business College he obtained a sound commercial training, which has stood him in good stead ever since. In 1878 Mr. Blackman married the sister of Mr. Henry Heppner, and two years afterward settled at Heppner, engaging in business with his brother-in-law. In 1890 he purchased Mr. Heppner's interest in the business, and last year when he sold out.

He was elected mayor of Heppner four times, and in 1899 carried the senatorial district, consisting of Grant, Harney and Morrow counties. Mr. B was quite active in the senatorial body of our state and added many good measures to the list of Oregon laws during the first session in which he was permitted to take part. At the last session he added fresh laurels by advocating and assisting in the passage of the bill to distribute the five per cent fund for the improvement of wagon roads. He was also the father of the "valued policy" law relating to fire insurance, and the Oregon school book law. He was an earnest advocate of the law regarding the dead end school, the Eastern Oregon, branch insane asylum, and many other worthy measures. He was chosen one of the delegates to the national convention that nominated Cleveland as the standard bearer of the democratic party in 1892, and was also a member of the notification committee to officially apprise Mr. Cleveland of his nomination. Mr. Blackman has long been identified with Heppner, and his numerous friends here, while they are pleased at his success, much regret that it causes Heppner to lose, temporarily at least, one of her most valuable and energetic citizens.

HOW IT WAS BEFORE

The Oregonian holds the following in the New York Tribune of January, 1895: On Saturday we spent our hour there (Oregon and Oreganians) when they (Oregon and Oreganians) were in the soup, a taste of bread and in all cases than 1894. On the same day 11,000 potatoes were sent out from Heppner's "Hemp Garden" in the rear of the great store, corner Bond and Broadway. At the same time 11,000 people were fed by charity on Saturday, Jan. 10, and this is only one day in the year. Meanwhile scores of like nature are being enacted all over the city. A procession of several thousand persons kept marching about the streets yesterday with flags and banners, which bore such inscriptions as "Hemp at a Heavy Tonnage," "The Labor Reserve," "Live and Let Live," "We Want Work," etc., etc. Such are the scenes that are being enacted daily before our eyes, while the cry of hard times reaches us from every part of the country. The making of roads is stopped, factories are closed and houses and shops are no longer being built. Factory hands, road-makers, carpenters, bricklayers and laborers are idle. Paralysis is rapidly embracing every portion of the country. The cause of all this stoppage of circulation is found in the steady outflow of gold to pay foreign laborers for the cloth, the shoes, the iron and the other things that could be produced by American labor, but which cannot be produced under our present revenue system. If it be not stopped the democratic revenue-only tariff system we shall see tens of thousands of men every where crying:

Where no work. Only give me work. Make your own head. My wife and children have nothing to eat."

MIDWAY TYPES

The Detroit Free Press in this year fairly outdid itself. Not content with permanently enlarging its famous weekly edition to twelve pages, it proposes to give in every year a souvenir of the world's fair, called "The Detroit Free Press Portfolio of Midway Types." This artistic production comprises twenty photographic plates, still histories, representing the strange people that were seen on the Midway Plaisance. The faces and fantastic dress will be easily recognized by those who visited the fair; others will find in them an interesting study. You can obtain the portfolio and one of the best literary weeklies one year for $1. The address is Detroit, Mich.

The Dallas Chronicle is all right. Here is what it says about the location of the insane asylum: The decision as to the location of the insane asylum was to have been made today. Whatever the result, the Chronicle is satisfied as to the parity of the motives of the commission, whose honesty it will never question. They have a peculiarly disagreeable duty on hand in that, whatever the decision is, it is almost sure to anger and prejudice other competitors. The Dallas has no reason to be mainly and generous, even if the decision proves adverse to its hopes.

J. K. Boatman, the president of the defendant Walls Walls bank, was arrested near in Idaho and is now in jail at Walls Walls. He says he had just learned that he was wanted and was just boarding the train to return home, though the authorities believe he was preparing to leave the country.

DEATH OF G. F. BELL

G. F. Bell, a prominent citizen of Union, Or., died on Jan. 1st at his home. Mr. Bell was born in Newcastle, England, June 17, 1825. In 1852 he was admitted as an attorney of the queen's bench, and also became solicitor of the high court of chancery. He came to the United States in 1852, where he was at various times admitted to the bars of Wisconsin, Missouri, California and Oregon. He was at one time district attorney of St. Clair county, Wis. He came to Oregon in 1853. In 1864 he was sent by the governor to China, to procure evidence in an important case. He came to Oregon in 1865, and was brigadier-general of the Oregon militia under Governor Grover. At one time he was editor of the Oregon Herald. He was a charter member of the first Knight of Pythias lodge in Oregon. He has practiced law in Union county for the past 13 years.

DEATH OF J. P. BLAISE

Mr. J. P. Blaise, an extensive real estate dealer in Des Moines, Iowa, narrowly escaped one of the severest attacks of pneumonia while in the northern part of that state during a recent blizzard, says the Saturday Review. Mr. Blaise had occasion to drive several miles during the storm and was thoroughly chilled that he was unable to get warm, and inside of an hour after his return he was threatened with a severe case of pneumonia or lung fever. Mr. Blaise sent to the nearest drug store and got a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, of which he had often heard, and took a number of large doses. He says the effect was wonderful and in a short time he was breathing easily. He kept on taking the medicine and the next day was able to come to Des Moines. Mr. Blaise regards his cure as simply wonderful. For sale by Higgin Johnson Drug Co.
