For 1897

GREAT

A New Life of Grant by Hamlin Garland. The first authoritative and adequate Life of Grant ever published. (Begins in December.)

Rudyard Kipling's first American serial, "Captains Courageous," (Begun in November.)

Robert Louis Stevenson's "St. Ives." The only novel of Stevenson's still unpublished (Begins in May.)

Charles A. Dana, "Recollections of War Time." Mr. Dana was for three of the most critical years of the Civil War practically a member of Lincoln's Cabinet, and is probably better fitted than any other man living to give an authoritative history of this period from his recollections and correspondence.

Portraits of Great Americans. Many of them unpublished. In connection with this series of portraits it is intended to publish special biographical studies under the general title of MAKERS OF THE UNION from Washington to Lincoln.

Pictures of Palestine. Specially taken under the editor's direction.

Stories of Adventure. A serial by CONAN DOYLE, in which he will use his extraordinary tale: t for mystery and ingenuity which have, in the "Sharlock Holmes" stories, given him a place beside Poe and Gaboriau.

TEACHING BIRDS.

An Interesting Operation That Requires Much Patience.

Specially Constructed Organ Is Also essary for the Purposeof the Airs Employed in the Lessons.

Probably not one reader in 1,000 ever heard of a "bird organ" or saw one. They are made only in France, and are imported to this country in small numbers, as dealers in musical boxes have few calls for them, and generally send for them only upon orders from customers. They are made solely for teaching tunes to canaries and bullfinches. A wooden box about a foot square contains a large roller covered with pasteboard upon which brass pins are set according to the system used in preparing the rolls of music boxes. Beneath the roller is a small pair of bellows, and in the back of the box is set a row of ten metal pipes about the size of a long lead pencil. When the crank on the outside of the box is rapidly turned wind is forced into the pipes, as the valves open when the metal torgue belonging to each is struck by a pin on the The music is therefore produced on the principle of a set of OCTAVE THANET is preparing for the Magazine a series of abort stories in which the same characters will appear, although each will be complete in itself. The ten notes produced by the ten pipes range from middle G in the staff to B, above, or an octave and three notes. That is, the bird music is written in the octave used in the musical notation for the human voice, but properly would be written in an octave higher when comparing the voice of a canary with the voice of a soprano. However, the quality of the tones differ so greatly that the shrill, clear pipe of the bird makes its voice sound as if it were pitched much higher than is really the

A canary's brain is not very big, and he gets his musical memory tangled it he hours more than the same old tune. I have heard of birds that could whistle two airs, but these are very rare, and it is a risky undertaking. For when a bird is working on the second tune he is likely to get mixed with the first, and then all your trouble's gone for nothing. It's simply a quesgot to play the tune on the organ as often as you get a chance; the more the better; you'll grind away for two or three months, or longer, perhaps for

It's all juck in getting a bright lard with a good ear, and the cefest singer may turn out a failure as a trained soloist. Bullfinches are ensler to teach, but they are so short-lived that the results are scarcely worth the trouble. A canary will keep his voice and he makes the sweetest music in the world."

THE ERRING DUNGLAM uitted, He Is Found at His Old Ways

Again. A curious romance of burglary and filial affection is told in the French newspapers, says the New York Journal. It has generally been supposed to be almost impossible to escape from the French penal settlement at Cayenne, and the perils to be confronted in the forests both from animals and natives, not to talk of starvation, appalled the convicts to such an extent, that they ever even thought of attempting light. This theory has just received evere shock, the description of no less than 30 recently escaped convicts having been circulated to the police by the minister of the interior.

One or two have already been capured in France. Among these is a cerain Petitjean, who is accused of new nisdeeds. Petitjean escaped from Pan's pipes, and is very shrill and high, Guiana some time ago, for no other reaon, he said, than to come and embrace his old mother, who lives at Bagnolet. He was arrested, but in deference to public opinion, which was impressed by his fitial affection, he was set at liberty and allowed to remain in France.

