A DOG'S CURIOUS ACTION.

Appeared to Surmise That His Master Had Been Hurt. L. C. Meachamp, living above Homer, La., on the edge of Arkansas, is a great hunter and has a fine deer hound, Dan, of which he is justly proud. A few days ago, says the Philadelphia Times, Mr. Meachamp was going squirrel hunting, and in order to keep Dan at patriarchs of the herds that infested home he was compelled to tie him up. The bound whined and begged, but, finding his master was obdurate, he at nel al! day.

At five o'clock in the afternoon, however, when Mrs. Meachamp was be-ginning to look for her husband's return, Dan became so unusually restless that she went out to see what was the matter. In spite of her repeated efforts the could do nothing to pacify him, and at last, to her utter astonishment, he broke the rope and boundtd away over the fence and into the woods. He was gone probably a half hour when he came running back panting and almost breathless with his marter's nat in his mouth.

Mrs. Meachamp became at once alarmed, and, calling her son, they set out to find Meachamp, the dog all the time bounding along in front and leading the way. At last they came upon Mr. Meachamp lying helpless in the woods, where at precisely five o'clock he had fallen in a little ditch and broken a small bone in his leg. The is beyond dispute.

Elias Midkif, of Hamlin, Lincoln county, was in Charleston the other day, and proposed to the State Historical and Antiquarian society that if it would send a taxidermist to Hamlin the society would secure a monster bird, of a kind never seen before by anyone in West Virginia. The feathered monster, says the Baltimore American,

A place, however, so well calculated for the home of the grizzly could not long be without its representative, even if it had to be an animal some what less wild and more domestic in its habits. Hogs turned loose in the swamps and morasses soon became so wild that it was dangerous for a person to be caught unawares by one of the

the district. So large and vicious had one of these fellows become that he was known and last lay quite peaceably before the ken- | feared by all the residents in that vicinity, and for his wild nature and ferocious conduct generally had be come known as "Old Grizzly," and it was claimed he was bullet-proof and fouldn't be slain. Presently he fell a victim to a party of hunters who sought him with the avowed purpose of effecting his extermination.

The boar was an immense fellow and weighed 550 pounds. His tusks were long, one of them being partly broken off. The hide was over an inch thick and the shields on the shoulders were 21/2 inches thick. He had never been injured by dogs or gun before.

CANCER OF THE TONGUE. How It Starts and How It Should Be

Malignancy in any part of the body is very often a provoked malady, says the Family Doctor. For instance, how frequently a malignant tumor of the mamma is ascribed by the patient to dog's knowledge of the accident at the a blow-sometimes, perhaps, erronevery moment of its occurrence seems | the Family Doctor. For instance, how almost incredible, but the truth of this correctly. Epithelioma in the upper lip is a very rare disease; in the lower one it is very common. The structure of the two lips is identical; the pipe of the smoker is equally in contact with both; but the lower one is movable and is often bitten or otherwise marred by the teeth, which is rarely the case with the upper. Thus longcontinued irritation and slow inflammation of certain parts-the tongue being a conspicuous example-may, in a goodly proportion of instances, lay the foundation or be the earlier steps of a very terrible disease. Grant this, and it will be seen how essential it is to watch such chronic glossitis very closely, to allay irritation, and more especially to avoid all irritating applications. Thus, if the patient smokes, if he takes highly-spiced food, he should be directed to discontinue or greatly modify these habits; if he have rough and bad teeth, the defects must be corrected. In treating fissures, ulcers, etc., nitrate of silver or sulphate of copper must especially be avoided. The mouth should be washed after each meal; boracic acid or bismuth lotions may be used.

Ben Butler's Wit. As a lawyer Ben Butler was always ready with a witticism, even at the expense of the presiding judge.
