We received a pleasant call from O. Pearson, of Eight Mile yesterday. The effects of an unmerciful dry season have been felt by the people of that place this year to the extent that leaving all the crops have dried up, and leaving much worth harvesting. This condition of affairs will no doubt have many in straitened circumstances.

Rev. J. M. Denison preached two interesting and timely discourses at the M. E. church on Sunday, taking for his morning theme the correct raising of children by christian parents. He made many good points and handled his subject in an able and conscientious manner. Rev. Denison preaches his farewell sermon to his Heppner congregation the first Sunday in August, shortly after which time he expects to leave with his family for a new charge in the valley.

Hart, Albert Lalande and Wayne Howard, left this morning for Desolation lake and will be gone for at least three weeks, which time they expect to put in exploring the beauties of that romantic and picturesque portion of Grant county's broad domain. They also expect to kill unknown quantities of bear and deer and catch dead loads of the speckled beauties.

Disorders in the liver and kidneys are responsible for many of the ailments of humanity, which, when neglected, develop into serious and often fatal maladies. Prudence would suggest the prompt use of Dr. J. H. McLean's Liver and Kidney Balm to remove the disorder as soon as possible, and restore the diseased organs to healthy and vigorous action. Price $1.00 per bottle.

Carl Rhea, the youngest son of C. A. Rhea, was thrown from his horse out on the Rhea creek ranch Sunday and was picked up in an insensible condition. It seemed for a time as though the little fellow was not going to revive, but prompt work brought him back to consciousness and it was ascertained that he had received no serious injuries.

You cannot be cheerful or happy while your liver is disordered, life is but a weary burden to persons so afflicted. Dr. J. H. McLean's Liver and Kidney Balm is the right thing to put this organ into healthy condition. It increases the secretion of bile, stimulates the kidneys and restores the organs of the body to the proper performance of their functions. Price $1.00 per bottle.

Zeek Mathews and wife arrived from Portland on Friday's train. They will leave this week for an outing at Teal Springs.

Mrs. Jane Boyer returned last week from a visit with her cousin, Mrs. Jesse Moore, of Echo, who is seriously ill.

R. S. Strabo, the well known lawyer and jurist, of Portland, died suddenly of apoplexy in that city on Sunday morning.

DEATH OF J. L. BEYMER.—On Sunday evening, at the home of 7:15 death visited the home of one of our most prominent citizens, and claimed as his victim therefrom, J. L. Beymer. A short time ago Mr. Beymer was quite seriously injured by being cut on a saw at the Millery mill. The injury, however, he seemed to recover from nicely, but was taken with pleuro-pneumonia, with which he became very seriously ill. Medical assistance, together with all the good care and attention that loving hands could bestow upon him proved unavailing and he grew gradually worse till the hour mentioned above when he peacefully passed away from this life to that beyond the river. Mr. Beymer was among Morrow county's best known and highly respected citizens. He came to this country some two years ago, living in Heppner for a time, where he followed his occupation of brick and stone mason, but shortly moved out to the Eight Mile country where he took up a home for himself and family and where they have since resided. J. L. Beymer was a good man and a conscientious christian, being a member of the M. E. church. At the time of his death he was 45 years of age, having passed that milestone on July 4th. He leaves a wife and family of nine children to mourn the loss of a loving husband and father, and his loss to the community in which he lived will be deeply felt. Several of the children are of age and the widowed mother will be kindly cared for by them. The funeral occurs at Hardman today at 2 o'clock, Rev. Frank A. Kline, of Heppner, conducting the services. To the bereaved family the sympathy of the entire community is extended in this their hour of great trial.

Thousands of persons flounder along for months, yes even years, suffering from indigestion, bowel troubles and liver disorders with their accompanying disagreeable symptoms, because they think they have it. If they would take a short course of Dr. J. H. McLean's Liver and Kidney Balm they would soon get rid of the miserable feeling and overpowering sense of weakness and incapacity for work, would give place to one of health, vigor and cheerfulness. Price $1.00 per bottle.

THE GILMAN UNDER NEW MANAGEMENT.—The Gilman hotel, of Portland, which has been the headquarters for so many Heppnerites in past years changed management on Monday of last week. S. R. Reeves, formerly of Heppner and well known in this county, but of more recent years a resident of La Grande, and E. Sanders, both veterans in the business, are now in full charge of this popular home. These gentlemen will spare no pains to make everything comfortable and pleasant for their guests, and we bespeak for them a liberal share of the patronage of this section, where Mr. Reeves is so well known.

DIED.—At Hardman, Oregon, early Sunday morning, July 21, 1895, Mrs. Sarah Coleman passed away, aged 58 years. Mrs. Coleman was taken very ill about three days before she died, but it was not until late Saturday night, when she grew suddenly worse, that a messenger was dispatched for a physician. Dr. McSwain, of this city was called, but did not reach the home of Mrs. Coleman before he learned that she was dead. We failed to learn the cause of her death.

Knights of the Maccabees.

The State Commander writes us from Lincoln, Neb., as follows: "After trying other medicines for what seemed to be a very obstinate cough in our two children, we tried Dr. King's New Discovery and at the end of two days the cough entirely left them. We will not be without it hereafter, as our experience proves that it will cure wherever all other remedies fail."

Signed, F. W. Hevers, State Com.—Why not give this great medicine a trial, as it is guaranteed and trial bottles are free at the drug store of T. W. Ayers, Jr.