A short time ago a robbery took place on the Boulevard Diderot, in Paris, and by tracing back the stolen goods four persons were arrested. They were all carrying knives, knuckledusters and recolvers, and made a most desperate fight for their liberty. Once in prison, however, they confessed they belonged to a large gang whose chief was Petit-jean. Hence the latter's arrest.

Word. The woman lawyer slammed a pile of briefs down before the judge, according to the New York Herald, and said: "I move to discharge the prisoner on the ground that the prosecution have not proved their case and that the evidence is irrelevant and immaterial."

"Motion granted," said the judge. "No more dastardly outrage was ever erpetrated," began the lawyer, "than the incorceration of this, my innocent client. He was engaged in the pursuit of his daily vocation, when the strong arm of the law descended upon him.

"Madam," said the judge, "have I not already told you that your motion was granted? The prisoner is discharged." "He was a man without guile," continued the fair counselor. "He supported his family as best he could. He was in the midst of his family circle when a minion of the law entered and demanded his immediate incarceraliving at Barley, Royaton, writes to a Wesley. He now wishes to have it legal-London paper that on a recent evening by changed to Roger Williams, so he he encountered the feroclous heast in can join the Baptists quietly and withhis bedchamber.

A MOSQUITO INVADES ENGLAND. New Jersey's Insect's Storange for Viola-

An Englishman is always brave, and it seems almost superfluous to add that the man of Barley grappled with the creature single-handed, nor stayed his hand until it was under subjection. We medipus read of such fruts of derring dos even in these degenerated days.

Next to vindlenting his personal bravery, an Englishman's first duty is to write to his newspaper and tell about it. To this admirable national trait in far countries. Among other places he had visited the famous city of New Jersey, and in the transmississippian capital had met and coped with the mosquito in its lair.

Thus he is able to identify his quarry and lay before the British public a harrowing picture of the animal's dis-tinguishing traits.

"The specimen caught," he writes, has every characteristic of the foreign mosquito, especially the New Jersey variety. I believe they have been brought to England with timber, for in New Jersey the logs of timber, which are usually carried down the rivers, have on them mosquito eggs gathered from the surface of the winter, where they breed, and so in this manner are transported to Europe, where the sunshine hatches them, and they fly away,"

It now remains only to unite the English people as one man against the nvader. Hence this suggestion:

"Let every person carefully examine his bedroom window in the morning and kill them, as by so doing they would be prevented laying their eggs and breeding. Now is the time to act to prevent them spreading. They may easily be known by their resemblance to gnate, but having a long trunk or proboscis, and by making a humming noise when approaching the face or hands of a person."

Accompanying this slogan is a dia-ram what has been called the business end of the mosquito, which may be used for further identification of the dreaded foe, should he be encountered unawares.—N. Y. Herald.

"You must leave it here till you come out." The young woman objected. The man said it was the rule. The young woman said it was absord. The man was firm. He must obey orders. The young woman hesitated; then she undid the parcel, hung several pairs of black hose over her arm. handed the man the paper, and said: "There, you may keep that until I come out."

THE FUNNEL TRICK. An Interesting Problem Devised by Sportlye Californiane.

Jerry Lynch has finally learned the funnel trick. He took it in two dosesone on one evening and the other the next. The senator sauntered up to the Bohemian club the other day and saw two or three of the younger members attempting a new feat, and he watched them with interest. One of them, says the San Francisco News Letter, stuck a funnel in the top of his trousers, threw his head back, placed a 50-cent piece on his forehead and tried to drop it in the funnel by slowly lowering his head. After all had failed Jerry insisted on rying it, though all had tried to dissuade him from attempting a feat too difficult for them. The fumel was placed in the waletband of his troopers and he threw back his head to receive the coin on his expansive brow. At that functure a pitcher of ice water was exaptled into the finnel; and by the time Jerry got through dancing the jokers had vanished. The senator's temper improved with dry ruiment and the next night at the club he started in to show a couple of friends the funnel

"It's this way," he explained, "you out the funnel in the top of your pantasone, so, then throw your head back, so, and-wow!"

Again Jerry was forced to change his raiment, and he is not showing people what he knows about the funnel trick.
