Just Like Him. "Mom," said a boy to his mother, 'where's the blacking?" "I don't know," said the boy's mother, "unless grand-children were absent, Philip's had it." Philip was the boy's elder brother. The blacking outfit was kept in a blacking stand in Philip's room. He had found it pretty cold in his room that morning and so he had taken the things out into the diningroom and blacked his shoes there, and when he got through he had left the the dining-room quite warm enough to suit him, he gathered up the things and went and blacked his boots in the kitchen, and when he got through he left the things there.

Protecting Oyster Beds.

Private oyster beds in the upper Virginia waters of the Chesapeake have oyster thieves by a simple but ingenious device. The owner of the beds, sixteen acres in area, crossed them in two directions with five-eighth-inch wire secured to posts at the point of intersection. Both wires and posts are invisible, even at low tide. The oyster pirate that attacks the bed is sure sooner or later to lose his dredge by having it entangled in the wire, and thefts are rare.
