WEATHER AND HEALTH.

Weakly Persons Most Susceptible to Climatic Changes.

You know the weather affects your health, but have you ever satisfied yourself as to how it does it? By observing the barometer for a few months and comparing your feelings with its readings you will discover that they fluctuate in harmony.

Healthy, vigorous persons are not affected by the changing pressure and moisture of the atmosphere like those who are diseased or have weak spots.

A TOUCH OF KINDNESS. The Tramp's Humane Impulse Brought Him No Reward.

He sat slouchingly upon the end of the park bench, his head hanging listlessly over his breast.

In the tree the sparrows hopped and twittered in the shade of the foliage. Suddenly through the branches came twisting a tiny feathering, striving hard to make its tender wings bear up the weight of its body.

He drew the bunch a little closer to the tree and alighted upon it. That he laid within reach of a lower limb. He laid the little bird carefully on a forked branch and, with a strength surprising in one so feeble, he drew himself up and sat on the limb.

HOW TO LIVE LONG. Marriage is the Prescription of a Distinguished Berlin Physician.

Some curious figures have lately been made public by a celebrated Berlin physician, which seem to point to the fact that if a man wants to live long and preserve his health and strength he ought to marry.

From the Dallas Chronicle. What a spectacle it would be if the Oregonian would support the prohibition candidate for congress in the second district, and yet such action would not be surprising, since McKeeber, the candidate in question, has intimated that he would be guided by the views of the Oregonian regarding the currency question.

second district. His defeat would be certain.

The East Oregonian thinks that sound money men should feel encouraged because all estimates show that the sound money men will have a sufficient majority to dictate the platform of the democratic national convention.

The Portland Oregonian seems to be rather good natured in its opposition to the candidacy of Mr. Ellis for congress, but it seems to be determined to organize a bolt.

RECENTLY A WILD RUMOR WAS CHASING THROUGH THE ATMOSPHERE THAT HARVEY SCOTT HAD DROPPED DEAD IN PORTLAND.

Recently a wild rumor was chasing through the atmosphere that Harvey Scott had dropped dead in Portland. Of course every newspaper man in Salem wanted to know right away whether there was any truth in the report, owing to the prominence of the veteran editor of the Oregonian.

Repairing to the central office, he called up the Oregonian. It so happened that it was an hour when the editorial rooms of the great Portland daily were not occupied, and the amiable Harvey himself, happening to be present, answered the call.

"Is Harvey Scott dead?" "What's that?" "Is Harvey Scott dead?" "Dead! Not by a d—d sight."

The reporter recognized the voice and dropped the telephone like a hot potato.

A BROTHER OF MRS. VAN NORDEN KILLED THROUGH A FIT OF RAGE. From the Dallas Chronicle.

Mrs. F. H. VanNorden of this city is stricken with grief today over the instant death of her brother at Lakeview, near Sacramento Tuesday, who was murdered without provocation at a moment's notice.

The young man, Walter Freeman by name, was only 22 years old. He was an amateur athlete, a sport in which he took considerable pride. While indulging in a little recreation with his friends, presumably in a club room, he engaged in a wrestling match with a friend, and threw him to the floor.

The jugular vein was severed and Freeman expired in a few moments. These details are all that is known of the affair at present and were contained in a letter to Mr. VanNorden, which he received this morning. It was deemed undesirable to telegraph the news, fearing the shock to the sister of the deceased. The friends of the stricken lady will deeply regret her sudden bereavement, more especially in the disastrous way in which the deed was accomplished.

Still the collection of customs under the new law amounts to only $164,501,326, while those of the McKinley law amounted to $173,000,070 in its first fiscal year.

THE INCREASE OF IMPORTATIONS OF DUTIABLE GOODS IS SOMETHING ENORMOUS, WHILE THE FREE IMPORTATIONS HAVE NOT INCREASED.

The total importations of dutiable goods during 1895 was $416,333,307, while the total importation of goods paying duty in the last fiscal year of the McKinley law amounted to only $357,645,702.

The new law largely increases the amount of dutiable goods brought into the country, but gives the people no more free importations than did the McKinley law. Another remarkable development in this showing is that there is a great falling off in the importation of articles of food free of duty, while the articles of food which may pay duty have enormously increased.

The articles of food imported free of duty in 1895 amounted to only $122,922,380, while those of the same class imported free of duty in the last fiscal year of the McKinley law amounted to $244,104,750.

On the other hand the imports of articles of food which paid a duty in 1895 were more than treble the amount on which a duty was collected in the last fiscal year of the McKinley law. The articles under these classifications include breadstuffs, chemicals, cocoa, tea, coffee, sugar, rice, salt, provisions, fruits, spices, etc., and are thus all of them of a class which the masses must have. Yet the new law, which professed to be framed in the interest of the masses and to reduce the burdens of tariff taxation, has cut down by nearly one-half the articles of this necessary class which can be imported free of duty, and treble those which are compelled to pay duty.

Still the collection of customs under the new law amounts to only $164,501,326, while those of the McKinley law amounted to $173,000,070 in its first fiscal year.
