It Failed Because His Priend Refused t See the Point. "The elevated railroad has just ha toppay twenty thousand dollars be cause one of its guards attacked a pas senger and smashed him in the face,' said Mr. Skeemer to Mr. Plotz, according to the New York World. "Now, I have a scheme. You and me aren't doing anything just now, and we might put it into practice."

"What is it?" demanded Plotz.

"I'll get a job as brakeman on the elevated, you get on my train and then I'll attack you. As soon as I see you I become uncontrollable, make a wild dash for you, kick you in the stomach, knock out your teeth, black your eye, and then throw you out of the window. You sue the company, all the passengers testifying that the assault was entirely unprovoked, as it was, and the jury will award you anywhere from twenty thousand to fifty thousand dollars. We divide evenly, of course. The bigger licking I give you the more money we get."

"Yes," interrupted Plotz, "I get the licking, and 'we' get the money. Suppose I be the brakeman! I used to sweep out a railroad station, and I'll take to the business easier than you. Besides I'm a harder puncher than you. After I get through with you the job would be worth seventy-five thousand dollars at least. How about it?"

"No," replied Skeemer, "the idea is mine, and if I can't assign the speaking parts I won't play. Oh, very well; if you don't want to, simply don't. I'll just hire a man for fifty dollars to let me pound him, and then I'll get all the profits for myself. I'm going right down town now to see Col. Hain and get the job and you'll feel pretty sick when you read in the papers about another elevated guard running amuck and half-killing a passenger. Won't you wish you'd been him? I'll be a rich man in a week." And he headed for down town to get the job.

WHITTIER'S COURAGE.

He Hazarded Life and Popularity in the Cause of Abolition

Before he was thirty he had made up his mind that it was his duty to do what sleeping car berth has an electric reading lamp he could for the relief of the unfortunate negroes who were held in bondage Other lines are longer than this, but none ar in the south. In 1833 he wrote a pamphlet called "Justice and Expediency," in which he considered the whole question of slavery, and declared that it should cease forever. Three years later, writes Prof. Brander Matthews in St. Nicholas, he became secretary of the Anti-Slavery society. In 1838 he went to Philadelphia to edit the Pennsylvania Freeman; and so boldly did he advocate the right of the negro to own himself that the printing office was sacked by a mob and burned. Then, as more than once afterward for the same cause, Whittier was in danger of his life

Whittier showed physical courage in facing the ruffians who wished to prevent free speech; but he had revealed the higher moral courage in easting his lot with the little band of abolitionists. Up to this time he had looked forward to holding public office, as well he might, when many another journalist was stepping from the newspaper desk nto public life. When he became one of the small band who denounced slavery, he gave up all chance of office. He also had literary ambition, but so strong was the power of the slave owners then, and so intolerent were they, that most editors and publishers were sorely intimidated, and declined to print not only any attack on slavery, but even the other writings of an author who was known as an abolitionist. Thus Whittier, in Identifying himself with the anti-slavery movement, thought that he was giving up his literary future also. He made his decision promptly, and he never regretted it. Indeed, in later life he said to a boy of fifteen to whom he was giving counsel: "My lad, if thou wouldst win success, join yourself to some unpopular but noble cause."

THE BICYCLE CANNON. How the Guns May Be Mounted in Future Wars.

With the many new devices of offense and defense which have recently made their appearance comes the bleyclecannon. The gun mounted on a bicycle was in a parade in New York city recently, and was seen by thousands of people, says the National Tribune.

