QUEER WESTERN DUELS.

Curiosities of the Code of Honor on the Mexican Frontier.

Hard Fights for Life with the Lasso-Som of Farmer Peece's Notorious Achievements-Encounters on the Comstock-Underground Fights.

The riata duel is not a new thing on the Mexican frontier. Indeed, there is hardly a big cattle range anywhere that has not its stories of hard fights with the lasso. Such ducls are bound to be flerce. But so skillful and quick do hese rope-throwers become that such a duel not unfrequently lasts for hours.

Probably the best-remembered fight of this sort, says the San Francisco Examiner, was that between a Texan known as Kid Long and a little Mexican who was only spoken of as "Gabilan"hawk-on the great Lievre range. They sircled around each other, dodging the rapid throws from ten in the morning until after sunset. When the horses had almost given out the Texan threw at his adversary, who threw back so that his noose passed right over the other man's lasso and hand and raught him fair around the neck and under the armpit. In almost no time Kid was out of his saddle and being fragged over the ground at a rate that knocked the life out of him before he had gone a hundred yards. The West, during its wild and woolly lays, and the Mexican frontier have had many remarkable duels. That between "Farmer" Peel and a soldier near one of the forts in Utah is among the classics of the field of honor-or what has answered for that in the cow towns and mining camp. The weapons were rifles, revolvers and bowie-knives. Ocean Steamers Leave Portland The principals were placed on opposite sides of a hillock, around which ran a oad, and started to meet. The curve of the hill prevented their seeing one another until they were within a hundred yards. As soon as they saw one another they both fired. Though part of the rim of Peel's hat was cut off and the soldier's sleeve was pierced, neither was hurt. Then they pulled their pistols and advanced, firing. Both dropped badly wounded when less than twenty yards separated them. They lay there squirming and shooting until both had emptied their weapons. Pecl was desperately hurt, and his adversary had one ball through the stomach and several others distributed all over his anatomy. When they could shoot no more they lay for a short time swearing. Then Peel, who was so badly hurt that he could not advance even on his hands and knees, began to wriggle toward the fallen soldier. He pulied nimself along with his elbows, and with his one uninjured hand finished the soldier with his bowie-knife.

Farmer Peel already had the biggest private graveyard of any man in the This encounter spread his fame all over the coast, and when he went over to Nevada he received everywhere the homage of lesser knights.

They have lots of deadly encounters up there on the Comstock. There was one a number of years ago fought over half a mile underground. According to the evidence given at the inquest by the survivor, the two miners were working alone in a drift. They were rivals for the affections of a woman, and in a quarrel one made a drive at the other with his candlestick. A miner's candlestick consists of a metal socket attached to a sharp steel spike, so that it can be stuck in the face of the drift anywhere. The second miner defended himself with his candlestick, and there, thousands of feet under the ground, they wrestled and stabbed until one's life was gone. As they did not come up
