

PASSES THE HOUSE.

The new revenue bill, which passed the house last Friday, repeals the present tariff law until Aug. 1, 1898. It restores 60 per cent. of the old McKinley rates on wool, woollens, lumber and carpets, and makes a horizontal increase of the present rates on all other schedules, except sugar, of 15 per cent. This is the bill in short, and it is estimated to increase the revenues about $40,000,000 yearly. The passage of the bill was resisted by ex-Speaker Crisp and 80 other democrats, but for what purpose, except to be on the wrong side and to exhibit the stolid stubbornness so characteristic of the democratic majority in last congress, it is difficult to understand.

It is noticeable that the antagonists of the measure in the house had to draw largely upon their imaginations to say something against it. Crisp argued that the McKinley law was responsible for the conditions that now confronted the nation, even to the extent of nullifying the "good" effects of the Wilson-Gorman law. He noted that during the last four months of Harrison's administration the deficiency was over $4,000,000, and during the nine months preceding March, 1893, over $58,000,000 in gold had been sent abroad.

Conceding that the above is all true, it does not take a long array of figures to show that from the date of Cleveland's election to his inauguration was just four months, and that the business men of the country at once began to prepare themselves for the inevitable, and the McKinley law was really annulled the very day that Cleveland was elected. Do you suppose that a rational man will buy goods and make large transactions on uncertainties? No, of course not. Hence Mr. Crisp's $4,000,000 argument falls flat. It is also noticeable that he takes pains to avoid stating how much gold was returned to America against the $58,000,000 sent out, or the many reasons why gold should go abroad at that time. Even if it were a net balance against us Mr. Crisp neglected to state, as many politicians do, that it was evident the republicans could not be successful in 1892, many months before election. Business men knew what it meant. Railroad building and the furthering of other enterprises ceased, and money owed to foreigners, not being absorbed in business and bringing returns, was called home. It is useless to argue against the cold, hard truths that are patent to all.

AN EXAMINATION of the workings of the Wilson-Gorman law shows that during the first year of its existence it actually took out of the treasury in gold $179,000,000. Then there is need of an increase in revenue, and also something to stimulate exports and the use of fewer foreign goods. The efforts to "capture the markets of the world" have proved flat failures.

None But Ayer's at the World's Fair. Ayer's Sarsaparilla enjoys the extraordinary distinction of having been the only blood purifier allowed an exhibit at the World's fair, Chicago. Manufacturers of other sarsaparillas sought by every means to obtain showing of their goods, but they were all turned away under the application of the rule forbidding the entry of patent medicines and nostrums. The decision of the World's fair authorities in favor of Ayer's Sarsaparilla is in effect as follows: "Ayer's Sarsaparilla is not a patent medicine. It does not belong to the list of nostrums. It is here on its merits."

A NEEDED MEASURE. Representative Ellis has introduced into the house of representatives a bill for the relief of the settlers upon our western lands. The measure is eminently a just one, and should receive the favorable consideration of congress at an early date. As can be seen from a perusal of the bill, the two vital points are, first, that actual residence shall not be required in order to obtain a patent; and secondly, that tracts of land not contiguous may be purchased, provided they do not exceed 320 acres in the aggregate. Both these provisions are equitable, and Mr. Ellis will confer a substantial benefit upon intending purchasers of railroad forfeiture lands should he succeed in having his bill become law.

A FOOLISH and unnecessary cry of fire caused the death of twenty-four people in a Baltimore theatre Friday night last.

A GOODLY portion of the surplus which "Harrison's administration got away with"—in fact, nearly all of it went towards paying off the bonded indebtedness.

THE election up in Manitoba brings to the front the fight over the school question. It is a question of parochial schools or a public school system distinctly apart from the church.

It is claimed that the president has appointed ex-Ministers Lincoln and Phelps as two of the commission to examine into the Venezuelan matter. An associate justice will probably be the other one.

LET more revenue be collected and give us fewer importations of foreign goods and the greenbacks will not be in such demand to drag out gold. Then pay silver certificates in silver and the troubles are all ended.

THE passage of the new tariff bill is made with the understanding that it shall be in effect only two and one-half years, with the assurance from the president that he will sign same should it pass the senate. Of this there is little doubt.

THE Gazette believes that the passage of the revenue bill is sufficient for all needs at the present time, and that the bond proposition has down deep in it a scheme to uselessly retire the greenbacks. It is our opinion that it should not become a law.

TO BE prominent anywhere one must have marked characteristics. So it is with an advertisement in the crowded columns of newspapers and magazines; in order to produce the best result it must be clear, definite, conspicuous and fresh. Is yours of this character?—Thompson.

BOTH Hermann and Ellis voted against the bond bill, thus showing that they were patriotic and determined to stand by their constituents and the dictates of their own consciences. The business element of Oregon's population could not have been better pleased or more clearly represented, even had they been previously consulted.

