

REPUBLICAN PRESIDENTIAL TICKET.

For President, WILLIAM MCKINLEY, Of Ohio. For Vice President, GARRETT A. HOBART, Of New Jersey.

A QUESTION FOR WOOLGROWERS.

The sheep of Oregon will probably be voting in the presidential election this year again, says the Oregonian. There are some 2,500,000 of them now, and it is safe to say their influence will mostly be cast on the side of protection.

But Mr. Bryan's idea about free wool was enacted into law by the Wilson bill. Free wool resulted in the doubling of imports of foreign textiles. The imports for the second fiscal year under the Wilson law, ending June 30, 1896, were over 46 per cent larger than those of the last calendar year, and the latter were 242 per cent larger than the imports for the last year of the McKinley law.

There are two parts to the indictment against the Wilson law's raw-wool feature. One is that the home market has been hurt, and the other is that the foreign market has not been helped.

UP TO date one hundred and thirty-five large daily democratic papers have repudiated the democratic party and its ticket. Forty-three of these papers are in the south; thirty-seven in the middle states; twenty-one in the western states and thirty-four in the New England states.

THOMAS E. WATSON opened his vice-presidential campaign in a two hour address at Atlanta last Thursday. He strongly condemned the actions of the democracy in Southern elections, and said Southern populism could stand Bryan but begged to be excused when it came to swallowing Mr. Sewall.

WM. M. SINGERLY, editor and proprietor of the Philadelphia Record formerly one of the leading democratic papers of that state, is also one of the democratic presidential electors.

BRYAN carefully avoids mentioning his free trade record in his many extemporaneous colloquy efforts. He knows too well that the foot of condemnation has been stamped on free trade by practically all true and patriotic Americans regardless of former party affiliations.

The Roseburg Daily Plaindealer has suspended publication.

MAYOR PINGREE, of Detroit, has been nominated for Governor by the republicans of Michigan.

THE demo-populist fusion failed in Nebraska Bryan's home state. They know him too well there.

THE Wilson bill for July—Deficit of $13,000,000. The tariff is not the issue, says the Pendleton Tribune.

Mayor Pennoyer, has appointed Col. Albert Tozier, the popular secretary of the Oregon Press Association, as health officer of Portland. The Gazette congratulates both the city and the Colonel.

If protection be "vicious in practice," as Mr. Free-Trade Bryan says, then to operate our factories, to employ American labor and to pay wages to Americans is "vicious in practice."

IF THE democrats fail to withdraw Sewall the populists will demand a presidential nominee in the place of Bryan. Some assert that they will support McKinley and protection.

MORE business will bring more money, but more business can only come through protection to American industries and her workmen. Protection is the key to progress and prosperity.

THE voters of the United States must elect McKinley and restore the American principle of protection, or in the next four years we shall endure such trials as we never before have suffered.—N. Y. Press.

ROBERT J. paced a mile in 2:02 1/2 at Columbus, Ohio, last Thursday and on the following day John R. Gentry covered the same distance in 2:03. These are certainly two of the greatest paces ever hatched to a sulky.

THE gold standard democrats will nominate a national ticket at Indianapolis on the second day of September. This decision was reached at the conference held in that city last Friday. This will be known as the national democratic party.

SPEAKER REED was redominated by his district for congress last Thursday. This is the tenth successive term. In thanking the convention for the honor Mr. Reed made one of his usual forcible speeches composed of plain and simple words.

BRYAN is now on his way to New York City where he will be notified of his nomination by the democracy Thursday. His water-tank speeches show evidence of preparation, being better than those that marked his return from the recent Chicago convention.

UP TO date one hundred and thirty-five large daily democratic papers have repudiated the democratic party and its ticket. Forty-three of these papers are in the south; thirty-seven in the middle states; twenty-one in the western states and thirty-four in the New England states.

SENATOR WATSON C. SQUIRE, republican U. S. senator from Washington, has declared for Bryan, while Hugh C. Wallace, national democratic committeeman for the same state, has resigned his position because he cannot support Bryan. And thus we have it all over the country.

THOMAS E. WATSON opened his vice-presidential campaign in a two hour address at Atlanta last Thursday. He strongly condemned the actions of the democracy in Southern elections, and said Southern populism could stand Bryan but begged to be excused when it came to swallowing Mr. Sewall.

WM. M. SINGERLY, editor and proprietor of the Philadelphia Record formerly one of the leading democratic papers of that state, is also one of the democratic presidential electors. As editor of this paper he strongly opposes Bryan and Sewall and says he will not support them as a voter but as an elector, if he is elected declares he will support the democratic nominee. This is a peculiar position.

Tom Fitch's Speech.

REASONS WHY HE WILL SUPPORT THE MCKINLEY TICKET.

