The pope, on his accession, became the owner for the time being of a pearl, left by one of his predecessors upon the throne of the vatican, which cannot be of less value than £20,000. Empress Frederick has a necklace composed of thirty-two pearls, the total value of which has been estimated at £35,000. Her mother, Queen Victoria, has a necklace of pink pearls worth £16,000. That of Baroiess Gustave de Rothschild, made up of five rows of these precious stones, is valued at £40,000, while that of Barones Adolphe de Rothschild is even more costly still. Both of these ladies have given orders to their jewelers to bring to them any "pearls of great price" which may come into their hands in the way of business. The gems are usually purchased by one or the other of these ladies and added to her necklace.

Good judges are doubtful whether to award the palm to either of the above two or to that of the empress of Russia, who has seven rows of pure white pearls, valued at something like 80,000 rubles, but the stones of which are perhaps less beautiful to the eye. The one belonging to Grand Duchess Marie has six rows and is said to have cost £36,000.

Mile. Dosnoe, a sister of M. Thiers, has a necklace of several rows, which has taken her thirty years to collect, and has cost her upward of £15,000. The empressof Austria possesses some of the most beautiful black pearls it is possible to find; her casket and that of the exarina of Russia are, in fact, the most famous in the world for pearls of this

CANVASBACKS IN ENGLAND.

Fate of an Importation Into Great Britain of an American Delicacy. An American woman who is married aire of high degree tells the following funny story of the fate of half a dozen canvasback ducks which she had sent to England as a aresent to her mother-in-law. The atter was an excellent housekeeper and had professed herself to be anxious to taste the renowned trans-Atlantic dainty which she had heard so extravagantly praised. Carefully packed in ice, the game arrived in good condition, and Lady M-, the recipi-ent, invited a couple of friends to partake of the much-vaunted delicacy. "Fancy my feeling," said the pretty American, describing the affair afterward, "when a pair of ducks were brought on the table done to feath and stuffed with onions, sage and potatoes, while my father-in-law, carefully carving up the entire bird, legs, wings and all, distributed the portions to a party of six! I could have shed tears, and the climax was reached when, after enduring disappointed and disapproving looks on the part of the guests, my belle mere remarked: 'I must say, Margaret, that I rather prefer our English duckling to your canvasbacks.' I could not tell her that it was the atrocious cooking and stupid carving that had destroyed the chief of all game birds. However, the ducks were there and they had to be disposed of, and the next day I had the pleasure of eating a pair of my canvasbacks en salmi, while the others were actually ended up in a pie! It is needless to relate the mortification I suffered or the vows I made never again to introduce American dainties to British palates."

WITH THE WIND.

Riding near the little placer mining settlement Dolores, in New Mexico, combination of newspapers can be made the New York Sun, I saw two Mexisaid a returned tourist, according to cans dry washing for gold, and their proceeding struck me as novel and interesting. They were at work in a dry gulch, without a sign of water in sight, and had brought the auriferous sand in baskets to the mouth of the ravine, where the wind blew strongly down the valley. Their washing apparatus consisted of a heavy army blanket, in the center of which they placed about a peck of the sand; then each Mexican taking hold of the blanket by the corners, they tomed the sand high aloft again and again.

The wind blew away the fine sand while the heavier particles with the gold fell straight back into the bisnicet. When at last they paused there re-mained in the blanket a double handful of gravel and heavy sand, in which glittered a few yellow specks of gold. As we rode on my Mexican driver told me that the two men were probably making three or four dollars a day during the time they worked, but that as soon as they had made their "clean up" they would go into Santa Fe or Cerrillos, sell their gold dust and squander the last nickel they had in whisky and monte before they would go back to the suich to work.

PINEST PEARLS IN THE WORLD. A MAN OF FEW WORDS. A Neckiace That Sold for Nearly Eighty The Novel Expedient of a Dun-

He was a man of few words and fewer dollars, says the Chicago Post. He didn't like to be disturbed, and he didn't like to enter into lengthy explanation. When a man came in, took a seat beside his desk and asked if he could settle that little account it wearied him to say: "Really, I'm sorry, but I haven't got the money to-day." And when the man suggested that it had been running a long time it wearied him still more to have to say:
"Yes, I know it, but I have been very short. I'll try to have something for you next week." There was too much chance for a man to get pressing and annoy him by stringing out the interview. He tried keeping away from the office at the hour his creditors usually came, but they changed the hours of their calls, and he was still bothered and annoyed by their impor-tunities just when he was busiest. Then he hit upon a brilliant scheme. He put in a day puttering around his desk arranging things, and the following morning was ready when the first creditor arrived. He never looked up from his work as the creditor began: string and a placard appeared which read: "No!" THE CONSCIENCE FUND.

Founded Early in This Century, It New Amounts to About $270,000. The "Conscience Fund" has figured in the statements of the treasury de partment for over eighty years, says F. L. Crisman in Lippincott's. It was pened by the register of the treasury spartment in 1811 and appears in the general fund of the government under the head of misce aneous receipts Like other assets of the treasury it cun be used for any purpose that congremay deem proper. Its origin was due to the fact that away back in the be ginning of the present century some anknown person began to feel the sharp ginning of the present century some unknown person began to feel the sharp thrusts of conscience. In some way he had defaulted the government, and could find relief only by returning the money to the treasury. This was the beginning of the account showing the consent & Brock. could find relief only by returning the money to the treasury. This was the beginning of the account showing the receipts of moneys by the governmen from unknown persons. Since then the fund has been accumulating in large and small sums, until at the present time it aggregates nearly $770,000. Hemittances are received nearly every week. During the prevalence of the hard times the receipts have fallen off considerably, and sometimes a fortnight elapses before a communication is received, showing that even a man'r conscience can feel the effect of tight Called Upon Dr. Holmes "I remember once in my experience," emarked a literary young woman, "of taking several ladies to call on the late Dr. Oliver Wendell Holmes, when I was in school in Boston. I had known the Holmes since childhood, and went there pretty much as I pleased, and often took friends of mine with me to see the good doctor. On this occasion one of the ladies was a young married woman, who had never read any of Dr. Holmes' books, and she insisted that I coach her a bit, so that she would not make any mistakes. I told her several titles, and dwelt especially upon the 'Autocrat of the Breakfast Table,' because that was my favorite. She was an intelligent person and was a rapid learner, so that when we started out I felt perfectly sure that she would do me credit. Well, everything went swimmingly along, and she wisely kept silent on the book question, except to second the compliments of those of us who were conversant with the doctor's books—that is, swimmingly until just as we were leaving. Then she seemed to think she ought to say something. and she did. I was intening, as it happened, for I had grown a little careless, and had thought also wasn't going to try berself.
