PATENTS!

NOTICE TO INVENTORS.

There was never a time in the history of our country when the demand for inventions and improvements in the arts and sciences generally was so great as now. The conveniences of mankind in the factory and workshop, the household and on the farm, as well as in official life, require continual accessions to the appurtenance and impliments of each in order to saye labor, time and expense. The political change in the administration of government does not affect the progress of the American inventor, who being on the alert, and ready to perceive the existing deflorencies, does not permit the affairs of government to deter bim from quickly conceiving the remedy to overcome existing discrepancies. Too great care cannot be exercised in choosing a competent and skillful attorney to prepare and prosecute an application for patent. Valuable interests have been lost and destroyed in innumerable instances by the employ ment of incompetent counsel, and especially is this advice applicable to those who adopt the "No patent, no pay" system. Inventors who entrust their business to this class of attorneys do so at imminent risk, as the breadth and strength of the patent is never considered in view of a quick endeavor to get an allowance and obtain the fee. THE PRESS CLAIMS COMPANY, John Wedderburn, General Manager 618 F street, N. W., Washington, D. C., representing a large number of important daily and weekly papers, and general periodicals of the country, was instituted to protect its patrons from the unsafe methods heretofore employed in this line of business. The said Conpany is prepared to take charge of all patent business entrusted to it for reasonable fees, and prepare and prosecute applications generally, including mechanical inventions, design patents, trade-marks, labels, copyrights, interferences, infringements, validity reports, and gives especial attenion to rejected cases. It is also prepared to enter into competition with any firm in securing foreign patents.

SNAKES IN HIS BED.

Magician Kellar's Very Unpleas ant Adventure in India.

He Thinks It Was the Clever Trick of Fakir, But Cannot Tell How It Was Done-At Any Rate the Fellow Got Money for Killing the Reptile.

"I had been in India a number of times and had visited all the principal cities," says Magician Kellar, "when in 1883 I found myself in the pretty city of Lucknow. I had been in the city long enough to have acquired the ennui of the people and was falling easily into their listless, luxurious ways, when one morning this adventure befell me and caused me to all at once lose all that sense of serene and peaceful quiet that I had before pos sessed In India in the summer season it is too hot to sleep upon mattresses or under much bed clothing. In my room in the neat little bungalow where was stopping I had a bamboo couch without a mattress, and my only cov ering was a linen sheet. I had rested there in comfort for many nights, and was just about to arise one morning when a Hindoo fakir entered the door He was a tall, lank, solemn-visaged in dividual, and salaamed profoundly as he entered. I sat up on the edge of my cot to get a good look at him and asked what he wanted. He looked at me an instant and then slowly drew from his breech cloth a small reed pipe " 'Heap big snake in sahib's bed.' he ejaculated in the same calm, unruffled manner. " 'Snakes in my bed!' I velled, as I bounded to the floor with visions of writhing, hissing cobras in my mind. 'Snake! Where?

"'In suhib's bed-heap snake,' the rogue replied, as he slowly released a small earthenware pot or jar from his girdle. Then he placed the reed pipe to his lips and proceeded to extract from it the most painful music I ever listened to. Serpents galore would have been welcome if that music could have been banished, I thought, but as I watched the bed my sentiments underwent a rapid change.

"In the middle of the couch, underneath the sheet, I saw something moving. The sheet became elevated in a conical form and there was a hissing and spitting underneath it that made my blood run cold. Then there emerged from the edge of the covering the slimy, horrible head of a monster cobra that wasn't an inch less than eight feet long, and slowly slid from the bed and coiled himself upon the floor. 1 stood looking at him with my eyes bulging with terror.

"The doleful, seductive, plaintive strain of the pipe continued and the nead of the monster slowly arose to a level with the cot. His hood began to swell and he showed every sign of intense anger. The weird music grew faster and faster and the oscillating motion of the serpent's head kept time to it. The little pipe shricked and the fakir was perspiring from every pore. His eyes were bulgfng from his head and his foot was keeping double time to his piping. Shriller and more penetrating grew the notes, until of a sudden they became again plaintive and sad: the time was slower, the tune sweet and harmonious. The motions of the monster's head were slower and slower, and then the fakir's hand stole quickly to his side. A sword leaned out, there was a flash, a glint of steel, and the cobra's head rolled upon the floor, while the dismembered body years sentence.

thrashed itself about the apartment. I staggered to the door, almost overcome by nervous strain, and the ordeal was over. The muttered backsheesh of the fakir was generously responded to, you may be sure, and he left my bungalow, leaving only the severed head and body of the cobra as reminders of the scene through which I had passed. but while he was playing I saw him crowding another cobra, as big as the first, into that little earthen pot which he carried at his girdle."

STOPPED THE DUEL.

The Cool Man Objected to Being Riddled with One Bullet. "Down in my neighborhood, once upon a time," said Congressman John Allen, of Mississippi, recently, "there was bad collected. As they faced each other, would probably be worth to him a the afflicted man began to tremble fortune. This was too much for the seconds, and, by mutual portion of Texas and Arizona, there are no odors," said a citizen of Dallas to a Cincinnati Enquirer reporter. "There luscious grapes and many other fruits grow, especially near the cross timber country, but there is no perfume; wild flowers have no smell, and careasses of dead animals, which in dry seasons are very plentiful, emit no odor. It was always supposed to be a treeless plain, upon which no plant could grow or
