AN ODD BANQUET. At Which a Fashionable Londoner Burl His Bachclorhood.

Most men experienced in dining out have attended what might be aptly trying various remedies and physicalled "crank dinners" where some hobby came into play or an odd eccentricity was grotesquely indicated. One good. My finger nails came off and of the queerest banquets of this character took place a few years ago at a perfectly bald. I then went to fashionable restaurant in London, where an acquaintance engaged a cabinet particulier to celebrate what he

When the guests arrived they came in two mourning coaches drawn by huge black horses with long tails, such as one sees wending their way to the cemeteries. The host was dressed in deep mourning, with sables around cach arm. He was evidently in some MI Waukee & St. Paul R'U respects a morbid man who reveled in his mortuary wit, for when the manager of the restaurant knocked at the door (it was getting late) and desired to know if the obsequies were quite over the giver of the feast was reading the burial service with mock solemnity over an empty claret bottle.

He addressed the manager as a 'potent, grave and reverend seignior," requested one of his guests to play him out to the strains of the "Dead March in Saul" and protested that the dinner could not be completed "until it was half mourning." This comedy or farce. interlude or whatever one may call it, was kept up to the very end by the convives departing as lugubriously and solemnly as they had entered.

A Joke Tried by Jury. A North Carolina paper tells the following: At Harnett county superior court, a few years since, Judge Shipp presiding, the trial of a cause had been protracted till near midnight. The ury was tired and sleepy and showed flagging attention. Willie Murchison, who was addressing the jury, thought to arouse them, so he said: "Gentlemen, I will tell you an anecdote." Instantly the judge, the jury and the few spectators pricked up their ears and were all attention, as Murchison was admirable in that line, had a fund of anecdotes and no one could tell them better. But he soen proceeded to tell one of the dullest, prosiest and most pointless jokes possible. Everybody looked disappointed. The judge, leaning over, said in an unmistakable tone of disappointment: "Mr. Murchison, I don't see the point to that joke." "Nor I, either," replied the witty counsel. But your honor told it to me on our way down here and as I thought the lack of appreciation must be due to my obtuseness I concluded to give the joke a trial by jury."
