NOT A REPUBLICAN PAPER.

The Fossil Journal, our neighbor, asked the Oregonian a few days ago why it railed so at "bolters" last legislature and now was doing a thousand times worse. The "Bolter" attempted to justify its course but this is what it says:

"Boiled down to solid meat, the answer is just this: That the Oregonian is not bound to practice what it preaches, and that it is not a republican paper. This will be sad news indeed to the hoary-headed republicans throughout the state who for half a lifetime have regarded the great daily as their bible. But it does not look well for an admitted 'professional bolter' to call his brother bolter a 'stunkard.'"

THE PEOPLE WANT ELLIS RETURNED TO CONGRESS.

This weather ought to be good for crops and grass.

OREGON WANTS MITCHELL TO SUCCEED HIMSELF IN CONGRESS. He will get there, to.

WHAT IS THE NAME OF THIS NEWSPAPER PUBLISHED IN PORTLAND THAT IS BOLTING ELLIS?

HEPNER NEEDS TELEPHONIC CONNECTION WITH THE OUTSIDE WORLD. Why not push the matter along?

THE SALEM STATESMAN, the leading republican paper of this state, is doing excellent work for the republican party.

THERE SEEMS TO BE NO DOUBT OF THE SUCCESS OF REPUBLICANISM THIS YEAR THROUGHOUT OREGON, regardless of claims of opposing parties.

HEPNER SHOULD ONCE MORE COLLECT ITSELF TOGETHER AND ASSIST IN GETTING THE PROJECTED ROAD COMPLETED BETWEEN HEPNER AND MITCHELL.

THE REPUBLICAN TICKET OF MORROW COUNTY seems to be satisfactory to a large majority of republicans, and will gain many independent voters.

THE ROAD ACROSS THE MOUNTAIN TO MONUMENT IS WELL NIGH IMPASSABLE. The supervisors along the route should see that improvements are made at once.

IT WILL BE INTERESTING TO THE PUBLIC TO KNOW WHO ARE AT THE HEAD OF THE BOLTING FRACTION ON ELLIS. It would be surprising indeed if the name of one of Oregon's great ex-sensitors should appear on the list.

THE OREGONIAN CRIES "BOLTERS" and prates about a regular republican ticket in Multnomah county, yet bolts itself when it wants to do so. The Oregonian stands almost alone on its bolt against Ellis.

THE NAMES ON THE PETITION for an independent candidate for congress will be published should this petition be filed. It will be a splendid opportunity to see who are the real leaders in this move.

HARVEY SCOTT IS SO ANXIOUS about getting a bolter to run for congress, why not run him? The Gazette nominates Mr. Scott as the bolting candidate. He is in every way qualified as a bolter and will please his faction. No better bolter can be found anywhere.

HARVEY SCOTT IS SO ANXIOUS about getting a bolter to run for congress, why not run him? The Gazette nominates Mr. Scott as the bolting candidate. He is in every way qualified as a bolter and will please his faction. No better bolter can be found anywhere.

THE OREGONIAN COMMENTED upon the late republican convention in the following language: "In order to hold the silver vote, the republican state convention was made to vote down a resolution declaring against the free coinage of silver. But every silver man knows, or should know, that to look to the republican party for the free coinage of silver is to entertain a delusive hope." The facts of the case are Harvey Scott could not run things to suit himself, and since has been trying to organize a bolt from the democratic and republican ranks. Thus far he has not succeeded, but has placed himself on record. Harvey Scott's opposition means the election of any man, while on the other hand, Harvey Scott's support will bring about defeat. The people are up to the Oregonian's tum-tum, and generally vote the dictates of their own cranium.

None But Ayer's at the World's Fair. Ayer's Sarsaparilla enjoys the extraordinary distinction of having been the first blood purifier allowed an exhibit at the World's Fair, Chicago. Manufacturers of other sarsaparillas sought by every means to obtain away under the application of the rule forbidding the sale of patent medicines and nostrums. The decision of the World's Fair authorities in favor of Ayer's Sarsaparilla is in effect as follows: "Ayer's Sarsaparilla is not a patent medicine. It does not belong to the list of nostrums. It is here on its merits."

REDDOCK'S CASE COMES NEXT. He Has Employed John C. Lesure for His Defense. Isaac Reddock has been arraigned, and, when examination was to take place for the alleged crime of robbing the Pendleton postoffice, he waived and went to jail. His bonds have been placed at $10,000, instead of at $15,000, as was the first arrangement. Mr. Reddock has employed John C. Lesure as his counsel for the defense. Reddock has steadfastly refused to make any statement for publication, leaving it all with his counsel. John M. Bentley, deputy United States marshal, will testify that he saw Reddock in the front of the postoffice a few minutes before the robbery occurred. On behalf of the defense, it will be set up that Reddock was sitting in a certain saloon in Pendleton with a number of other persons at the time the robbery took place, and that he went immediately to the postoffice with his companions, as the news of the robbery spread down the street a few moments after it had occurred. The case comes on for trial at the opening of the trial term of the United States court in Portland the middle of May. It is the first case on the docket and will be heard long on each side.

It will be a question of establishing identity. Postmaster Johnston could not, at the time of the robbery, give a complete description of the man, except that he was about five feet and six or seven inches in height, and weighed about 150 or 160 pounds; that he had dark eyes, a full black beard, probably blue, and wore a dark chinella overcoat, buttoned to the chin. His mark was an ordinary handkerchief with eye-holes. His opinion at the time was that the robber was not above medium height and weight. Reddock is six feet tall and weighs about 180 pounds. But the discrepancy may have been due to excitement of the occasion when a man could hardly be expected to observe all things with perfect accuracy.

