The following facts have decided us to open up an office at The Dalles, and we believe the ool growers will feel an interest in our proposition to handle their wool. D. J. McFaul, M. D.

THE DALLES MARKET .- - In 1895 six million pounds of wool was marketed there, which brought extreme prices. The present outlook is that not less than eight million pounds will be marketed there this season, and we believe wools sold in The Dalles will bring full values for the following reasons:

1st. The large amount of wool handled not only attracts buyers, and the most of them make The Dalles their headquarters for the season, causing a brisk competition. The Oregon mills use not less than two million pounds, so wools in The Dalles have the benefit of this competition, as well as for the East and California markets.

2d. The location of The Dalles is such that five transcontinental railroads compete for freight, I AND OFFICE AT THE DALLES OREGON.

For ten years past, "excepting 1899, the year of the panic," wools have brought better prices