The vehicle was a twin cycle, in appearance much like a tricycle, and known as a duplex. It is especially light and strong. The cannon, a steel rifled affair thirty-four inches inlength, eight inches at the butt and four at the muzzle, and weighing about fifty pounds, is swung between the two rear wheeles, resting upon the connecting axle and is further supported from above. An ingenious mechanism permits of the piece of ordnance being raised or deflected to any angle. The caisson containing the ammunition is carried on another duplex. Four artillerymen equip the battery. They are at once gun crew and motive power. Two men on the seats can propel the machines with their heavy loads at a faster gate than horses have ever shown in similar service. The work of wheeling the gun into position is the work of an instant.

with the name of Virginia Dare, the town. first white child of English descent born on American soil, and the colony of which her parents were members. The colony was sent from England by Sir Walter Haleigh in 1587, and landed on Ronnoke island under Gov. John White, who soon went back to England for supplies, and though he had left his own family on the island, did not come back for three years. When he came back the colony had disappeared. though there was no evidence that it had been the victim of violence or famine. It had simply moved, and had ndicated where it had gone. Gov. White seems to have been singularly indifferent to the fate of his family. whose place of refuge he seems to have known, and he did not prosecute any earch for them in person, though Sir. Walter Raisigh sent five unsuccessful expeditions to flud the colony.

In the Mid-Continent Magazine Frances Jones Melton gives the reasons for maintaining that the descendants of the lost colony have been found in the Crostans, on Lumber river, a mixed people of English and Imitan descent, who bear English names, and many of whom have the gray eyes, fair complexion and blonde hair of the Anglo-Suxon. In the retrestriction period the name

This classification was vigorously resented by Lowrie and his people, who are proud of their descent and have kept themselves distinct from whites, negroes and Indians alike. Miss Melton gives a very interesting account of these peculiar people, and the evidence she summarizes makes a strong support for her claims that they are the descendants of Sir Walter's lost

CATCHING DOGS IN OKLAHOMA.

How the People Deal with Curs That Have Forfeited All Rights. Down in Oklahoma they have many A. W. PATTERSON, Agent for Morrow County, Heppner, Oregon queer ways and queer things. The way they dispose of outlaw dogs, says the Kansas City Star, would cause a citizen of Kansas City, who is used to the comparatively peaceful ways of the dog cutcher and his wire noose and profanity, a shock. They have neither wagon nor noose in Oklahoma cities, but they have few stray curs which have forfeited their right to live because they have no master. Not long ago a Kansas City man stood on one of the principal streets of a bustling town. looking up and down and figuring on the tablet of his mind a future great city, when up the street he heard the report of a gun and saw a crowd of people run in every direction. he thought, "a tragedy. What luck. For your ordinary peaceful citizen likes nothing better than the stimulus of a shock of that kind when in a country with a reputation for desperate deeds and men. Stand in the street was a small man holding a smoking shotgun, and writhing upon the ground was a big yellow dog. Another shot and the dog was dead. Then the crowd swarmed in and the man with the gun wormed his way out, followed by a crowd of adoring small boys. It was the city dog catcher. No noose and long torture for dogs in that town. The city executioner just loads up his One of the most remantic legends of gun and goes out and cancels a dog or American history is that connected two, and then collects a salary from the

A VALUABLE PEBBLE.

The Accidental Good Fortune of a Hunter in India. Precious stones are still numerous in certain districts of Iudia, and occasionally a fine gem is found by a sports man or traveler. A young English officer, returning from an answe hunt on the estate of a petty chief. picked up a atone which lay in his path, and idly threw it against a rock. It broke in a dozen pieces and out fell a brilliant pebble. The Englishman picked it up, looked at it, and was about to throw it away, but changed his mind. "Til keep it," said he, "as a memento of a day's hunt when I didn't shoot so much as a rat." Some days later, in Bombay, while having his watch repaired, he showed the stone to the jeweler, and asked its worth 'I'll give you twenty pounds for it, said the jeweler, after a careful exami nation. Had he offered a shilling he might have been told to take the stone and keep the shilling, but the offer of twenty pounds aroused the officer's simpleions, to be responded, with a laugh: "I dare say you would give me that and a trille more, but I'm going to take it to England." He did so, and of Heary Bell Lowrie was yery famili- | sold his "pubble" in London for $15,000.
