LANGUAGE MADE BY WOMEN Their Influence Much Greater Than is Ordinarily Thought.

The influence of woman on the language of each generation is much greater than that of men, says Max Muller in Science of Language.

We very properly call our language in Germany our mother tongue, with all its peculiarities, faults, idioms, accents, Cicero said:

"It makes a great difference whom we hear at home every day and with whom we speak as boys, and how our fathers, our tutors and our mothers speak. We read the letters of Cornelia, the mother of the Gracchi, and it is clear from them that her sons were brought up in the lap, but so to say, in the very breath and speech of their mother."

But this is not all. Dante ascribes the first attempts at using the vulgar tongue in Italy for literary compositions to the silent influence of ladies who did not understand the Latin language.

Now this vulgar Italian, before it became the literary language of Italy, had very much the same position there as the so-called Prakrit dialects in India and these Prakrit dialects first assumed a literary position in the Sanskrit plays where female characters, both high and low, are introduced as Prakrit, instead of the Sanskrit employed by kings, nobles and priests.

Here, then, we see the language of women, or, if not of women exclusively, at all events of women and domestic servants, gradually entering into the literary idiom, and in later times even supplanting it altogether: for it is from the Prakrit, and not from the literary Sanskrit, that the modern vernaculars of India branched off in course of time.

Through a thousand smaller channels the idioms of women everywhere find admission into the domestic conversation of the whole family and into the public speeches of their assemblies. The greater the ascendancy of the female element in society the greater the influence of their language on the language of a family or a class, or a village or a town.

How an Enemy was Foiled. The following graphic statement will be read with interest: "I cannot describe the numb, creepy sensation that existed in my arms, hands and legs. I had to rub and beat those parts until they were sore to overcome in a measure the dead feeling that had taken possession of them. In addition, I had a strange weakness in my back and around my waist, together with an indescribable 'zone' feeling in my stomach. Physicians said it was creeping paralysis, from which, according to their universal conclusions, there is no relief. Once it fastens upon a person, they say, it condones its indolent progress until it reaches a vital point and the sufferer dies. Such was my prospect. I had been doctoring a year and a half steadily, but with no particular benefit, when I saw an advertisement of Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine, procured a bottle and began using it. Marvellous as it may seem, but a few days had passed before every bit of that creepy feeling and 'zone' feeling had been driven away and the numbness and weakness in my back and around my waist, and the indolent progress of the creeping paralysis, had all disappeared. I had now a new feeling of vigor and life, and I had been able to resume my usual duties. I had now a new feeling of vigor and life, and I had been able to resume my usual duties. I had now a new feeling of vigor and life, and I had been able to resume my usual duties."