The Silver-Tongued Orator of Arizona Addresses the Convention of That State.

At the Arizona republican convention to elect delegates to the national republican convention, Tom Fitch, the original silver-tongued orator, was called on for a speech. In his response he gave his reasons for being a republican.

"Gentlemen of the convention: I thought that the seclusion that the upper gallery grants, combined with other circumstances, would exempt me from any invitation to speak before this convention, but your repeated calls leave me no alternative consistent with courtesy but to answer them.

"The speakers who have addressed you have spoken of the free coinage of silver as a cardinal principle of the republican party. I fear that the St. Louis convention may compel us to retrace some of our steps in this matter, and, as the statesmen who control this convention have not included me among those deemed most fit to represent Arizona at St. Louis, I feel quite at liberty to tell the truth.

"I suppose no one will question my long devotion to the cause of free coinage of silver. Years ago, at the inception of the movement, I, as vice-president of the national executive committee of the silver convention, in connection with A. J. Warner, the president of the committee, traveled through the South and West preaching the doctrine of bimetallism, and I have never since had occasion to change my views with respect to the great benefits that might result to this nation from the complete restoration of silver as a money metal; and yet there are other circumstances quite as influential which must be potent in determining my future and the future action of many republicans in this matter.

"This morning a friend, who is a member of the convention, and who now honors me with his audience, said to me: 'Mr. Fitch, you have always been a pronounced advocate of the free coinage of silver; what will you do if the St. Louis convention adopts a plank in their platform favoring a single gold standard and denouncing the free coinage of silver? I did not answer this question then, but with your permission I will do so now.

"I belong to the republican party because its history is the history of the growth, the greatness and the freedom of this nation; because it is the friend of labor without being the foe of thrift; because it is wise, because it is just, because its restoration to complete power will rekindle the furnaces and start the turbines, and fill the land with the music of contented and well-paid toil, and put bread into men's mouths and hope into their hearts.

"I belong to the republican party because it is the greatest political organization of free men in the world; because under its wise guidance star after star has been added to our flag, ship after ship added to our fleet, factory after factory has been added to our resources, millions upon millions have been added to our wealth, city after city has been developed from our villages, and the land has been loosed with a network of iron rails, and furnace fires have illuminated the night, and the grand dispanse of labor has been made to sound throughout the continent.

"I belong to the republican party because under its inspiration these United States, once a wrangling and discordant commonwealth; these United States, once shamed with slavery and decrepity with the disease of secession—the United States have become a country where no slave's presence dishonors labor, where no free man's utterance is choked by the hand of power, where no man doffs his hat to another except through the courtesy of equals, where education is free, where manhood is respected, and where labor is protected.

"Under the patriotic rule of the republican party, these United States have become a nation whose credit reigns at the head of the world's finances, whose flag floats proudly upon every sea, and whose armies would come at the drum-beat out of the hives of industry to swarm in defense of the country on every shore.

"Under the rule of the republican party, these United States have become the greatest, freest and most prosperous nation under the light of the sun.

"I belong to the republican party because it gave land to the landless, because it gave work to the industrious, because it gave freedom to the slave, because when the nation was in peril it gave arms and treasure for preservation.

"Forty years ago, then a lad of 18, I joined the republican ranks, and, too young to vote, I sang my blaring banner aloft for Freedom and Justice. I was present as a newspaper reporter at the Chicago convention in 1860, when all Illinois shouted Abraham Lincoln into the presidency. I heard the song of John Brown's soul sung in bated breath and in secret gatherings of his sympathizers, and four years later, on these distant shores, I almost caught the echo of their refrain when armies shouted it for their battle anthem. I enjoyed the eloquence and friendship of Baker and Starr King, and Butler and Bingham, and Garfield and Conkling, and that noblest Roman of them all, James G. Blaine.

"Who, then, is there in all this land that shall dare ask me to betray these memories because of a difference of opinion concerning the conditions under which silver dollars shall be coined. 'Who shall dare tell me it is my duty to leave the path along which my youth and my manhood marched, and where, when the evening bugle shall sound the final reveille, my age shall be found still marching? Rather will I turn to the republican goddess the same steadfast face that I bore when my locks, now whitenings, were black as the raven's wing, and said to her, as Ruth said to Naomi: 'Whither thou goest I will go, and where thou lodgest I will lodge; thy people shall be my people, thy God my God; where thou diest I will die, and there I will be buried.'

My little boy, when two years of age, was taken very ill with bloody flux. I was advised to use Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, and luckily procured part of a bottle. I carefully read the directions and gave it accordingly. He was very low, but slowly and surely he began to improve, gradually recovered, and is now as stout and strong as ever. I feel sure it saved his life. I never can praise the remedy half its worth. I am sorry every one in the world does not know how good it is, as I do.—Mrs. Lina S. Hinton, Grahamville, Marion Co., Florida. For sale by Conser & Brock, druggists.

