Extravagant Fonerals. The late John Jay had this to say in his will about extravagant funerals and the custom of wearing crape as mourning: "Regarding the extravacance in funerals and mourning as unseemly and burdensome, I wish my funeral to be severely simple; and I ask my children and grandchildren, whom I thank for their constant affection, to observe my wishes in this regard, and let any mourning they may wear for me be mild, inexpensive and without crape." The injunction might well be followed by many with less means than Mr. Jay's family possess. Ostentations display at funerals and in mourning is one of the costly and conspicuous follies of the day.

An interesting fact not generally known in regard to the diplomatic corps is that a member of that august body cannot, under the penalty of official reprimand and danger of recall, appear at a fancy ball in the national court costume. This fact was devel-oped during the past winter when a large fancy ball was given at one or the private houses on the same even ng as the presidential reception to the diplomatic corps. Those of the diplomats who attended the ball later in the evening were obliged to first change the court costume worn at the white house. Inquiry on the part of curious friends developed the reason just
