THE SECRET OF GLAMIS The Hidden Chamber in the Ancient Cas tle of Macbeth.

In a certain drawing-room the other afternoon we were talking of some well-known superstitions, and among others of that secret room in the castle of Glamis, which Sir Walter Scott tells us is known only to the earl of The Dalles, Strathmore, his heir apparent, and one other person to whom the earl may choose to confide. One of our party told us, says a writer in the Chicago Tribune, an amusing story concerning this secret chamber of Giamis. Once, when stopping at the eastle in autumn. a curious and indiscreet visitor took advantage of the host's absence to suggest a plan by which the whereabouts of the hidden chamber should be revenled.

The castle was full, and it was proposed that each guest should hasten to his or her room and hang his or her pillow out of the window, while on visitor was told to mark off such win dow as displayed no white signal. It plan the master of the eastle returned unexpectedly, and great was his wrath at this unseemly carlosity. Never had the owner of Glamis appeared in se towering a passion. The display of temper is hardly to be wondered at, for the Glamia secret is regarded with an extraordinary seriousness by the Strathmore family, and when imparted to the

These facts, however, made little difference to the tow-haired urchin who had come into possession of it and he was the hero of the hour among his companions, who, after the manner of all sycophants, praised his somewhat toilsome and serpentine method of locomotion. All but a red-headed, freckle-faced lad, plainly the fihmselite of the community, says the Chicago Tribune. "Say, Billy, why don't you get a hump on yer?" he yelled derisively. "Are ye trainin fu th' fat man's race?"

PORTLAND, Oregon, April 30, 1896.

TO THE PUBLIC : The following facts have decided us to open up an office at. The Dulles, and we believe the ool growers will feel an interest in our proposition to handle their wool.

THE DALLES MARKET ... In 1865 six million pounds of wool was marketed there, hich brought extreme prices. The present outlook is that not less than eight million pounds will be marketed there this season, and we believe wools sold in The Dalles will bring full values for the following reasons:

lat. The large amount of wool handled not only attracts buyers, and the most of them make The Dailes their headquarters for the season, causing a brisk competition. The Oregon mills use not less than two million pounds, so wools in The Dailes have the benefit of this competition, as well as for the East and California markets. 2d. The location of The Dalles is such that five transcoutineutal railroads compete for freight.

guaranteeing the shipper a low rate; in 1885 wools from The Dalles to the East were taken at a 3d. Arrangements have been made with the railroad companies whereby local freight to The Dalles when added to the freight from The Dalles East, will not be higher than the freight from local points direct East, and in many cases less. These facts alone assure the growers the CONSIGNMENTS ... While we fully realize consigning wool is a thing of the past, we believe growers will do well to consider our proposition, especially this sesson as there is every reason to believe it will be a slow, draggy year.

ow slow the mills and dealers will be in placing their orders this year, we think our method of handling will be an advantage to the grower, and considering the wool will not be moved from the home market nor from under your control without consent; you must not look upon our proposition in the light of shipping on consignment. For ten years past, "excepting 1881, the year of the panie," wools have brought better prices specially so this season.

When growers are not in a position to hold their wool, or feel inclined to sell to pay their tills, we will make an advance at a liberal rate of interest; will take charge of the wool, pay the teamster's and other charges when requested to do so, and when wools are to be shipped to The Dalles by rail, we will take care of the railway freights from point of shipment to The Dalles, and at such points as Reppner and Ariington, we will have a supresentative who will take charge of the wool and forward it. You will keep to wind that when shipping to The Balles there will be no extra expense to you, and considering the low price of wool, we have concluded to do this work at 1, cent per and brokerage.

We will be pleased to hear from you, and soud regular accounts of eastern and local markets. The J. M. RUSSELL CO.
