DAYS OF THE HOME MADE. Pimes When the Farmer's Clothes Were

The cultivation of flax and the manufacture of linen were universal in the early days of New England. Nearly every house in the country had cards and great wheel and little wheel, reel and swifts, and dye-tub in the kitchen, Lexington, was in town yesterday look. and scarn, warping bars and loom in ing over this county's assessment roll and chamber or garret. From the "History posting himself generally preparatory of Rochester," N. H., we cull the following description:

Every farmer set apart a portion of his land for flax. It was an indispensable crop, and the manufacture of oil

The flax was carefully pulled up the roots and stacked in the field till thoroughly dry, when the seed was thrashed out. It was then soaked in water for several days, and spread on the ground to be vetted, frosty nights helping to whiten it.

After a suitable time it was stowed away till spring, when it was brought out to be dressed by use of the brake, the hatchel and the swingle. By this means the flax was thoroughly bruised without cutting, and the tow and coarse, woody parts separated from the finer fibers of true linen. It was then combed to complete the separa-tion, and was ready for the wives and daughters to spin and weave into garments.

Woolen cloth was also made at home The wool was carded into rolls by hand, and then spun and woven into

All garments were likewise made at home, not only for everyday wear, but the go-to-meeting dresses of the wom en and the breeches for the men, even the suits that the minister wore in the pulpit and the clothes of representatives to congress, all were home

The first carding machine was introduced by Eliphalet Horne in 1811. It caused much excitement in town, and set the old people to shaking their heads and asking what the girls would have to do now.

Now, the man who does this born newspaper man and will succeed day after day doesn't want roast beef. He is sick unto death of steaks and fried potatoes. He loathes ham and eggs, and yet he keeps on ordering them in dreary and dyspeptic succession, because he doesn't know any better and he is too proud to confess his ignorance. It's that way with me, been able to cure in all its stages, and and I'll bet it's that way with most of that is catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure you. I am going to relieve my children of all these things. They're going to know what's what when it comes to eating. 'No roast beef domination!' shall be my household slogan."

VITIATED AIR.

Impurity of the Atmosphere of Steam Heated Buildings.

an article contributed to the Philadelphia Record by Dr. F. A. Adams, the inquiry is propounded whether the immense increase of steam-heated office buildings, in which the great majority of rooms have no adequate means for the renewal of the air to be warmed, may not in a large measure account for the prevalence of pneumonia among middle-aged men. Many of these buildings, Dr. Adams says, are admirably constructed to keep out air, whether cold or not; this very perfection contributing to their insalubrity. In these hermetically scaled office rooms that abound in business buildings the steam heats the atmosphere to a delightfully comfortable degree, and the occupant breathes and rebreathes the air during zero days when an open window cannot be endured, the effect being to silently undermine his powers of resistance, so that when he goes forth, exchanging such tropical air for the keen breeze of unrestricted nature, it happens very perfection contributing to their of unrestricted nature, it happens that, through some subtle change in his system which has robbed his lungs of their power of resistance, their capacity to endure the onset or transition is gone and the subtle poison of unrenewed air does its deadly work in
