Were it not for the peculiar conditions attendant, the campaign in the second congressional district would be too onesided to be interesting. Under normal circumstances Mr. Ellis' plurality would be so overwhelming that the election would closely resemble a republican ratification. As it is the result is uncertain. The candidacy of Judge Northup has complicated matters till the forlorn hope of the democrats has changed the of his absolute cure, free to who may send their P. O. and Ex into a possibility of success.

Aided by the Oregonian, the democratic papers and campaigners are seeking to cover up the true issue in the campaign and divert public attention to another question-one over which each of the great parties is badly divided. If once they were able to dispose of the tariff and simmer the contest to the discussion of the currency question, the weight that hangs like a millstone around the democratic neck would be removed and the jaded party be rejuvenated. But the tariff will not down. Despite democratic declarations to the contrary, it is the great question before the American people.

Four years ago, made reckless by continued prosperity, the voters of this country desired a change. With all its resultant evils the change has come and brought untold disaster and misery. By destroying the protective policy under which the nation had prospered, the democratic party paid homage to foreign nations and gave what rightfully belonged to American laborers to toilers across the sea. The people have been waiting to right that great wrong; to vote into power the party under whose rule both the manufacturer and the laborer, the capitalist and the farmer prospered. Should the democratic party go before the country in defence of their ruinous policy, they would not carry a state north of Mason and Dixou's line, nor all of those south of it. Knowing this full well they seek to change the issue and bring to the front the currency question, hoping again to mislead the people as they did in 1892. Whether they do or not de pends upon the judgment and penetra-San Francisco tion of the republicans. If the dictates of the Oregonian be followed and protection forced to the background to give way to the financial question, defeat is > questioned. The republican party can be trusted to settle the verations money question with the same wisdom as it has others. just as vital, in the past. It can be trusted now as it could in the stormy years after the close of the rebellion.

> a possibility. Otherwise success is un-

Let the republicans of the second district be careful how they act. Northup caunot be elected. Bennett must not be. The duty that remains is for the loyal voters to support the regular nominee, and thereby insure the election of a reonblican.

Mr. D. P. Davis, a prominent liveryman and merchant of Goshen, Va., bas this to say on the subject of rheumatism; "I take pleasure in recommending tism, as I know from personal experience that it will do all that is claimed for it. A year ago this spring my brother was laid up in bed with teffammatory rheumatism and suffered in-tensely. The first application of Cham-berlain's Pain Balm eased the pain and the use of one battle completely cured bim." For sale by Conser & Brock, druggists.
