Paine's Celery Compound.

Mrs. J. A. Sample Owes Her Strength to This the Best of All Remedies.

For the unfortunate who lie awake, staring at the ceiling and counting the strokes of the clock, every sleepless night is an eternity. Mrs. J. A. Sample of 1558 Broadway, New York city, was afflicted with insomnia until her nerves were on the verge of prostration. She thinks her condition is due to indigestion. Here is what Mrs. Sample says: 'I have used Paine's celery compound with marked and decided benefit. It is especially useful in insomnia, arising from indigestion and poorly nourished nerves. 'I should add that my granddaughter, Vera Halleigh, was so thin and puny at the age of ten as to cause the greatest anxiety. We had no difficulty in inducing her to take Paine's celery compound. Today the roses bloom in her cheeks, and I never saw a healthier, stronger child than Paine's celery compound has made her.' The brain is the center of the nervous system. Sleep alone rests this vital organ, together with the nerves. During the waking hours the nervous system works incessantly. Poor sleep means a poor nervous condition, and prolonged insomnia leads in every case to prostration, and too often to dread insanity. The mischief that results from weakened nerves is much greater and more destructive than most folks ever dream of. The all-important thing for nervous, run-down persons, and for those who are losing sleep is that Paine's celery compound builds up the whole physical system, and by improving the digestion and regulating the nerves it insures sound, refreshing sleep. In winter most women and many men lead hot-house lives. A flagging appetite, a disposition to pick at this dish and that, rather than to eat a square meal, is among the early indications of failing health. Then comes delay in falling asleep and the fretful, uneasy feeling the next day. Deliverance from such a miserable condition by the use of Paine's celery compound has caused men and women from every section of the United States to write sincere, hearty words of praise and thankfulness for this grand invigorator. People enjoying perfect health sometimes wonder at this gratitude, but whoever has suffered from prostration of the nerves, of which insomnia is one of the symptoms, will understand how hard it is to overstate the torment of this condition. And whoever has been made completely well by Paine's celery compound feels that no words can overstate the joy and gratitude such persons feel. This is the state of mind of thousands of nervous, sickly, broken-down persons who have used Paine's celery compound and been made well. Mrs. Sample tells of the happy result in the case of her granddaughter. One of the most conspicuous instances of the remarkable power of Paine's celery compound over debility is shown in the relief it has afforded children. Of course the dose is adapted to the age of the little patient. The compound purifies the blood and corrects any tendency to constipation. Pale, puny children are made vigorous, rosy and healthy by this incomparable remedy.

metic finger movements. Katherine, fairly overcome by this, took baby to her and smiled, at which baby began to clap its hands and to crow, tracing this time the course of the tears down its sister's cheeks. This pretty nursery picture certainly seems to illustrate a rudiment of genuine fellow feeling. Similarly it is hard not to recognize the signs of a sincere concern when a child of two runs spontaneously and kisses the place that is hurt, even though it is not to be doubted that the graceful action has been learned through imitation.

If it required an annual outlay of $100 to insure a family against any serious consequences from an attack of bowel complaint during the year there are many who would feel it their duty to pay it; that they could not afford to risk their lives, and those of their family for such an amount. Anyone can get this insurance for 25 cents, that being the price of a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. In almost every neighborhood some one has died from an attack of bowel complaint because medicine could be procured or a physician summoned. One or two doses of this remedy will cure any ordinary case. It never fails. Can you afford to take the risk for so small an amount? For sale by Conser & Brook, Druggists.

