

IT MUST AND WILL COME.

There are but few who advocate the single gold standard that treat the question of the free coinage of silver fairly.

The Oregonian even admits in a recent article that demonetization did much towards sending silver on its downward course, and when the Oregonian admits anything of this sort there must be some truth in it.

Those who advocate the full remonetization of silver in the United States do not desire that our country shall experience either of the dire disasters depicted in the preceding paragraph.

Many advocate the single gold standard because of personal interests, but the greater number of its adherents are honest in their convictions, but if they will just consider for one moment that the financiers who have this country in their clutches were trained in the school of finance which holds that it is perfectly legitimate to get something for nothing, even if it should come out of the very mouths of the children of our impoverished laboring classes.

THE Oregonian says that the demonetization of silver was one of the causes which led to its downfall, or the rise of gold.

THERE is now in the world a stock of gold amounting to $3,901,000,000. Regardless of all the talk about the wonderful plethora of silver, it exceeds this amount but a very few million, being approximately the same.

THE LATE LEGISLATURE.

From the Portland Sun. A great deal has been said by various papers of all parties about the extravagance of the late legislature. It is best to be just and truthful.

The last legislature was more extravagant than it should have been. It hired too many needless clerks. It made too unnecessary appropriations. It was, in fact, not wholly a success.

But those who say that it was the worst legislature that ever has convened in Oregon, and worse than any future legislature is liable to be, are mistaken, or trying to deceive the people.

The appropriations were far less in the aggregate than those of the last legislature. For at least two years to come the taxpayers of Oregon will feel a slightly lightened burden on this account.

The Simon-Parson-Corbett Scott jobs were nearly all defeated. Had they carried, this would have been the worst boss-ridden state in the Union. For this the people can be truly thankful.

Mr. Dolph was defeated and a man who is expected to take his place in the ranks of the people's friends and servants, was elected. This is a great victory.

Altogether it was not as legislatures go, a bad legislature. Let the papers quit abusing it.

Look plainly and fairly at the figures. The estimates made by the late secretary of state, George W. McBride, now United States senator, for the next two years, amounted to much less than were for the last two years, and the legislature followed his estimates almost to the letter.

The Sun is not theologist of the late legislature, or of any party or faction, but this wholesale condemnation is entirely unneeded for and unjust. Let us be fair, just and honest, and "tell the truth." Taken all in all, the last legislature was the best that has assembled in Oregon for many years.
