PATENTS!

NOTICE TO INVENTORS.

There was never a time in the history of our country when the demand for inventions and improvements in the arts and sciences generally was so great as now. The conveniences of mankind in the factory and workshop, the bousehold and on the farm, as well as in official life, require continual accessions to the appurtenance and impliments of each in order to saye labor, time and expense. The political change in the administration of government does not affect the progress of the American inventor, who being on the alert, and ready to perceive the existing deficiencies, does not permit the affairs of government to deter him from quickly conceiving the remedy to overcome existing discrepancies. Too great care cannot be exercised in choosing a competent and skillful attorney to prepare and prosecutes an application for patent. Valuable interests have been lost and destroyed in innumerable iustances by the employ ment of incompetent counsel, and especially is this advice applicable to those who adopt the "No patent, no pay" system. Inventors who entrust their business to this class of strorneys do so at imminent risk, as the breadth in order to saye labor, time and expense. their business to this class of attorneys and brand on left shoulder. Hauge Grant dos at imminent risk, as the breadth and strength of the patent is never considered in view of a quick endeavor to get an allowance and obtain the fee.

GOOD ADVICE.

Every patriotic citizen should give his personal effort and influence to increase the circulation of his home paper which teaches the American policy of Protection. It is his duty to aid in this respect in every way possible. After the home paper is taken care of, why not subscribe for the AMERICAN ECONOMIST, published by the American Protective Tariff League? One of its correspondents says: "No true American can get along without it. I consider it the greatest and truest political teacher in the United States."

Another Snake Story. A resident of St. Clairsville, Pa., vouches for the following snake story: William Brown, a friend of his, found m artificial egg floating in the river, and it being a good imitation of a hen's egg he cut his initials on it and used it for a nest egg. Last June his mother went to the nest and found a blacksuake in possession. In a few days the egg was missing. One day last week Lou-Augustine killed a large blacksnake, aud noticing a lump on it stepped on it and out came the artificial egg with 'W' cut on it."-Philadelphia Ledger.

A youthful correspondent writes as follows: "The reason why dephants is so smart is because they is like women. Elephants is afraid of mices, and so is women. Setting Strawberry Plants

Every farm ought to have a good, big strawberry bed. Here are some directions given in a report of the Ohio Horticultural society: "For spring planting select a rich, moist soil exposed to the sun and free from roots and grubs. Make it fine, deep and mellow. Take up strong, healthy plants of the previous year's growth, remove dead leaves, shorten the roots to three inches and carry them in a pail of water. Give constant and clean cultivation. Stir the soil very often. Cut off all this year's blossoms and all runners till July. Then November all bare ground between plants with manure, and when winter sets in the whole is to be covered with fine manure, leaving leaves and crown. Another plan, popular and excellent, is to plant in July or August on rich and well prepared ground in rows two feet apart, or three feet for horse culture. Keep the runners off the first year."

Thrilling Experience in a Caving Arizona Mine.

The Bodent Burrows His Way to an Im prisoned Mine Serveyer. In This Man-ner Sopplying Him with the Needed Air.

"You were asking about that stuffed rat in my room," said Prof. Churchili, the mining expert, to a New York Sun man. "The story concerns an experience that made my hair curl. I was once retained to report upon the workings of a mine called the Little Whoop in southern Arizona. On an adoining claim was another mine called the Atlas. A dispute arose. The Atlas people claimed that the lower tunnel of the Whoop Up had been bored into their ground and a half million in ore taken out. The first thing to do was to make a survey of the Whoop Up, and, of course, the Whoop Up people objected. Finally an order for the survey was secured from the court and Dr. John R. Parks and I were sent to make the survey. There are tricks in all trades, and the Whoop Up superintendent knew a few. When we reached the mine he said the tunnel we wished to explore was in a dangerous condition. There had been a cave, the timbers were rotten, and so on. It meant a ten to one chance that we would be erushed if we tried it. Of course, we classed him as a liar, though he turned out to be right.
"We worked our way in the tunnel

until we ran against a jam of fallen timbers which were sound and were plainly arranged to stop our progress Parks went back for an ax, while I worked at the roof with a pick to dis lodge the center pieces. I succeeded and had climbed half way over into the other side of the tunnel when there came a terrific crash of loose ore from the roof. It fell on both sides of the timbers, pinning me in a hole which would have been a grave right there but for a few sticks which held the mass of ore above. The place was barely large enough to move in, and 1 knew it was certain death in a few hours unless Parks could dig me out Even then I believed I was gone, for I did not know how much ore had fallen. In a few minutes the air got heavy, and my eyes began to feel drowsy, and it seemed like the roof and sides of the hole were closing in on me. This oppression and drowsiness increased until I was forced to hammer the sides of the place with my fists and head to keep awake. Still not a sound could I hear from the outside, and only the slow omen failed on Tilden. It is also worked of remark that these childless men had singularly happy home lives, and none singularly happy home lives, and none than George Washington.