HAPPENINGS AT SIX DOLLAR. The school closed last Friday.—Mrs. Mollie Johnson, teacher. The entertainment given at the Six Dollar school house last Saturday night under the auspices of Mrs. Mollie Johnson was a grand success in every respect, and was highly appreciated by all present, and we can give her praise for her faithfulness and untiring labors. The entire exhibition was gotten up with many drawbacks on account of disappointments in connection with the recitations, dialogues, essays, etc. There was music by the organ and violin, and songs with banjo accompaniment, also quite a number of songs were sung by the Six Dollar Glee Club, which were selected for the occasion. Below we give the names of the participants which we think is the largest programme ever given in the county. Opening remarks by Mr. Crabtree. Song by the Glee Club. Recitation of welcome by Wave Crabtree. Recitation by Mary Stewart. Recitation by Alonso Wright. Song by Mary Tressie and Eva Stewart. Music, violin and organ, Bob Watkins and Jeff Jones. Dialogue by Birdie Gilliam and Vie Tolbert. Song with banjo accompaniment, Mr. Crabtree. Recitation, Loren Tolbert. Recitation, Pearl Hanby. Recitation, Narcissa Johnson. Tableau by the little folks. AMERICAN CONSERVATISM. The Power and Influence of the Supreme Court of the United States. The supreme court is not an elective body, and I suppose that might seem to the English radical a sufficient reason for sweeping it away. Says the Nineteenth Century. The judges are appointed for life by the president and they are responsible to no popular tribunal—not even to public opinion. They sit as a court of pure law, the final authority from which in all America there is no appeal. Their jurisdiction, strictly defined though it be, is coextensive with the whole union. It is the one instance in history in which popular sovereignty, acknowledged as supreme in the long run for every other purpose and every other authority to which it has delegated power, submits to a master whom it did not appoint and cannot remove and cannot escape. Everybody submits; the states themselves, sovereign as they still are for certain purposes, submit to congress and the president, the army and navy, the people themselves, all submit. In the hands of the supreme court democracy itself, if it seeks to pass an unconstitutional law, is powerless. A unanimous vote of the people, a unanimous vote of the house and senate and the approval of the president would not make a statute law if this tribunal says it is not a law. But do you ever hear of a proposal to abolish the supreme court? Why not? It is not only that the court has been a great court of great judges, its honesty and ability and wisdom alike recognized, but because the American democracy has the good sense to see that, under a written constitution like that of the United States, such a tribunal is essential to the working of all its parts, and that, check and all-powerful check though it be upon democracy, it is also a guaranty to the American people that, in the words of the preamble of their great charter, justice shall be established and the blessings of liberty preserved to themselves and their posterity.

A REGULAR GOLD MINE. How a Justice of the Peace Mulcted Bicycle Riders. 'There's a justice of the peace in a country town not far from here,' said a bicyclist to a Buffalo Express man recently, 'who has a scheme that will make him a millionaire if he sticks to it for a year or two. 'You see the town has an ordinance forbidding bicycle riding on the sidewalks. A good many wheelmen got that way, so what does this justice do but scoop out a hole and make a great big mud puddle clear across the street right in front of his office. Of course, when a wheelman comes along, rather than ride through the mud, he turns upon the sidewalk. That's what the justice is waiting for. He has a constable on the watch, and the two rush out and nab the cyclist. 'I was caught in the snare one week. Though I protested I only intended to keep on the walk till I passed the mud, it was of no avail. I was fined five dollars and had to pay it. I got a chance to look at his book when he was recording my fine, and there was a record of some twenty wheelmen who had been served the same way that day, and it was still early in the afternoon. 'It made me mad, and I began abusing the old fellow for having such a mud-puddle in the street. 'Why don't you fill it up?' I asked, if you want wheelmen to keep in the road. 'He grinned in a most exasperating manner, and answered without so much as a blush: 'Spouse we're going to destroy such a source of revenue as that mud-puddle is? I guess not. 'John, turning to the constable, 'you better take the hose and soften it up a little bit ready for the next sucker.'

A CHAPTER ABOUT CHILDREN. The boy who's always wishing That this or that might be, But never tries his mettle, Is the boy that's bound to see His plans all come to failure. His hopes end in defeat. For that's what comes when wishing And working fail to meet. The boy who wishes this thing Or that thing with a will That spurs him on to action, And keeps him trying still When effort meets with failure, Will some day surely win. For he works out what he wishes And that's where "luck" comes in! The "luck" that I believe in Is that which comes with work, And no one ever finds it Who's content to wish and shirk. The men the world calls "lucky," Will tell you, every one, That success comes, not by wishing, But by hard work, bravely done. —Eben K. Saxford. "Tommy, who was Joan of Arc?" asked the teacher. "Noah's wife," said Tommy, who is considered great at guessing. Children are often alarmed in their sleep by dreams, are restless and start up from time to time. This should not be disregarded, as it is probably the result of natural causes, and may easily be remedied. Irritation caused by heating or some stomach trouble is often the reason, and it is a good plan to administer a mild purgative, as this can do no harm and may drive away the "bogies." Mr. Solly, in his interesting and popular book on "Studies of Children," devotes a good portion of his attention to the origin of sympathy in their hearts and is disposed, we think, to ascribe more of it to imitativeness than we should think reasonable. For example, he tells us the following very interesting story, adding a remark, of which we should question the truth, that concerns all such stories: "A baby, aged one year and two months, was crawling on the floor. An elder sister, Katherine, aged six, who was working at a wool mat, could not get on very well and began to cry. Baby looked up and grunted, 'oi oi oi' and kept drawing its fingers down its own cheeks. Here the aunt called Mrs. Katherine's attention to baby, a device which merely caused a fresh outburst of tears. Whereupon baby proceeded to hitch itself along to Katherine with many repetitions of the grunts and the mi-
