

PATENTS!

NOTICE TO INVENTORS.

There was never a time in the history of our country when the demand for inventions and improvements in the arts and sciences generally was so great as now. The conveniences of mankind in the factory and workshop, the household and on the farm, as well as in official life, require constant accessions to the apparatus and implements of each in order to save labor, time and expense. The continual changes in the administration of government does not affect the progress of the American inventor, who being on the alert, and ready to perceive the existing deficiencies, does not permit the affairs of government to deter him from quickly conceiving the remedy to overcome existing discrepancies. Too great care cannot be exercised in choosing a competent and skillful attorney to prepare and prosecute an application for patent. Valuable interests have been lost and destroyed by innumerable instances by the employment of incompetent counsel, and especially is this advice applicable to those who adopt the "No patent, no pay" system. Inventors who entrust their business to this class of attorneys do so at imminent risk, as the breadth and strength of the patent is never considered in view of a quick endeavor to get an allowance and obtain the fee. THE PRESS CLAIMS COMPANY, John Wedderburn, General Manager, 618 F Street, N. W., Washington, D. C., representing a large number of important daily and weekly papers, and general periodicals of the country, was instituted to protect its patrons from the unsafe methods heretofore employed in this line of business. The said Company is prepared to take charge of all patent business entrusted to it for reasonable fees, and prepare and prosecute applications generally, including mechanical inventions, design patents, trade-marks, labels, copy-rights, interference, infringements, validity reports, and gives special attention to rejected cases. It is also prepared to enter into competition with any firm in securing foreign patents.

Every patriotic citizen should try his personal effort and influence to secure the circulation of his home paper which teaches the American policy of protection. It is his duty to aid in this respect in every way possible. After his paper is taken care of, why not subscribe for the AMERICAN ECONOMIST, published by the American Protective Tariff League? One of its correspondents says: "No true American can get along without it. I consider it the greatest and truest political teacher in the United States."

There are hundreds of bushels of refuse apples rotting on the ground, says the Creswell correspondent of the Eugene Guard, pointedly, yet in six months from now the farmers, as well as other people, will be buying California vinegar, just as it there was nothing in Oregon to make it.

It is remarkable that of the six deaths upon which assessments are to be paid in the A. O. U. W. order for the month of October, five of them were violent. Two were from drowning, one railroad accident, one crushed by machinery, one pistol shot and the sixth tuberculosis. There are now 6708 members in that order in Oregon.

The Dalles, Portland & Astoria Navigation Company will rebuild the state portage, at Cascades locks. The intention is to build the track on a higher level and construct a steep incline with hoisting engines at the top. The work must be done before November 10, and will cost several thousand dollars. River traffic continues so brisk that this outlay is justified.

A company of Pendleton gentlemen has recently secured valuable holdings in the Greenhorn mining district in Grant county, and arrangements are now being made for inaugurating extensive operations next season. Messrs. B. F. Henn, Robert Renn, E. E. Craig, Everett Reicher and A. J. Dennison recently secured, both by location and purchase, 240 acres of placer ground in one solid body, on Olive creek, 8 miles beyond Granite, and about 100 miles due south of Pendleton. With the claims purchased they secured a ditch three miles in length, together with a hydraulic plant and a "little giant."

When persons are weak and languid from sickness or overwork, feel debilitated and depressed, it is an indication that the blood is out of order, and they need help to throw off the miserable feeling. The best remedy for this purpose is Dr. J. H. McLean's Strengthening Cordial and Blood Purifier. It restores lost strength, gives vigor to circulation, promotes good appetite and a flow of cheerful spirits. Price $1.00 per bottle.

A schoolboy's composition on "The Editor" ran as follows: "The editor is one of the happiest individuals in the world. He can go to any circus in the afternoon and evening without paying a penny, also to inequities and hangings; has free tickets to theaters, gets wedding cake sent him, and sometimes gets a licking, but not often, for he can take things back in the next issue, which he generally does. While other folks have to go to bed early, the editor sits up late at night and sees all that is going on. When I am a man I mean to be an editor, so that I may stay out late at night. Those familiar with Shakespeare remember that the two antagonistic houses of York and Lancaster had their followers distinguished by one side carrying white roses and the other red roses. There is in cultivation a rose called the York and Lancaster on account of striped white and red lines pervading the petals—these colors, of course, represent the two houses united. Just what particular species of roses were chosen has always had an interest for the critical student. A recent notice in the Quarterly Review decides that the white rose of York was the English white rose, Rosa arvensis, and warmly contends that it was a double variety of this species; but if that rose at all, it was most likely to be a pure wild form, for it would be almost impossible to get double flowers for the thousands of men who engaged in these wars.

Mrs. O. J. Woodruff, of Wortham, Texas, saved the life of her child by the use of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral.

"One of my children had Croup. The case was attended by our physician, and was supposed to be well under control. One night I was startled by the child's hard breathing, and on going to it found it straddling. It had nearly ceased to breathe. Realizing that the child's alarming condition had become hopeless in spite of the medicine given, I reasoned that such remedies would be of no avail. Having part of a bottle of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral in the house, I gave the child three doses, at short intervals, and anxiously waited results. From the moment the Pectoral was given, the child's breathing grew easier, and, in a short time, she was sleeping quietly and breathing naturally. The child is alive and well to-day, and I do not hesitate to say that Ayer's Cherry Pectoral saved her life."

AN ELASTIC CONSCIENCE.

The Sin of It Lay Only in Being Found Out With Her.

The penalty attendant upon being detected is the entire foundation of many people's honesty. A woman, says a writer in the New York Recorder, in whose company I found myself recently, was relating with pride an instance of her shrewdness. She remarked as a preface to her story that anyone who expected to get the better of her would have to be an early riser. Said she:

"I went to the theater the other night and after the play a lady who sat in front of me asked me if the umbrella under her chair belonged to me."

"I said no, and as no one else claimed it she left it at the box office. It was a lovely umbrella with a silver handle."

"Well, now the joke begins. About a week later I went to the theater and asked if such an article had been found and if they had it. I described it perfectly and told when it was lost. I didn't say it was mine, but just let them infer it. It was there still; the owner had never called for it—probably never knew where it had been left. They handed it out when I had answered all their questions, and I'm that much in."

"I had just as good a right to it as the theater people, and it looked after a week as if the woman who found it wasn't going to put in a claim. I'm going to get a hat with the money I saved by being wide awake, for I intended to buy a new umbrella."

Mrs. RODRIGUEZ, a noted Parisian dressmaker, died recently in a lunatic asylum. Her fame was great, and she always refused to make dresses for women with poor figures.