Crambol was getting into my orangement of the property of Anyhow, I remember of dropping to the floor of the hole, and giving a few married Daniel Parke Custis. He and his wife were very tween the lodged timbers. Still came the queer, scraping noise which seemed refined and of nong their Vir-vashington loved saw. It seemed to last for hours, There was of Inspection in 1837. It is not generally known to the world at large, says the New York Times, that Emperor Napoleon III. of France was once behind the bars in Sing Sing prison. In the spring of 1837 Prince Louis Napoleon, afterward Napoleon III., emperor of France, made a visit to Washington Irving at Sunny-side, a little north of Irvington-on-the-Hudson, accompanied by a young French count, and escorted by Anthony onstant, of Hastings. Prince Napo leon expressed a desire to visit the prison at Sing Sing, and Mr. Constant drove him there. Upon arriving at the orison the party was welcomed by Warden Rowel, who, after taking them into his apartments, explained the means that had been attended with the most successful and beneficial results in the government of the prison. The warden told the prince, who had been an interested listener, that he man, who was an old soldier, claiming to have fought at Waterloo and to have en in several battles with Napoleon, the first emperor. The prince naturaly asked to see the man. The warden then explained that the prisoner was was contrary to prison rules to take him out, but as the guests were going to visit the cells he would open the Then all followed the warden down the stairs and across the keyroom and the narrow passages to the galleries, where the cells were and are to this day. He paused at the second cell on the right hand tier of the main galleries and unlocked and opened the door. Louis Napoleon stepped inside. THE SOLDIER NUN.

A Remarkable Instance of Feminine Courage.

disguised in Doublet and Hose the Young Spanish Maiden Meets and Vanquishes a Man in a Duck

A famous heroine in her way was Catalina de Erauso, still remembered vaguely as the "Spanish soldier nun." She left memoirs which have been translated or summarized or "romancified" in most European tongues. truth of them has been disputed, but the writer points out that, upon the other hand, popes and kings, nobles and servants accepted every word while evidence remained to support or question the statements, says the Phil delphia Telegraph. Catalina rau away from a nupnery in San Sebastian at the age of fifteen transformed her conventual habili

ments into doublets and hose, and found employment as a page in the ousehold of a noble at Valladolid. Driven from this refuge by the appearance of her father-who had no sus-picion, nevertheless-she joined an expedition sailing for Peru under charge of Ferdinand de Cordova. Her ship was wrecked off Pita and she alone re fused to desert the captain, who stood by his vessel. Catalina then built a little raft, broke open the treasure chest, took as much gold as she could carry and set off for the shore, but the captain was drowned embarking. reached the town and accepted an engagement as manager to the tailor who made her new clothes. Complications of business and passion-for a great lady fell in love at sight-led to a first duel, in which she killed her man promptly. The great lady smug-gled her out of prison, but Catalina found it necessary to repay this service by pushing the dame downstairs, probably breaking her neck. Then she jumped into a boat, put to sea, and was picked up by a Spanish vessel bound for Concepcion.

At this place her brother was seere tary to the governor, and he, all un-conscious of the relationship, got her a commission in the army. Very soon afterward she distinguished herself in an engagement, and for twelve years ranked as one of the most brilliant officers of the Spanish service—living mostly with her brother, but keeping the secret. This happy time came to an end in a midnight duel, when she killed a man unknown, who proved to be this same brother. Flying for life ice more, Catalina crossed the Andes. All her companions perished, but she enched Tucuman after terrible adventures. Another love affair, all on one ide, and another fatal duel brought her literally to the gallows, but with the rope around her neek she escaped. Traveling on to Cuzco, she joined an Alcalde with a pretty wife and a gentleman, his friends. In a very few days Catalina perceived that these two had an understanding. The Alcalde perceived it also and took an opporunity to murder his faithless friend He would have murdered his wife, but Catalina snatched her to the saddle and rode furiously for Cuzco. The Alcalde pursuing, she can him through but received a desperate wound. The fugitives got safely to the bishop's palace. Catalina knew, however, that her secret must be discovered now She had just strength enough to revea it to the bishop before fainting. The worthy man reported the whole story to the king, who sent orders that Cata-lina should be dispatched by the next ship. All Spain declared for the hero-ine. At her arrival Count Olivarezhimself, the prime minister, met her; the king kissed her; the pope sent for and forgave her and Velasquez painted her
