CONGRESSMAN ELLIS INTERVIEWED.

From the Corvallis Gazette Congressman W. R. Ellis and wife visited Corvallis last week, before departing for Washington, D. C. They have a son and daughter attending the O. A. C., and came to bid them good bye. They were the guests of Prof. and Mrs J. B. Horner while in the city, and Friday evening were tendered an informal reception. Later in the evening the college band and the Bach Quartet serenaded them.

ing Mr. Ellis expressed himself as highly delighted with the results of the recent elections. He says republican success in '96 is inevitable. He does not class Kentuck or Maryland as sure republican states, for he considers that differences among the democrats largely contributed to their recent defeat, but he believes that they are doubtful, and there is a possibility of Louisians and even Alsbama being found in the republican column next fall. Although not a rabid partizan, Mr. Ellis is a stern believer in the principles of republicanism and in republican control of national affairs. He says that republicans at the coming session of congress, particularly those of the western states, will make a firm stand for protection to the wool growers equal to that now enjoyed by the manutacturers. Under the Wilson bill, the tariff on manufactured woolens is 60 per cent of that under the McKinley bill, while raw wool is admitted duty free. Lumber is another commedity the duty upon which Mr. Ellis thinks, the present congress will be able to increase. The principal matters of general national importance that will be acted upon this to be dressed. One limb became entirely winter, Mr. Ellis adds, will be the Nicaraguan canal proposition and a cracked that it would bleed. During proposed national bankrupt law. In an Interview With a Reporter She Reviews Her Experience and Tells the Real Cause of the Miracle.

(From the Argus, Alpena, Mich.)

We have long known Mrs. Jas. M. Todd, of Long Rapips, Alpena Co., Mich. She has been a sad cripple. Many of her friends know the story of her recovery; for the benefit of those who do not we publish it today. Eight years ago she was taken with nervous prostration, and in a few months with muscular inflammatory rheumatism. It affected her heart, then her head. Her feet became so swollen she could swollen shut more than half the time, her knee joints terribly swollen and for eighteen months she had to be held up belpless, and the skin was so dry and

Washington has more than its share of "the cankers of a caim world and a long peace." Some are reduced gentlemen, who just manage to keep their heads above water and maintain a deprecating front in their club and society. They are too lazy to work, says the Washington Post, and have long since run through with what little they have had in a brief splurge, and are now getting more shabby genteel and seedy looking every day. They retain, however, the debonnair air of men of wealth and bear themselves bravely, but oh, the pinching and struggling to keep up appearances! Oh, the sickening ordeal of having to face the lodging-house keeper, and, worst of all, the washerwoman! Oh, the mortification of belonging to a club, and being unable to do more than sit in it, and stay there, to be marked by the servants as a poor devil who never by any chance is able to reciprocate hospitality or orwear nothing on them; her hands were der anything, to have club dues drawn all out of shape. Her eyes were amounting up with no prospect but through a loan to meet them; to have the cold shoulder shown by the very men who helped him to run through his money, and who now give him a cool nod instead of both outstretched hands. This is the pity of it, yet there are men who endure it rather than leave

Washington. Such is the upas tree effeet of the life here on them. Lower down in the social strata you find in these eddies of the stream of humanity, the hotel corridors, regular habitues, shabby genteel, social, political and business failures, lobbyists, promoters, hangers-on of official magnates, men dismissed from the army and navy, cheap sporting "gents," all with red noses to a man. Everyone of them has seen better days, and they all fawning, and, sadder still, with a forced has turned claim agent, or is charitably supposed to be practicing law, while sinking down lower and lower every day. Here is a once prosperous business man who seems to have taken a contract or made a wager to drink up all the whisky in town. There a poor wretch who has spent the best years of his life in office, has lost his place and is now one of the procession of hotel corridor ghosts. There some brokenon here for years and has filed applications enough for office to start a paper mill. The hotel corridors are havens of rest for these poor, harmless, heartbroken "cankers of a calm world and a

A GIRL'S NOBLE ACT. Gallantly Rescues Three People and Gaine a Medal.

Few more gullant feats have ever been performed by women than that of Miss Evans, the daughter of Dr. Evans, cripple back to do her own milking, of Hythe, on the Southampton water, says the London Standard. Walking on the pier with a friend, she heard the ery of three persons whose boat had Dr. Williams' Pink Pills contain all down the steps, she sprang into the been capsized near the pier. Running water and soon brought the one nearest, a woman, safely to the steps. Then she swam off again to the others, a man between Turner and Aumsville, at the from Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, supported them until a rope was thrown and a girl. Waiting her opportunity, age of 73 years and one month, lecking Schenectady, N. Y., for 50c. per box, or to her, and she was then shie to get the men to the pier. The girl was going down for the third time, when Miss Evans dived, brought her to the surface, and took her also to the pier, thus saving three lives. It is difficult to know which is the more remarkable—the courage displayed, or the skill with which, hampered by her clothes, she was by a young lady, was almost if not quite without precedent in the anmind sicili and courage.
