"What's in a name?" Well, that depends. For instance, the name of "Ayer's Sarsaparilla" is a genuine, scientific blood-purifier, and not a sham, like so much that goes by the name of "sarsaparilla." Ayer's Sarsaparilla is the standard.

SHILOH SCHOOL.

Second Graduation Class in the History of the Public Schools of Morrow Co.

(Class Motto: "Not for ourselves alone.")

The second class in Morrow county which has graduated in the public school course, began their commencement at 2 p. m., Friday, Mar. 23.

A short entertainment was given by the school, followed by a song "Westward Ho."

May J. Miller, president of the Shiloh class, '94, introduced Miss O. May King who gave the history of the class.

Miss Nellie B. Miller read a sketch from the life of Lafayette.

Song by the class, "Scotland's burning."

Miss Ida Dickson, class profit, in a flight of imagination gave a glimpse of the class at work in the beginning of the 20th century after which they adjourned to the school grounds and planted their class tree.

A number of prizes were then awarded to the champions of the athletic games.

The program was then to be continued at the hall, and at four o'clock all who anticipated a feast for both the body and mind were heard headed for the hall, where a bounteous repast was spread despite the cry "hard times."

At seven the hour was called to order by the principal of the school. Class marched through the hall to music furnished by Miss Mollie J. King.

Miss Ida Dickson, salutatory in her address, "Rowing not Drifting," made us think with Cooper. Absence of occupation is not rest. A mind quite vacant is a mind distressed.

Francis E. Miller showed in his subject, "Education ends only with life," that one who is striving in this life has plenty of work ahead.

O. May King in her subject, "How shall we man our ships," urged great care in the selection of those who fill official positions. John W. Grabell, in his oration, "Education is one's self, morally and intellectually," spoke briefly of the necessity of moral as well as intellectual education.

Quartet, "Evening Bells," by the Goseberry Glee Club.

Mary J. Miller, "Progress of Time," from the stage coach to the iron horse, and the expectation of the flying car.

Benjamin F. King, was next to speak and we noted with pleasure that "Our Flag" was not forgotten by the class of '94.

Song, "Freedom's Banner," by class. Minnie V. Hughes in her address, "What is your aim in life," urged us to aim high and work to that point.

Oscar J. Williamson pointed out many difficulties to be overcome in obtaining an education, in his "How two young men completed their college course."

Quartet, "Hunters' Farewell," by the Glee Club.

Nellie B. Miller, "Class of '83," lesson draws, ladies as well as gentlemen should make some practical use of their education.

John W. King drove on up the steps of progress ever dimming in our ears, "Oward is our aim," when Edmund S. McElligott stopped our flight and made us look back to "Two men who flung prominently in the Revolutionary War," and begged us to do our duty in whatever position we are placed.

Quartet, "Singers' March," by Glee Club.

E. Jay Merrill, valedictory, then addressed us, calling our attention to the class motto, "Not for ourselves alone," may they all prove faithful to their motto, living, working, striving for themselves alone, but for the good that they may do.

Quartet, "Skating Song," by the Glee Club.

Supt. W. L. Saling then gave them words of praise and encouragement. Also warned them that they would yet find many days of toil and hard labor, as they had now but reached the first round in the endless ladder of education. He then presented the diplomas. Flowers and congratulations from the school were then presented to the class by Albert King which was responded to by the president of the class, Mr. J. E. Ely, who has labored for the welfare and promotion of his pupils, will long be remembered in the Shiloh school and gratefully by the class of '94.

INCENTIVES TO EXPLORATION

They Are Various and Not at All Confining to the Love of Discovery.

Every year the hunt for the precious metals and the shining stones grows sharper, until the plateau of Thibet and the further islands of the eastern archipelago are almost the only likely places where the agents of European firms are not loitering, and prospecting, and searching home concrete evidences that, if enough is spent and a sufficient area of unknown territory is diligently examined, there may be solid returns. The emerald seekers of Ecuador know the paths of his mountains better than geographers, says the spectator, and the hunters for gold will make known every ravine of the vast region between Cape Colony and Lake Nyassa.

Every year the demand for wood drives importers into more distant forests, while the enthusiasts of botany and ornithology are ransacking regions into which it was recently supposed to be death to enter. The Philistines of our day number whole tribes, and they are penetrating everywhere, exactly like their old prototypes, in search of spoil. Nothing stops the explorers for gain, and another party will follow them yet, not longing for minerals or new drugs, but for great estates. Australia was not explored for exploration's sake, but to find lands fit to support great herds; and so will Africa be, and the eastern archipelago. The competition for great fortunes grows bitter and sharp, and this is a road on which adventurers need only daring, a certain capacity for command, and a resolve to explore such as was displayed in New South Wales by the Westworths, who, twice beaten by the mountains, went on a third time, to become great nobles in the southern world.

SOUND OF A SUNBEAM.

Even the Rays of Light Have a Way of Making Themselves Heard.

One of the most wonderful discoveries in science that has been made within the last year or two, says the Yankee Blade, is the fact that a beam of light produces sound. A beam of sunlight is thrown through a lens on a glass vessel that contains lampblack, colored silk or worsted, or other substances. A disc having slits or openings cut in it is made to revolve swiftly in this beam of light so as to cut it up, thus making alternate flashes of light and shadow.

On putting the ear to the glass vessel strange sounds are heard so long as the flashing beam is falling on the vessel. Recently a more wonderful discovery has been made. A beam of sunlight is caught in a lens on a glass vessel that contains lampblack, colored silk or worsted, or other substances. A disc having slits or openings cut in it is made to revolve swiftly in this beam of light so as to cut it up, thus making alternate flashes of light and shadow.

Now place the ear to the vessel containing the silk, wool, or other material. As the colored lights of the spectrum fall upon it, sounds will be given by different parts of the spectrum, and there will be silence in other parts.

For instance, if the vessel contains red worsted, and the green light flashes upon it, loud sounds will be given. Only feeble sounds will be heard if the red and blue parts of the rainbow fall upon the vessel, and other colors make no sound at all. Green silk gives sound best in a red light.

Every kind of material gives more or less sound in different colors, and utters no sound in others.

MILLIONS OF MICE.

They Furnish a Feast of Months for Dogs, Cats and Owls.

During a fine moist summer, when grass and flowers were abundant, mice increased to an abundant extent in La Plata, so that everywhere in the fields it was difficult to avoid treading on them, while dozens could be shaken out of every hollow thistle stalk lying on the ground. The most inconspicuous animals swarmed to the feast which they provided.

Dogs lived almost entirely on them, as did the domestic fowls, assuming the habits of rapacious birds. The cats all left the houses to live in the fields. Tyrant birds and owls seemed to prey on nothing else.

Foxes, weasels and opossums fared sumptuously and even the common armadillo turned mouse with great success. Stocks and short-eared owls gathered to the feast, so that fifty of the latter birds could often be seen at once, and they got fat and bred in the middle of the winter, quite out of their proper season, in consequence.

The following winter was a time of drought, the grass and herbage had all been consumed or was burnt up, and the mice, having no shelter, soon fell a prey to their numerous enemies and were almost wholly exterminated.