FROM SAM CARMACK.

His many friends in the Heppner hills will be glad to hear of Sam Carmack. Writing from Joliet, Carbon Co., Montana, he says among other things: "Your letter found me busy moving my palatial residence. The piece of land I desired was not beneath a forested residence, therefore I have taken it upon myself to put it there. To many people wanting just such lands, and some claiming-jumping going on. Haven't ditch cleaned yet, but expect to commence work again in September. Some neighbors who put in crops, were afraid they would not be troubled to harvest their grain (wheat). We lost greater part of our garden. Times very close. Its quite tough on your humble servant as well as others here. The sheep men are feeling better than they did three months ago. Shearing almost over. Wool selling at 95 to 125 cents, when they had expected about 7 cents."

TRUTH STRANGER THAN FICTION.

The Franks of Cupid Past Accounting For.

It was 9 o'clock Thursday night the other week, save the Corvallis Times, when Charley Denny led Millie Smith to the hymenal altar, and solemnly pledged to love and cherish her, and was in turn accorded a promise of love and obedience by Millie. It was about the same hour in the evening some three years ago that this same Charles pulled the same Millie forcibly out of her bedroom window, in her father's house, three miles beyond the Willamette from Corvallis, and in spite of his screams and protestations started to his away with her in search of a person who could make their two hearts one and their two souls think only one thought. Charles had long been laying siege to Millie's heart and hand, but Millie's parents, as well as the widow herself objected to the match, and it was out of this hostility to his heart's desire that Charles Denny that night, Leobinvar-like, snatched Millie from the window and lit out for tall timber. There was, however, a hitch in Denny's proceedings. Millie was all fluttered and her screams brought out her father, a shotgun and the hired man. At sight of them Charles whipped out a revolver and held the screaming woman between himself and the shotgun. Then followed a series of part-ye, sort-ye, flank movements, retreats and other maneuvers. With his weapon Charles held his pursuers at bay, and they could not use the shotgun through fear of wounding the woman. Half the night, with not a shot fired, the affair lasted, and it only ended when a relative, who had been sought from Corvallis by the father, arrived on the scene and promised the betrothal if he would give up the girl he should wed her the next day. Denny consented, and the next day bright and early was at Albany with a marriage license in his pocket. While he stood in Schmeer's livery stable, Millie and her father drove in. Then happened the act that makes the late wedding of the parties probably the rarest and most curious of all the capers of our little Cupid. Denny asked Mrs. Millie Smith if she was ready to marry him, and when the reply came back, "Never, sir," he yanked out his trusty revolver and shot straight at the heart he coveted. He missed it, however, but it all passed through Mr. Denny's clothing. After that, there was a trial, with Millie as the prosecuting witness, and Charles defendant, and in due time the latter wound up in the penitentiary, where he served a year for the shot he took at Millie. All this is what makes the fact that Charles and Millie are now man and wife unusually unusual, and it ought to encourage unscrupulous old swaggers to hang on with bulldog tenacity to hope so long as there is a spark of life left.

Any one who has ever had an attack of inflammatory rheumatism will rejoice with Mr. J. A. Stamm, 229 Boyle Heights, Los Angeles, over his fortunate escape from a siege of that distressing ailment. Mr. Stamm is foreman of Merriam's confectionery establishment. Some months ago, on leaving the heated work room to run across the street on an errand, he was caught out in the rain. The result was that when ready to go home that night he was unable to walk, owing to inflammatory rheumatism. He was taken home, and on arrival was placed in front of a good fire and thoroughly rubbed with Chamberlain's Pain Balm. During the evening and night he was repeatedly bathed with this liniment, and by morning was relieved of all rheumatic pains. He now takes especial pleasure in praising Chamberlain's Pain Balm, and always keeps a bottle of it in the house. For sale by Slocum-Johnson Drug Co.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR SOCIETY.

The history of the Christian Endeavor society, its aims, the power and scope of its work are well known. Probably no other religious movement of the times approaches it either in size or effectiveness. An organization of which nearly 2,500,000 of people are banded together for a common object must possess tremendous power. That this great power has been directed steadily to the achievement of its avowed purpose is due, more than to any other thing, to the wisdom and inspiration of the founder and leader, the Rev. Francis E. Clark. He and his faithful coadjutors, Secretary Baer and Treasurer Shaw, are ever on the lookout for the welfare of the society and ever alive to the dangers into which it may fall. These men feel that the grant they have received must be given plenty of work to do, so an outlet for this enormous storehouse of energy is found in the varied tasks of the societies. Civic reform, good government, temperance and missions are some of the objects of their labor.

It is perhaps unjust to ask so young a society for great results other than those which can be expressed mathematically and geographically. History alone will decide what its true influence has been. One danger with which such a vast organization is confronted is that of falling under its own weight, unless there is a very substantial foundation.

It is comparatively easy to arouse a vast assemblage to high enthusiasm; it is another thing to impress it with an abiding purpose. These huge conventions, like the one which just closed at Boston, must inevitably give place to smaller ones, and the proposition to have a number of rallying points is even now under advisement. When this happens it will be more nearly possible to determine how much of the zeal of the members comes from the contagion of a great meeting and how much from a steady faith in the principles of the organization.

The only test worth applying to the work of this, like that of all other federations with similar objects, is the ultimate result upon individuals. The only result worthy the cause will be a greater and a distinct advance in the morality of the world.
