ECCENTRICITIES OF GENIUS.

Queer Doings and Ideas of Some of the World's Greatest Men and Women. We often hear people offering objections to certain of their acquaintances because they are "queer." Eccentricity, however, is oftener allied to genius than not, says the Pittsburgh Dispatch. Among the musicians there have been found some of the most whimsical of Haydn could not compose satisfactorily to himself without first having put on his best suit of clothes and powdered his hair. Nor could he get his ideas in form until he had placed upon his finger a diamond ring presented to him by Frederick II. Another composer, Sacchini by name, declared that he never had any moments of inspiration excepting when his two pet cats were sitting upon his shoulders. In other lines than music we find that Tycho de Brahe, the celebrated astronomer of the sixteenth century, dropped to the ground whenever he caught sight of a hare or a fox. Ladislaus, king of Poland, took to illight assoon as he saw an apple. Henry III., king of England, could not bear to be in a room where there was a cat, even though he might not see it. Erasmus, of Rotterof the period, was thrown into a fever at the sight of a fish. Bacon, the great English chancellor, fainted while gazing at an eclipse of the moon. John II., grand duke of Moscow, fell into a swoon at the sight of a woman-surely the strangest peculiarity ever noticed in a man.

Chevalier de Guise was similarly affected by the sight of a rose, even without smelling its fragrance. Maria de Medici, the wife of Louis XIL, fond as she was of flowers, generally speaking, could not disguise her repugnance | hopeful. He trapped seven wolves reto roses, even painted ones.

TYPICAL AMERICAN STUDENTS.

Two Unidealized Statues on Exhibition in Boston-The Dimensions of Each.

Two interesting statues, the result of much hard work, were put on exhibition in Boston recently. One was that of a young man and the other that of a girl. They were designed to represent the American college student, not the ideal American student of either sex, but the actual, typical student, the measurements used having been the average, or mean, of development of students from various parts of the country. The statues are described by the Rochester Post and Express as representing "fairly well built young persons, symmetrically developed, and without serious physical defects." The figures have an easy pose, standing firmly and gracefully The faces, which were modeled after composite photographs made from the students from whom the measurements were taken, are handsome and thoughtful, with a marked air of refinement. The face of the young man is the handsomer of the two, but that of the young woman is nearest the classic standard. In the former's figure there are some marked departures from the standard. The hands and knees are large, while the wrists are small. The height of the male is five feet eight inches and of the f male five feet three inches. The male represents a weight of one hundred and thirty-eight and one-half pounds and the female one hundred and fifteen pounds. Each figure represents monuments taken from forty-two Leading parts of the body and these show the average development of each sex at the age of twenty-one years. It is worthy of note that the typical American student has a better physical obvelopment than that of the British or Gorman, as is shown by comparison with measure ments made recently in those coun-

A SCOURGE OF WOLVES.

Montana and Texas Cattle Killed by the Ravenous Beasts.

Stock Raisers in These States Are at a Loss for Some Means to Save Their Young Cows and Horses from

Wolves are the great bane of the stock-raising industry in the west and southwest, and how to get rid of them or even to prevent their increase is just now of most serious concern to ranchmen. The trouble is not confined to any one section, for stories of havoc among stock and of helplessness to cope with the pest come alike from points in western Texas and in eastern Montana.

At the recent annual meeting of the Montana stock growers the surprising fact was stated and corroborated by ranchmen from all parts of the state that during the past two years twentyfive per cent. of the young calves and ten per cent. of the colts on the ranges have been destroyed by wolves. The sheep men of Texas agree that they suffer from the depredations of wolves more than from any other cause, and estimate their average loss at twenty per cent. of their flecks. J. M. Campbell, who has one of the largest ranches in western Texas near Del Rio, where he has a flock of twelve thousand head of sheep, says he has had over three thousand head killed by coyotes or wolves during the past year.

The number of wolves does not diminish. "The fact is," says a Montana newspaper,"that wolves have increased in vast numbers within the past three years, and that all methods for their destruction have hitherto failed."
And Mr. Campbell says of Texas: The wolves are becoming so numerous and bold that it is no trouble to trap and shoot them; but their numbers do not seem to decrease." His fellow sheepmen say that the losses to their flocks from the depredations of the wolves in the past few years have gualed, and in many cases exceeded, Ret Nelson the profits from the business. Men who have raised sheep in Australia and other countries say there is no better country in the world for sheep raising than Texas, but for the wolves. | How wolves may kill sheep is not difficult to conceive. Killing young steers and colts is a bolder job. The wolf, preying alone or as one of a band, picks out a fine young animal, leaps on its hind quarters and cuts the tendons of the leg. The animal is crip-

or the pack. Usually but little of the animal thus killed is devoured, for the wolf prefers fresh meat, and calves and colts and sheep are plentiful and How to get rid of the wolves is a problem much essayed but still wholly unsolved. The Montana stock growers debated it for six hours and left the case open. The unanimous opinion was that only two suggestions were considered at all workable, one for their extermination by stag hounds and the old one of a bounty to hunters. The dam, one of the most enlightened men to slaughter. The stockmen say that pled and the feast is easy for the wolf

sly beast will not touch a poisoned carcass unless driven by extreme hunger, a condition unlikely with young stock so plentiful and easy strychnine, even when eaten, for some strange reason or other, now rarely takes effect on a wolf. Offering an increased bounty is an expensive and risky business. It might mean as much expense as the loss of the stock the wolves kill, for if the bounty were large wolf scalps would be imported from Canada and neighboring states for bounty purposes Mr. Campbell, the Texas sheep raiser quoted, has a new scheme for exterminating the pest, about which he is very cently and penned them with a dog badly afflicted with the mange. In several weeks the wolves had all caught the disease, and, having made it sure that they had it bad, Mr. Campbell turned them loose in Val Verde county, Tex. He believes that the disease will spread so rapidly that within two years that there will not be a healthy wolf in Texas. Dogs afflicted with mange do not breed, and die in a short time, and he believes the same effect will hold good in the case of the wolves. Mr. Campbell proposes that the legislature should establish stations in every county in western Texas for the propagation of mange among wolves. The sheepmen in his section have great faith in his experiment, and with stockmen in other parts of the union are looking with much interest for results.
