On one occasion, says the Florida Times-Union, Mr. Swan was engaged in presenting the case of a woman who petitioned the court to grant her a judicial separation from her husband, a workingman, and urged that as she was in extreme poverty she was entitled to alimony according to her husband's means.

With a voice broken in its pathos the lawyer dilated on the imperative necessity of the case, declaring that his client was utterly destitute, not having a mattress to lie upon, and not possessing the means to purchase a crust of

"Have you, then, no occupation?"

"Yes, my lord; I am a nurse," was the ineautious reply.

"And where are you employed?"

"I am at Mr. Swan's," she unwittingly rejoined, pointing to her counsel.

It was with the greatest difficulty that the judge refrained from joining in the shout of laughter with which this admission was hailed.

FEMININE VANITY.

It Crops Out Even Among Women Behind the Bars.

Vanity in a female prisoner would be merely laughable if it were not so sad to behold. It is, however, the one touck of nature which proves the human kinship, and there is perhaps some hope for even these poor, degraded creatures, if they are thus swayed by such harmless emotions. Prison matters as a servet he North American Raview.

"Fringes" are "going out," perhaps, in general society, but they are still amazingly popular in prison. Criminals will trim their hair as it pleases them, and the wisest disciplinarian affects to see nothing of the fringe. In the same way, once, when chignons were in vogue, the female felt happy whose locks escaped the prison scissors and were long enough to fold over a pad of oakum. The ingenuity, again, with which some prisoners will twist and turn their unbecoming unitations.
