BY SARAH B. KENYON.

Mr. Rogers was thinking. His thoughts went back twenty years, and he saw himself a young man doing a prosperous business, and, although not in partnership, still intimately associated with one who had been his playmate, neighbor and close friend for thirty years. And then Mr. Rogers saw the financial trouble that had come upon him, and he thought bitterly that, if the friend had played the part of a friend, it might have been averted.

He saw the twenty years of estrange-ment; he felt again the bitterness of that hour of failure. Mr. Rogers rose from his chair, and, going to his safe, drew from it three notes for five thousand dollars each, due on the following Monday. "Twenty years is a long time to wait for justice," said he to himself; "but now, and without my lifting a finger, these notes have come into my possession, and I know, Robert French, that it will be hard for you to pay them. I knew justice would be done at last." And Mr. Rogers replaced the notes in his safe and closing his office went home to eat. Many a man will cry out for justice when it is revenge he de-

On Monday morning Mr. Rogers went to the station to take the eight o'clock train for Boston. He had just taken his seat in the car when he heard his neighbor, standing by his seat. "Are you going to town?" asked Mr.

Palmer. "Yes," was the reply. "Anything I can do for you?" "I wish you would take charge of my little girl as far as M-. Her grandmother will meet her there. I have promised her this visit for a week, and intended to take her down myself, but just at the last minute I have received a dispatch that I must be here to meet some men who are coming out on the next train."

"Why, of course I will," said Mr. Rogers, heartily. "Where is she?" At these words a tiny figure clambered on the seat, and a cheerful voice announced: "Here I is!"

"Thank you," said Mr. Palmer. "Good-by, Betty; be a good girl and papa will come for you to-morrow." "Good-by, papa; give my love to the baa-lammie, and all the west of the fam'ly," replied Betty. People looked around and laughed at Betty's putting the lamb at the head of the family. They saw a very little girl under an immerse hat, and with a pair of big blue eyes and rosy cheeks. Mr. Rogers put her next to the window, and began to talk with her.

"How old are you, Betty?" he asked. "I'm half-past four; how old are you?" promptly returned Betty. "Not quite a hundred," laughed Mr. Rogers, "but pretty old, for all that." "Is that what made the fur all come off the top of your head?" she asked, looking thoughtfully at his bald head, for the heat had caused him to take off Mr. Rogers said he guessed so.

"Do you? and what do you do there?" but I don't know it yet; but I know the that if you want to renew those notes first one I had; want me to tell it to that are due to-day, I am ready to do you?" and the big blue eyes looked con- | so, and-and-" fidingly up at Mr. Rogers.

done me a world of good," said he, sincerely, as he raised his hat and, bidding Betty good-by, stepped back into the Mr. Rogers resumed his seat, and looked out of the window, but he did not see the trees, nor the green fields, nor the penceful river, with its thousands of white water lilies like stars in the midnight sky. Had he told the Lord that he was glad his "innyment" had broken his velocipede, and evald not join in the race for wealth and position? When he came to put the question straight to his soul, it certainly did look like it. It was of no use for him to say that the notes were honestly due. He knew that he could afford to wait for the money, and that if Robert French was money, and that if Robert Prench was printing, hope, hay, potatoes, buch-forced to pay them at once, he would wheat and cows, second in sait, liq-probably be ruined; and he heard the norm and railways, there is tron and of this disease. I visited Hot Springs and was treated by the best medical men, but was not benefited. When all things had termined to and in four the terrible eczema was gone, not a sign of it left. My general health built up, and I have never had any return of the disease. I have often the sign of the disease. I have often the sign of the disease.

your 'innymunts,' "and he said in his heart, using the old familiar name of his boyhood days: "Lord, I'm sorry Rob has broken his velocipede; I'll lend him mine until he gets his mended." Had the sun suddenly come out from behind a dark cloud? Mr. Rogers thought so; but it had really been shining its brightest all the morning. A boy came through the train with great bunch of water lilies, calling: Liliescentapiecesixforfi." "Here, boy!" called Mr. Rogers.

"Where did those come from?" "White Pond Lily cove," said the boy, eying Mr. Rogers with some perplexity. He had been train boy for five years, and never had known him to buy anything but the Journal. "What'll you take for that bunch?" "Fifty cents," replied the boy,

Mr. Rogers handed him the half-dollar, and took the tragrant lines. "How do you get into the cove now?" he asked, as the boy pocketed the money and was moving on.

"Git out'n' shove her over the bar," replied the boy as he went on.

Mr. Rogers looked down at the flowers with streaks of pink on the outer petals, at the smooth, pinkish-brown stems, and thought of the time, forty years before, when he and Rob, two barefooted urchins, had rowed across White pond in a leaky boat, and by great exertion dragged and pushed it over the bar, and been back home at seven o'clock in the morning with such a load of lilies as had never been seen in the village before. Yes, he remembered it; and Rob's mother was frying doughnuts when they got back, and she had given them six apiece. Oh, she knew what boys' appetites were! She had been dead for thirty years, he thought.

Just then the cars glided into the station. Everybody rushed out of the train, Mr. Rogers following in a kind of dream. He walked along until he came to Sudbury street, and stopped at a place where he read: "Robert French, Manufacturer of Steam and Gas Fittings."

He entered the building and, going up one flight of stairs, opened a door and entered a room fitted up as an office. A man sat at a desk, anxiously Betty pointed out various objects of examining a pile of papers. He look interest and made original comments up as Mr. Rogers entered, stared at upon them, not at all abashed by her him as if he could not believe his eyes, companion's age and gravity.