A WAR ECHO.

EVERY HONORABLE VETERAN DESERVES HIS PENSION.

And the Lone Limb is not the Only Reason for a Government Reward Either.

(From Journal, Lewiston, Me.) Samuel R. Jordan has just given the Journal an account of his life, which in view of his extremely hard lot for the past few years will read with interest.

"I am 48 years old and have always lived in New Portland. I enlisted in the army in 1862 as a private in Company A, 25th Me. Volunteers. My army experience injured my health to some extent, although I worked at blacksmithing some part of the time, when, suddenly, several years ago, I was prostrated with what able physicians pronounced Locomotor Ataxia. At first I could get around somewhat yet the disease progressed quite rapidly until I had hardly any feeling in my legs and feet, they felt like sticks of wood and I grew so much worse that I could not move for three weeks without help, as my neighbors and friends can testify. I employed several physicians in my vicinity, and elsewhere, and they all told me that medicines would not help me, that they could do nothing to effect a cure and that in time I should become entirely helpless. I became discouraged. I was a great care to my wife and friends. Shortly after I met an old army comrade, Mr. A. L. Parlin, a resident of Madison Maine, and he incidentally mentioned how he had tried Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for a severe case of rheumatism and a spinal and malarial trouble, that he had suffered with consequent of his army life, and had been greatly benefited by their use. By his earnest recommendation I was induced to try the pills. After taking them for a time I began to feel prickly sensations in my legs and a return of strength so I could move them a little. After a few weeks I began to feel a marked improvement in my condition. I soon was enabled to walk around a little with the help of crutches. After taking for some time I can now walk without crutches, my general health is much improved and I have regained my old-time vigor. I can walk about and enjoy life once more, for which I feel very thankful, and this happy result is due to the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for pale people are not a patent medicine in the sense that name implies. They were first compounded as a prescription and used as such in general practice by an eminent physician. So great was their efficacy that it was deemed wise to place them within the reach of all. They are now manufactured by the Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Schenectady N. Y., and are sold in boxes (never in loose form by the dozen or hundred), and the public are cautioned against numerous imitations sold in this shape at 50 cents a box, or six boxes for $2.50, and may be had of all druggists or direct by mail from Dr. Williams' Medicine Company.

AN EXCHANGE has these items: Take pride in your town. Be public spirited. If there is a project on foot to improve the town help it along with your money if you can; but anyway by your good words.

No matter how "one-horse" your town may be, be thankful that it isn't a one-jackass town, and put forward your best efforts to make it a two horse city.

There is lots of capital waiting for investment today. Possibly some of it could be used advantageously in your town, but if the town is full of croakers none of that capital will go there.

What use is there in eating when food does you no good—in fact, when it does you more harm than good, for such is the case if it is not digested.

If you have a loathing for food there is no use of forcing it down, for it will not be digested. You must restore the digestive organs to their natural strength and cause the food to be digested, when an appetite will come, and with it a relish for food.

The tired, languid feeling will give place to vigor and energy, then you will get back on your horse and become strong. The Shaker Digestive Cordial is made by the Mount Lebanon Shakers contains food already digested and is a digester of food as well. Its action is prompt and its effects permanent.

Doctors prescribe Laxol because it has all the virtues of Castor Oil and is palatable.

SCHOOL MATTERS.—Miss Ada Jones has given up her place in the Heppner school to Miss Kinsman, as per agreement between the young ladies. Miss Jones departed on Saturday's train for Martin's Ferry, Ohio, where she will spend three or four months with relatives. Though Miss Jones' resignation occasioned a great loss to the school and community, the Gazette trusts that there will be a corresponding gain in the addition of Miss Kinsman to the already efficient corps of teachers.

The wife of Mr. D. Robinson, a prominent lumberman of Hartwick, N. Y., was sick with rheumatism for five months. In speaking of it, Mr. Robinson says: "Chamberlain's Pain Balm is the only thing that gave my rest from pain. For the relief of pain it cannot be beat." Many very bad cases of rheumatism have been cured by it. For sale at 50 cents per bottle by Phil Cobb, Druggist.

SUNDAY'S WEDDING.

At the close of the services at the Catholic church last Sunday, Mr. Ed. Doherty and Miss Annie Doherty were made man and wife. Rev. Father Benzel performing the ceremony in the presence of the large congregation which had assembled, in a most impressive manner.