Ketchum Bros. Not Arrested.

Thursday's Oregonian announced that D. P. and William Ketchum had been arrested for harding sheep in the vicinity of Cloud Gap Inn. In this statement the Oregonian got badly mixed, says the Times Mountaineer. In the first place the Messrs. Ketchum are neither sheep raisers nor sheep herders. They buy and ship mutton for the Union Meat Co. and only have one lot of sheep, which are being ranged near Mill creek. And they were not arrested, although D. P. Ketchum, having heard there was a complaint filed against him, went before U. S. authorities and gave himself up, furnished bonds for his appearance whenever wanted. The Ketchum Bros. are well known in Heppner, having made many shipments of sheep from this point.

Payable in Coin.

"Are any of the U. S. Bonds payable in gold?" was a question asked a writer on the Gazette yesterday. In reply we will say that on investigation we find that all U. S. bonds are payable in "coin." Under the present administration the government exercised the option of paying in either gold or silver. The present secretary of the treasury holds that the option is with the bondholder—he can demand gold or silver. This position is certainly correct, as those who came to the aid of the government in giving gold in exchange for bonds, are, in all fairness, entitled to gold in return if they demand it. So briefly stated bonds are not payable in gold or gold coin, that is, in these terms. They are payable in "coin," and at the option of the holder.

All Recommend it. Ask your physician, your druggist and your friends about Shiloh's Cure for Consumption. They will recommend it. For sale by Wells & Warren.

Were Bitter Enemies.

Watson, Bryan's populist running mate, is the congressman from Georgia who kept the 52nd congress in an uproar by his attacks on Bryan, and the two men are bitter enemies, and have been. Here is an extract from one of Watson's speeches, where he had a little fun at Bryan's expense: "On the other hand, we have our handsome and brilliant friend from Nebraska (Bryan) who was put forward as the 'darling' of the democratic side of the house, the prettiest man in all the bunch, and his entire speech, which ranged from Tom Moore's poetry to Joe Miller's jest book, was the sum and substance of the old democratic position on the tariff that 'We will practice what is wrong, while we know what is right.'" 1897.

"Give us McKinley's bill again, Give us his good Protection; Give us the friend of James G. Blaine, Who bears our heart's affection. Let fact's whistles shriek once more. To labor's friend all hail, And about the cry from door to door: 'McKinley's Dinner Pail.'"

Her Examination.

Newspapers are publishing the cruel story that a "sweet girl graduate" is a neighboring town recently took the teacher's examination. Here is a portion of what she wrote in answer to a question in physiology: "The body is divided into 3 parts—the head, the chest and the stomach. The head contains the eyes and brain, if any. The chest contains the lungs and a piece of the liver. The stomach is devoted to the bowels, which there is five, six or seven, and sometimes w and y. These also are devolved into a number of alimentary sounds." We publish this for the benefit of those who attend the examination at the court house tomorrow.

News From Teel Springs. Everyone is having an enjoyable time over at Teel springs. About 300 people are now there from every part of Eastern Oregon. Entertainments, dances, social parties, etc., are the various ways in which many pleasant evenings are spent. We learn that H. Stevenson of this place assists in the many entertainments with his ventriloquism. N. Dickson, of Ione, is the evoked man in a big bear fight which occurred about three miles south of camp last Tuesday. The bear and Mr. Dickson met in a secluded spot away from the accustomed haunts of the white man and after a somewhat formal salute proceeded to make each other's acquaintance. Nat denies adopting the usual practice of climbing a tree, the bear is dead and of course has nothing to say. At any rate three bullet holes in a monstrously big bear hide and a foot that weighs six pounds are evidence in Nat's favor, so he is given the benefit of all doubts.

Since 1878 there have been nine epidemics of dysentery in different parts of the country in which Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy was used with perfect success. Dysentery, when epidemic, is almost as severe and dangerous as Asiatic cholera. Here before the best efforts of the most skilled physicians have failed to check its ravages, this remedy, however, has cured the most malignant cases, both of children and adults, and under the most trying conditions, which prove it to be the best medicine in the world for bowel complaints. Dr. Fell's Lax.

The Canyon City News gives the following account of Dr. J. H. Fell's recent loss by fire: Dr. J. H. Fell met with a sad mishap last Saturday night by having his residence at John Day destroyed by fire, together with all its contents save one trunk of clothing. The fire was supposed to have originated from a lamp exploded. Mrs. Fell had retired and the Dr. had been called out to see a patient, and the flames spread so rapidly that it was impossible to save any of the furniture or even Dr. Fell's fine surgical instruments. Dr. Ashford owned the residence, which was insured for about $400.
