CRUSHED THE SNEERER.

An American Teacher Who Was Very Patriotic.

An Italian gentleman whom I met while traveling disclosed a most depraved inappreciation of the wonderful vastness of the United States, says a writer in Scribner's.

He spoke English very well, for he had been many years in London, and, as we were enjoying the sea-coast view between Pisa and Via Reggio, he asked politely whether I was not an American from "the states." On learning that I was he begged me to tell him something of our government.

"You have a president of the country. the whole states, is it not?" he inquired earnestly I nodded assent.

"Va bene! If a man kills-murders, you understand-who tries him, the federal or state courts?" 'The state courts," I replied, "unless it is a case of treason.

"If he is convicted, who can pardon him-the president, of course?" he asked, with calm assurance, and a slight emphasis on the "of course." 'No, indeed; the murderer is tried in the state courts; he can be pardoned only by the state board of pardons, if there is one, or by the state's chief officer-the governor. The president has nothing to do with it."

"Sir!" I thundered, now thoroughly angry, "Italy will go twice into the petty province of Texas." It was very naughty to get angry and especially with such a politely sareastic little Italian. I know it. But who could sit still and hear the sheer, unapproachable - nay, glorious - im mensity of our country assailed without getting angry? No one except the audacious fop, who every now and then annoys us with a brazen assertion that bigness is, after all, not such a virtue. A CLOSE TRADE.

An Instance of "Nearness" That Is Hard to Beat. The close-fisted and the absent-minded serve a similar use—they amuse their neighbors. The New York Sun quotes a man from the rural districts as telling a story of a Mr. Putterby, an old-time townsman of his, whose reputation for "nearness" was evidently well deserved. Locally he was thought to be almost a prodigy in this respect, but no story of this kind is so good but that another can be found to beat it. One of the coins current in those days was the old Spanish silver-piece, which passed for twelve and a half cents, and was variously called "nine-pence," "York shilling" and "bit." It was the existence of this coin that enabled Mr. Putterby to achieve his crowning triumph in the way of a close

A farm-boy came along one day with a load of pumpkins, which he was ped-dling about the village at a cent apiece. Mr. Putterby looked at them, concluded to buy, but wanted only half a pumpkin.

"But a whole one is only a cent," said the boy. "How are you going to pay me for half a one?" 'Easiest thing in the world," said

Mr. Putterby.

The pumpkin was cut, he took onehalf under his arm, and handed the boy "Now give me the twelve centa change," he said; and taking the PHILOSOPHY FOR SMOKERS. Man Known by His Cigars and the Way He Smokes Them.

As a test of character tobacco is useful. A man may be known by the cigars he keeps as well as by the way he smokes them. No man of refined taste will smoke a bad eigar. The philosophic smoker takes his comfort in a leisurely way, amid proper surround-ings, and is able to shut himself out from the world and all its petty annoyances as he follows the curling wreath into the dreamland of reverie. The man who allows his cigar to go out a great many times and relights it in successive spasms of fidgetiness may usually be set down as an incoherent character, quite prone to get off his trolley, so to speak, and certainly lacking in tenacity of purpose. The man who fumbles his eigar a good deal and manages to get the wrapper unraveled and the fire all on one side may be dismissed as a nervous person, with a proclivity for uncomfortableness, says the Baltimore Sun. Men who chew their cigars, leaving their teeth prints on hem, and do this for a long time before lighting them, are quite likely to be stern, determined men, full of grit and resolution. Gen. Grant used to handle a eigar in that way, and Bismarck is said to do likewise. As an index of generosity or meanness of soul, the eigar is quite trustworthy. The generous man, if he mokes at all, is sure to indulge himself and his friends, when they call on him, with a good cigar. The man who, with abundant means to smoke the best, deliberately buys the worst cigars, and pretends to enjoy them, is capable of almost any conceivable meanness. Per contra, the man who can find solace and refreshment from a cigar of good quality, or a pipe filled with choice tobacco, and who is always ready to open his heart wide and let his tongue wag the most merrily when he takes his friend into the hospitalities of a metual

Rome's Earthquake and Lottery.

The earthquake recently felt in Rome has already produced a result that to any except an Italian would seem incredible. It has augmented naturally the receipts of the national lottery. The occurrence was so unusual that gamblers saw their opportunity and prite a series of figures became popular. The first shock was felt on November 1 at 4:38 p. m. One, four and thirty-eight were obviously factors in the lucky series. And then the lottery manual helped the gambler out by supplying him with other figures, chiefly 11, to and 30, so that among the six success was certain. Eleven was most run en, as it was equivalent both for "November" and "carthquake" and also represented the fete of St. Martin, a saint very popular since the battle of San Martino. In fact, the lotteries received such an impulse from the earthquake that the offices had to be kept open on All Saints' day, contrary to all usage. When the winning numbers were actually exposed to view not one of the pop-ular six was in the category.—London Dally News.

The Collecting of Birds' Eggs Has Become a Fascinating Avocation of People of Wealth and Students of Science.

It is not generally known that among the fads of the day the collecting of bird's eggs is one that interests the cultured and wealthy, and one that may be very expensively indulged in, while it affords a mild recreation to thousands of individuals of moderate means. The scientific concetton of birds' eggs bas, in fact, become a fascinating avocation, and, rightly studied, a pursuit to which the systematic study of birds, their biology, and the laws governing their evo- An attendant in a shop where animals lution, is largely indebted, as acknowleaged by no less an authority than Prof. asked if all the parrots that talked were huxley miniscit, who showed that a stady of the markings and shape of the World. eggs of the species aided materially in establishing the close relationship of the Limicoloe (plovers) and the Gavioc' (gulis and terns).

WATER THAT EXPLODED.

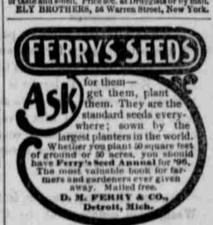

A Bartender's Experience Under Fire of a Fusillade of Seltzer. "Do you know," said Billy Clark, of the Grand hotel, to a Cincinnati Times-Star reporter, as a big seltzer bottle fizzed and two or three men on the outside clevated a foot each on the railing and looked on, "that these seltzer water bottles will explode ensily?" And the three men each put a foot down on the floor and moved slightly away. "Sometimes just the temperature of the hand will do it, the warm hand, placed against it while bringing it from a cold room, or sometimes while lifting it one will strike it against the counter and it will explode and the metal top will be driven with great force by the gas. One time, while at the Gibson, I refused to give a man a drink. He took it very much to heart and went away vowing he would get even with me. I had turned about as he went out and had my back to him. Suddenly there came a sound like a pistol shot. I tried to turn around and couldn't, and I was sure the man had carried his threat into effect and had shot me. Directly following that explosion came another and another, and there was a rapid succession of explosions. Then I knew the man had opened a regular fusillade on me, and yet I was riveted to the spot. I could not stir. I thought I had been paralyzed by a bullet. Come to find out. one of these seltzer water bottles in the far end of the counter had exploded and the concussion had started the others, until all had exploded that were on that shelf. And the man had gone away and I never saw him again. But I never will forget my experience of that night, when I was sure I had been