A wedding dinner was given at The Palace at the close of services. As near as our reporter could learn, the following were present: Rev. Father R. J. Benzel, of Pendleton; the groom and wife, L. A. Smith, Jas. K. Kinney, Jas. Carty, Chas. Van Winkle, Jas. Doherty and wife, Francis Keller, Ed. McDaid, Tom Gillfillen, Mr. and Mrs. Barratt, John Kilkenny, B. P. Doherty and wife, Pat and Phil Doherty, Miss Mary McDevitt, of Pendleton, Mrs. Felix Johnson and son, Jas. I. L. Van Winkle, Jas. Neville, Pat Kilkenny, Mike Kenny and wife, John and Frank Kilkenny, John Curran, Barney F. Doherty, E. McDevitt and Jas. R. Kenny.

Clay Folsom took a flashlight picture of the gathering at the table. It was quite successful.

Mr. and Mrs. Doherty have many friends in Morrow county and all join in well-wishes.

A QUEER CASE.

From the Oregonian's Washington Cor. Representative Ellis has discovered a queer ruling of the pension office which he is trying to have righted. It is in the case of Thomas Taylor, of Lostine, Or., who is now 77 years old. He had been drawing a pension of $24 per month since 1868, but in March 1895, one of the numerous special examiners going through the country fell upon the old man and secured from him and his wife an admission that he had suffered from pneumonia previous to the war, and his pension was cut off on the ground that his disability was contracted previous to his service. He was, however, allowed a pension at the rate of $12 per month under the act of June 1890, known as the disability act, but the pension office further held that, as he had wrongfully drawn a pension from 1868 to that time, he would not be allowed to draw any of the money until the government had collected in pensions all that had been paid heretofore. A little calculation shows that the old soldier would have to live to be 140 years old before he would begin to receive any benefit under the act which gives him $12 per month. Taylor enlisted just before he was 45 years of age. He had a son killed at the battle of Shiloh, and, upon receipt of the news, he went immediately to the front and served for three years. Representative Ellis says there ought to be a law barring the government from suspending and dropping a man from the pension rolls after he passed through the examination of the government's own officers and had been allowed a pension after a careful scrutiny.

The famous Judge Long case may cover the Taylor case, if the supreme court should hold that a pension is a vested right, which is the contention of Judge Long. In this case, Pension Commissioner Lochren reduced Long's pension, and the latter claims that, as the government, after due examination, has granted a pension, it cannot for any other act than that of treason refuse to pay it; that it becomes a vested right, a contract, which the government is bound to carry out.

Since coming home, he has disposed of his Heppner business and it is presumed that he will not remain long with us. While East Mr. McFarland visited all the notable resorts and enjoyed the trip immensely, besides being successful in a business way. Everything is quiet East, and there is much complaint of hard times.

BROILED STURGEON.

This is the Way the Fisherman Eats It If He Can Get a Young Fish.

"In the minds of most people," said a man with an expert knowledge of fish and fishing, "the sturgeon is doubtless associated with the idea of a big fish only; they think of him when he is well grown and has come to weigh seventy-five to two hundred and fifty pounds, and I suppose that most people, when they think of sturgeon as a food, think only of smoked sturgeon, which is the form in which it is most commonly placed in the market. To those familiar with the fish in these forms only the idea of broiled sturgeon might seem humorously grotesque, but broiled is the way the fisherman eats it if he can get a sturgeon of the right size. "The flesh of the old sturgeon is coarse and rough; that of the young sturgeon is finer and much more palatable. If you take a sturgeon that weighs eight or ten pounds and cut out steaks five or six inches back from the head and broil them you will find them very good. But the sturgeon is rather oily and you can't eat very much of them. Young sturgeon is sometimes fried, but not so often; it is better broiled; but along the water front men make a stew of sturgeon, with onions, that is by no means unpalatable."

VICTORIOUS JAPAN.

It was the custom years ago, for the Japanese ladies to gild their teeth. TERRA COTTA sleepers are in use on Japan railroads. The increased cost is compensated for by the greater resistance to decay.

MRS. HISSA OHTAMA, wife of the Japanese minister at Vienna, has joined the Roman Catholic church, with her husband's consent.

JAPANESE politeness translates into queer English. "How is your honorable wife?" one gentleman will ask. "I thank you, honorable sir, my dirty fool of a wife is well," is the answer.

THE Japanese are now getting used to glass. At first the glass in railway car windows had to be smeared with streaks of white paint to keep passengers from poking their heads through it. GEN. SHIGEMITSU WOLSELEY says that one secret of the superiority of Japan's military system is that the profession of arms is held in high regard, while in China the lowest classes only are recruited into the army, and soldiers are rather looked down upon.

"Do you think," he asked, "that there is any truth in the saying: 'All the world loves a lover?'" "Why, of course," she replied; "that's one of the things we take for granted." "I'm glad to hear you say so. You know I have always told you that you are all the world to me."—Washington Star.

After Dec. 1, 1895, the Gazette will make a discount of 10 per cent. from list on all staple job work. This reduction is made on the supposition that cash will be paid for all work as soon as completed.
