Lissing Runs Riot on the Pier When lg Ocean Steamer Comes In, and Joy Reigns Unconfined.

Right or wrong, everybody hkes to see kissing-that is, everybody who isn't soured on life. The sight isn't equal to the act, but nevertheless, it is a cheering sight. There are places in this city where every variety of osculatory saiutation can be witnessed several times a

It is on the pier when some big ocean drama is played. It is at the time of year when those who have been doing Europe hie themselves homeward, and when their brothers and other fellows' brothers, their husbands, sisters and friends gather on the pier to welcome them, and, finding language inadewould have done under similar circum-

The end of the pier is packed with as happy an aggregation of mortals as can be found anywhere. Out in midstream is the big, black-hulled steamer. Nearly everybody on the pier is going to kiss somebody on the steamer, and vice versa, and in most instances the exchange will not be limited. Pleasurable expectancy makes everybody good-natured. The crowd doesn't mind having its toes trod upon or its elbows

Pushed and pulled by panting little tugs, the ocean leviathan, itself powerless and unwieldy, crawls toward the pier. At length she gets near enough for recognitions to be exchanged. Handkerchiefs are waved frantically. Kisses are wafted across the intervening space. Greetings are hurled from shore to ship and from ship to shore. Everybody is in a tight place, but nobody can keep still. Women on pier and on steamer jump and clap their hands the big steamship snug alongside of the It is deliciously tantalizing to those who are impatiently waiting to gives the mere spectator, who has no such reason for impatience, time to observe that there are some stunning girls on board that steamship. The glow of health is on their cheeks and the light of love in their eyes, and they look their prettiest because in the excitement they forget themselves entirely. The breeze toys with bangs, whisks veils aside and sets their hair adrift. But their eyes are on "Tom," or "Harry," or 'Charley," on the pier, and they are oblivious to such trifles. They won't be other girls then, but now they are different, and that very difference makes hem so attractive and makes you wish

A man starts in the lead; he is halfway down when a puff of wind lifts his hat; he pauses to clutch it and loses the race. A superb brunette, with hat securely moored, darts by and in another moment is embraced by stalwart arms, and two spirits have "rushed together at the touching of the lips." Nor do they mind who sees it, and the spectator looks on without compunctions of conscience.

In a moment the osculatory engagement becomes general. It is kisses to right of you and kisses to left of you. You can't see them all; can't see onctenth of them, but the regret vanishes when you recollect that it will be practically repeated two or three times a week for a month to come, so that you can come again and see what you missed the first time because nature limits you to one pair of eyes. All the world loves a lover-or ought to-and naturally the kisses which lovers exchange interest one most. There is something about them-the look which accompanies them, the blush which scknowledges them-by which they are recognized and classified. But perish the thought that they are the only kind of kisses worth seeing. There an old man, with the snows of winter on his head but eternal spring in his heart, kisses a white-haired lady. And the way he does it and the way she receives it and returns it tells a story of mutual devotion and loyalty that has stood the test of twoscore years or more, and makes you feel like taking off your

Then there are kisses between mothers and their children, and brothers and sisters and girls and girls—sweet and wholesome to look on, and sufficient in themselves to make a misanthrope revise his miserable philosophy and acknowledge that there is genuine happiness in this world and much to make life worth living.

Osculation continues unrestrained for half an hour or more. There is conkissing somebody yourself. It almost prompts you to go up to some girl and "Pardon me, but I am a stranger to everybody here and there is no one then it wants rest.

to kiss me. Don't you feel sorry and won't you try to console me?" But the rules of polite society forbid it, and if they didn't "Tom" or "Charley," or "Harry" would have something to say that wouldn't be a bit pleasant. But if you are of Anglo-Saxon blood there is one species of osculation you witness which, instead of exciting your ensy, merely counes your risible muscles to twitch. That is when two bearded foreigners exchange "plumpers." Of ourse, there is no accounting for taste, derstand. Possibly it can be acquired. -N. Y. Berald.

REPUBLIGAN PLATFORM

Full Text of the Declaration of Principles.

The Republicans of the United States asembled by their representatatives in national convention, appealing for popusteamship comes in that this delicious lar and historical justification of their claims to the matchless achievements of 30 years of Republican rule, earnestly and confidently address themselves to the awakened intelligence, experience and conscience of their countrymen in quate, do just what Adam and Eve the following declaration of facts and principles:

For the first time since the civil war the American people have witnessed the calamitous consequences of full and unrestricted Democratic control of the government. It has been a record of unparalleled incapacity, dishonor and disaster. In administrative management it has ruthlessly ascrificed indispensible revenue, entailed an increasing deficit, eked out ordinary current expenses with borrowed money, piled up the public debt by $262,000,000 in time of peace. forced an adverse balance of trade, kept perpetual menace banging over the redemption fund, pawned American credit to alien syndicates and reversed all thmeasures and results of successful Republican rule. In the broad effect of its It takes an awfully long time to get policy it has precipitated panic, blighted industry and trade with prolonged de pression, closed factories, reduced work rush into one another's arms. But it and wages, halted enterprise and crippled American production while stimulating foreign production for the American market. Every consideration of public safety and individual interest demands that the government shall be rescued from the hands of those who have shown themselves incapable to conduct it without disaster at home and dishonor abroad, and shall be restored to so to-morrow; they will be just like the party which for 30 years administered it with noequaled success and prosperity; and in this connection we that you were "Tom," or "Harry," or heartily indorse the wisdom, patriotisn and success of the administration o

THE TARIFF.

We renew and emphasize our alle giance to the policy of protection as the bulwark of American industrial independence and the foundation of American development and prosperity. This true American policy taxes foreign pro ducts and encourages home industry and puts the burden of revenue on foreign goods; it secures the American market for the American producer; it upholdthe American standard of wages for the American workingmen; it puts the factory by the side of the farm, and make the American farmer less dependent or foreign demand and price; it diffuses general thrift, and founds the strength of all on the strength of each. In its reasonable application it is just, fair and impartial, equally opposed to foreign control and domestic monopoly; to see tional discrimination and Individua favoritism. We denounce the present democratic tariff as sectional, injurious to public credit and destructive to busi uces enterprise. We demand such equitable tariff on foreign imports which come into competition with American products as will not only furnish adequate revenue for the necessary expen ses of the government, but will protect American labor from the degredation to the wage level of other lands.

We are not pledged to any particular schedules. The question of rates is a practical question to be governed by conditions of the time and of production The raling and uncompromising princitagion about it. We favor restoring the early American policy of discriminating duties for the upbuilding of our merchant marine and the protection of our shipping luterests in the foreign carrying trade, to American ships-the product of American labor employed in American shipyards, sailing noder the Stars and Stripes, and manned, officered and owned by Americans-may regain the carrying of our foreign commerce.