A WAR REMINISCENCE

Scenes at Hatcher's Creek and Petersburg Recalled.

John B. Scace Speaks to a Reporter of Stirring Scenes—Escaped with a Slight Wound, but Like Other Veterans, Has Suffered Since—A Story that Reads Like a Page From History.

When one encounters in print the life story of some scarred veteran of the civil war, a feeling of admiration and sympathy is the certain result. Accustomed though we are to tales of heroism and suffering in everyday life, there is something peculiarly attractive about these old war records, serving as they do, as a sacred passport to the heart of every true American. Thousands found their rest on the field of carnage or in the hospital, but their comrades, when the struggle was over and the victory won, returned to their homes and began anew the battle of life.

John B. Scace, the widely known contractor and building mover of Albany, N. Y., has had an unusually interesting life, and when seen by a reporter recently at his home, No. 15 Bradford street, told of his many experiences and adventures while serving under the old flag in the late war. Although having endured all the hardships and privations of life in the ranks, Mr. Scace bears more than half a century of years with an elastic step and a keen mind, taking an active interest in private and public affairs.

While still a boy, his family moved from Albany, his birthplace, to Pittsfield, Mass, and here he was educated. He mastered the carpenter's trade, became a member of Berkshire Lodge, No. 52, I. O. O. F., and was entering upon a successful business life when came the call from Washington for men. All over the country the word spread, and excitement ran high. All the old time patriots that had made Massachusetts famous in revolutionary days were fired to its utmost. Every town and village sent out its squad or company.

The company in which Mr. Scace enlisted in September of 1862, as a private, became Company A, Forty-ninth Regiment, Massachusetts Volunteer Infantry. Under the common impression that the war would be one of short duration, the men were enlisted for nine months only. Scarcely were they uniformed and armed before they were ordered to the front. The regiment, which at the time was under the command of Col. W. F. Bartles, served in the First Brigade, First Division, Nineteenth Corps, and participated in some of the hottest battles of the great rebellion.

Mr. Scace, at the time, was but twenty-two years of age, and he remembers well with what a beating heart he fell in line. His regiment was ordered south, directly through the enemy's country, with Baton Rouge as the objective point. After several months of weary marches, during which Company A passed through several lively skirmishes with the enemy constantly hovering about the flanks and rear, the capital city of Louisiana was reached. An evacuation followed. Citizens and the rebel soldiers stationed in the city fled like frightened sheep, bearing with them what goods they could carry and setting torches to the rest. The beautiful capitol building, which had been converted into a war prison, had also been fired, and the boys in blue swarmed in, just in time to save their captive comrades from perishing in the flames. Mr. Scace, who had been, while en route, promoted to corporal, was in the thickest of the action, and describes the scene in a graphic manner. Although the city had fallen almost without a blow given or received, a fight was not far off, for word was received that a large force of the enemy was fast approaching.

A bloody battle ensued at Plain Store, a few days' march out of the capital, in which Corporal Scace was severely wounded. A minute ball struck his left thigh and, grazing the bone, narrowly missed the great artery. He was returned to the camp at Baton Rouge, but recuperated so rapidly that he entered, soon after, again into active service. The battles of Port Hudson and Donaldsonville followed, with all their thrilling episodes.

It was not long after this that, by reason of the expiration of his term of enlistment, he was honorably discharged. His respite was not a long one, however, for he soon afterwards re-enlisted, to serve for the remainder of the war. For meritorious action he had been raised to the sergeant's stripes, and as such served in Company A, Sixty-first Regiment, Massachusetts Volunteer Infantry, under Chas. F. Walcott. During the term of his re-enlistment Sargeant Scace participated in some of the hottest struggles of the war. Many a gray-haired veteran today recalls the scenes of Hatcher's Run, the fall of Petersburg and the battle of Sailor's Creek.

After his honorable discharge, June 4, 1865, Mr. Scace returned to Albany and settled down at once to his business and social interests. He has resided in the city ever since. It would seem that now of all times, his peace and happiness would have been uninterrupted. Such was not to be the case, for four years ago, while engaged in superintending the raising of the immense smokestack of the Albany Electric power house, the lever of a loosened windlass struck him a heavy blow across the back. The effect of the blow was not at first apparent, he being able to leave his bed in a few days. But the worst was to follow, for without warning he was seized with sciatic rheumatism in all its virulence. Utmost agony followed.

Said Mr. Scace, "I could not sleep for the pain. No one will know the tortures the rheumatism gave me. I don't know how I lived during those days. I became little more than skin and bone, and it seemed like life didn't have anything but suffering in it. Cures? I tried every so-called rheumatic cure that was ever invented. I gave all of them a good trial before I stopped taking them. My friends and neighbors recommended remedy after remedy that they heard of, but my rheumatism went on just the same. Well, after I had almost had the life tortured out of me, I came across a newspaper account of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and I thought I might as well add another name to the list as not, so I ordered some of my druggist.

"I tell you, I was glad in those days to hear of anything that could give me any hope at all. Yes, I got them, and before I had taken two boxes that pain began to leave me. Why, I couldn't understand it. I couldn't imagine myself being cured. But before I had taken a half-dozen of those boxes I was cured. The suffering which had made my life almost unendurable for so long had disappeared. I was a new man.

Emmett Cochran, Lon Leathers and Billy Orson came in from the Job Day Sunday. Emmett has returned home, but Lon and Billy are still enjoying a visit to Morrow's metropolis.
